LEGISLATURE ASKS HIGHWAYS INQUIRY; MAY CLOSE TODAY

Probe Action is Condition Under which the House Accepts Gas Tax Shift

SCHOOL BILL IS PASSED

By ROBERT W. COMBER
(Of The Bulletin Staff)

Harrisburg, May 7.—A legislative investigation of the State Highway Department during the remaining 20 months of Governor Martin's Administration was projected as the General Assembly prepared to end its 1945 session today.

Concurrence by the Senate in an eleventh hour resolution adopted by the House of Representatives to authorize the highways inquiry constituted a compromise feature of the House yielding to the upper chamber in the dispute over proceeds of the continued one-cent-a-gallon emergency tax on gasoline collected during the next two fiscal years.

Toward the close end of the Saturday sitting of the House, which did not end until 7 A. M. yesterday, that body voted almost unanimously to accept Senate amendments to the Wood (R-Montgomery) bill limiting to $17,000,000 the amount of that gasoline revenue to be distributed among municipal subdivisions for local street, road and bridge improvements, and retaining remainder of the $22,000,000 total estimated yield in the motor license fund for use by the State Highways Department.

Scope of Inquiry

The resolution sponsored by four House members from rural districts sets up a special committee of five Senators and five Representatives appointed by the presiding officers of each branch, to study highway laws pertaining to duties and power of the department, and examine regulations, practices and activities of State highway officials in construction and maintenance of roads and bridges.

During the interim until the 1947 Legislature convenes the investigators are authorized to report to the Governor findings and recommendations from time to time, and a final report to the next General Assembly, when the Martin Administration will be going out of office, shall include recommendations on changes deemed desirable to correct any defects in the law or to correct any abuses and evils in administration of the department.

Under another part of the agreement, at the instances of House Republicans, the Joint Conference Committee struck from the gasoline tax bill a Senate amendment appropriating $50,000 to the Joint State Government Commission for an investigation to determine the amount of State said which should be granted to municipalities for highway purposes, and to fix rela-

33,462 JAPS KILLED ON OKINAWA

Enemy Shipping Blasted by U. S. Bombers; British Shell Ryukyus

By The Associated Press

Guam, May 7.—Hammering at Japan's shrinking sea lanes, land-based American bombers sank or damaged 20 enemy ships Saturday at the entrance to the Sea of Japan, the Navy reported today. The planes came from Okinawa where U. S. ground forces have killed 33,462 Nipponese—15 for every American slain.

While U. S. bombers harried shipping in the straits linking Japan and Korea, the British fleet shelled the southern Ryukyu Islands, 800 miles to the south, in its first announced bombardment while operating with the U. S. Fifth Fleet. One major British ship was damaged, but was able to resume operations.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communique today made no mention of ground action on Okinawa where Yanks resumed a general offensive Saturday after killing off 3,000 Japanese who made a futile tank-led counter-attack.

Failure of the Nipponese attack brought their losses since the beginning of the Okinawa campaign April 1 to 33,462 killed, and 700 prisoners. U. S. ground casualties up to last Thursday were 14,283, including 2,337 killed, 11,432 wounded, 514 missing.. Including Navy losses this brings the American casualty total for the Okinawa operation to 19,834, of whom 3,468 were killed.

Russia Said to Approve All Big 4 Amendments

Small Nations Prepare to Seek Further Changes; Delegates Avoid Talk on Arrested Poles

By CARL W. McCARDLE
(Of the Bulletin Staff)

San Francisco, Calif., May 7.—Delegates to the United Nations Conference now approach a new week curious as to what the new Molotov surprise will be.

Today it is reported that the Soviet Foreign Commissar has some good news. He is supposed to have received word from Moscow telling him to go ahead and approve those two American amendments on which he was biding his time. One amendment would allow the World Assembly to review situations likely to upset peace, and the other would exempt Soviet regional alliances against Germany from Dumbarton Oaks restrictions.

If so, that makes a Big Four solid front on amendments, and it also makes the small countries wonder to what extent the Big Four version of the World Peace Charter will be in fact the World Peace Charter.

They would like this to be small nations week at San Francisco.

For several days now they have been waiting for the Big Four amendments. Now they want to get the Big Four to listen to some of their amendments. The United States, Britain, Russia and China will listen, and maybe here and there will grant a few changes. But not the kind of changes the small nations want the most, the changes that would ease the Big-Power vetoes.

Privately the small nations know that, but they feel that the least they can do is to try.

White Russians, Ukrainians Arrive

There is some question as to whether there are now 42 or 44 small countries here. That is, should White Russia and the Ukraine be regarded as separate nations, now that they are admitted to the San Francisco parley as separate member States?

The White Russian and Ukrainian delegations arrived by air yesterday. They came in two American-built planes, each with a big red star on it. There were six in the "Resistance was useless after the swift American advance from the north," he said.

Patton Gains up to 25 Mi; throws 250,000 Troops into Final Campaign

By The Associated Press

Paris, May 7.—American and Russian armies beat through Czechoslovakia and Austria today in the final mopup of organized German resistance and embattled Patriots in Prague said U. S. Third Army tanks were only 15 miles from that city, largest still in German hands.

General Patton threw nearly a quarter of a million Third Army troops into the closing campaign. In advances of up to 25 miles, his tanks and infantry advanced within 50 miles southwest and 52 miles south of the Czech capital.

The German-controlled Prague radio said Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army Group had driven into Bohemia from Saxony to a point about 60 or 65 miles north of Prague.

Two Russian army groups were pressing in from the east, fighting into the outskirts of the big rail junction of Olmuetz and the Hohenstadt region, 128 and 115 miles from Prague.

Patriots Engage Germans

Patriots engaged German Seventh Army troops in the capital, which the Germans declared "a hospital city" last week.

In Germany itself, only three cities remained under the swastika. These were encircled Breslau and the Saxony cities of Dresden and Chemnitz, both ripe for capture.

The Fifth Army from Italy fought into southern Austria for the kill.

The German Seventh Army, believed to be commanded by Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, was the only really organized enemy force still fighting although a few hun-

DALADIER, REYNAUD ON WAY TO PARIS

Others Liberated by U. S. 7th Include Gen. Bor and Winant's Son

By The Associated Press

Paris, May 7—Two former French premiers, Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud, were en route back to Paris today with a group of other notables after liberation from a Nazi prison by U. S. Seventh Army forces sweeping through Austria.

Reynaud was quoted in a despatch from Itter as saying he intended to write a book to prove that more could have been done to stave off the fall of France.

Among other prominent figures freed were Lieutenant General Tadeusz Komorowski, the famed "General Bor" who led the bloody Polish underground uprising in Warsaw; General Maurice G. Gamelin and General Maxime Weygand, both Allied generalissimos in the early war days, and Lieutenant John G. Winant, Jr., son of the U. S. Ambassador to Britain.

Advices from Rome said Kurt Schuschnigg, former Austrian Chancellor; former French Premier Leon Blum and German Pastor Martin Niemoeller had been in Allied hands for at least two days. Supreme Headquarters at Paris earlier had Reims, France, May 7—(AP)—Germany surrendered unconditionally to the Western Allies and Russia at 2.41 A. M. French time today.

[This was at 8.41 P. M., Eastern War Time Sunday.]

The surrender took place at a little red school house which is the headquarters of General Eisenhower.

The surrender which brought the war in Europe to a formal end after five years, eight months and six days of bloodshed and destruction was signed for Germany by Colonel General Gustav-Jodl, new chief of the staff of the German Army.

It was signed for the Supreme Allied Command by Lieutenant General Walter Bedel Smith, chief of staff for General Eisenhower.

It was also signed by General Ivan Susloparoff for Russia and by General Francois Sevez for France.

London, May 7.—A broadcast on the Flensburg wave length today said Germany had capitulated unconditionally.

This statement attributed to German Foreign Minister Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk was broadcast to the German people:

"German men and women! The high command of the armed forces has today at the order of Grand Admiral Doenitz declared the unconditional surrender of all fighting German troops."

The broadcast was recorded by the British Ministry of Information.

The Free Danish radio at about the same time reported without Allied confirmation that German forces in Norway had capitulated.

U-Boats Ordered to Cease Hostilities

Just before, the Flensburg wave length quoted Doenitz in an order of the day ordering all his Nazi U-boats to cease hostilities.

The Paris radio also broadcast a French telegraph agency report which said the "surrender of German forces in Norway has now been solved. They will be transferred to Sweden and there disarmed. An official announcement of the surrender is expected any time now."

"After almost six years struggle we have succumbed," the Krosigk broadcast said.

"Our sympathy firstly goes out to our soldiers. Nobody must deceive himself on the harshness of the

The Navy Cross is the highest decoration a Navy man can receive except for the Congressional Medal of Honor. Young Nimitz already has won the Silver Star and Gold Star in lieu of a second Silver Star.

Surrender of SS Corps to Escape Russians' Wrath Irks U. S. Men

FOE FOUGHT FIERCE DELAYING ACTION AGAINST SOVIETS

40,000 Nazi Troops Cross River in 36 Hours to give up to Ninth Army

MANY GENERALS LISTED

By WES GALLAGHER
(Associated Press Correspondent)

Tangermunde, Germany, May 6—(Delayed)—Germany's 12th Army fought a bitter delaying action against the Russians in order to surrender to the American Ninth Army. In 36 hours some 40,000 enemy troops have crossed over to give up.

This is the last sizable pocket of German troops in the Reich itself and the scene from a cliff outside this town is one of the weirdest of the war.

There is a flat meadow about four miles square across the river bounded by forests. The Russians are on the Elbe north of here and south near Magdeburg.

You can see Russian shells bursting across the river and German guns thundering back from the woods. Coming across the meadow are long lines of German soldiers, ambulances, trucks, tanks and self-propelled guns manned by war-weary crews.

Barge Brings Over Wounded

Down the right a barge moves back and forth bringing wounded from the opposite bank. Over the twisted girders of a bridge blown by the Germans themselves when the Ninth reached the Elbe, the 12th built a footbridge. Over this streams the Russian-battered Wehrmacht.

At the moment the 11th SS Corps is passing to this side. They come at a run, discarding rifles in a pile ten feet high and pistols by the thousand while grim and angry G. I.s frisk them and push them on to the field and the town behind, where every street is clogged with German soldiers marching away to prison camps.

The G. I.s are angry because they see these SS men escape the Russians' wrath and they can't do anything because the Germans are surrendering unconditionally.

They can't even fire on German guns almost within their sight, because they don't know exactly where the attacking Russians are and they might shell them by mistake.

Regiment Mostly of Boys

The Germans have been fighting fiercely to preserve their escape route to the American lines.

In the words of Captain Chester Twentyman, Waukegan, Ill., "It's a hell of a war."

Everything has come over the bridge. A regnment of Latvians just passed. Not one in ten was [illegible] than 18 years old. Most were [illegible] 14. They did not know what they were figthing for. They do not even speak German.

The front is so close that limping over are Germans wounded less than two hours ago. One has his face half torn away. It is hard to see how he stays on his feet.

A Red Cross German major who was supposed to keep order on the far shore and direct the wounded came over to surrender. American officers sent him back across the river with the rough order to do his job.

There are hard-faced SS men covered with medals. They are taciturn and nasty. There is an old Volkssturmer with a handlebar mustache who looks like he was out of the last war.

In a steady stream they pass by, more than a thousand an hour, day and night.

A German Wac goes by carrying a fur coat. The German soldier women appear to be in better spirits than the men.

Bring Over a Horse

There is a motley collection of rafts in the river below. On one is a small group of German officers bringing over their belongings and a horse.

How they expect to bring a horse into a prison camp no one knows. They had to leave some of their wounded behind to make room for the horse and belongings, but that does not bother them.

Another raft with civilians spins crazily downstream in the swift current and washes back on the other shore because they do not have adequate paddles.

Lieutenant Colonel Leroy Frazier, Kankakee, Ill., complains bitterly that he was awakened at 5.45 A. M. by a German general wanting to surrender and had three more German generals drop in for breakfast.

As the colonel commanding the battalion of the 102d Division handling the prisoners was telling this, another German general marched across the bridge and surrendered. He was an SS brigadier general of the 11th SS Corps with a death's head on his cap and wearing a leather coat. With cold, pale blue eyes, he looked like a Hollywood idea of what a German SS general would look like.

terms which our enemies have imposed on the German people.

'Heavy Sacrifices Will be Demanded from All'

"Nobody must have any doubt that heavy sacrifices will be demanded from us in all spheres of life. We must take them upon us and stand loyally to our obligations.

"On the other hand," the broadcast continued, "we must not despair. From the collapse in the past we must keep in mind one thing: the idea of our unity, the idea of front comradeship, the idea of assistance to each other."

The von Krosigk broadcast said that "he was the leading minister of the Reich government" which Doenitz had appointed for the purpose of "winding up all military tasks."

The Flensburg radio has been used for several days for the issuance of German communiques and official German orders. Flensburg is just below the German-Danish border in an area surrendered last week to Field Marshal Montgomery. London authorities said it seemed unlikely that Montgomery had permitted the Germans to continue broadcasting from there, but there was no ofifcial explanation. Radio monitors here said the station, if not actually located at Flensburg, was certainly in that area.

The Flensburg radio said Doenitz's order of the day to his submarine crews was dated three days ago. It gave this as the text.

"My U-boat men, six years of U-boat warfare lies behind us. You have fought like lions. Crushing superiority has compressed us into a very narrow area. Continuation of the struggle is impossible from the bases that remain.

Praises His Men

"U-boat men, unbroken in your warlike courage, you are laying down your arms after a heroic fight that knows no equal. In reverent memory we think of our comrades who have sealed their loyalty to the Fuehrer and the fatherland with their death.

"Comrades, maintain in the future your U-boat spirit with which you have fought at sea bravely and unflinchingly during long years for the welfare of the fatherland. Long live Germany."

Earlier the new self-styled Nazi Fuehrer had directed crews of all German warships and merchantmen not to scuttle their ships.

This message said:

"Crews of all ships flying the German flag (both warships and merchant ships) are to cease all military operations in harbors and waters affected by the cease-fire. They are not to scuttle their ships or to render them unserviceable by destroying machinery. The crews are to remain on board."

London Dresses Up

Unconfirmed advices from Stockholm, repeated later by the Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio, said the Germans already had affixed their signature to Allied surrender terms for Norway. Most of the remaining U-boat bases are located in Norway.

Great Britain was clearly expecting a V-E Day announcement at any time. London began to dress up for the big occasion by draping flags on some downtown buildings.

British morning newspapers carried unconfirmed undated despatches saying that the Nazis had finally decided to lay down arms on all fronts.

Prime Minister Churchill was declared to be busy at his desk, but close-mouthed as to his plans. The British Cabinet stood by for any possible emergency session.

The political correspondent for the London Evening News said "Mr. Churchill is today expected to broadcast from the cabinet room at 10 Downing Street that the war in Europe is over."

A headline in the London Star declared "tonight may be V-E night. Peace in Europe will be announced at any hour now."

Government Silent

Veteran parliamentary correspondents for two British press agencies—Press Association and Exchange Telegraph—said that the general expectation was that Churchill will make an announcement "in a matter of hours."

Although the Government was officially silent on any V-E Day proclamation, the ministries openly were making preparations for handling observances and celebrations for the formal ending of the war in Europe.

Any V-E Day announcement by Churchill will be broadcast from his cabinet room at 10 Downing Street. Afterwards he is expected to address the crowds from a balcony overlooking Whitehall, where a special microphone apparatus is set up.

Ed Stackpole, Press Association's parliamentary correspondent, said telephone conversations between London, Washington and Moscow were going on today, as they have been at frequent intervals for some time.

Seek Synchronization

He added that perhaps the actual hour of the peace announcement was not definitely set, but that the three Allied leaders — Truman, Stalin and Churchill—were undoubtedly trying to synchronize simultaneous release of the news.

Because there have been slipups on several other prearranged announcements of major importance during the war, officials here are anxious that the news come from the three capitals at exactly the same time.

Releasing the news at the best possible time for all is complicated by the fact that New York is six hours behind British double summer time and Moscow is one hour ahead.

The London Exchange Telegraph Agency said in a despatch from Stockholm that "it was learned here that the capitulation of German forces in Norway already is a fact." It added that Hans Thomsen, German minister to Stockholm, "is on his way from Oslo to Stockholm with the capitulation document already signed."

Probably Signed

The correspondent for Dagens Nyheter on the Swedish-Norwegian border said that Thomsen already had returned to Sweden from Oslo, but qualified the story somewhat with the statement that the capitulation document "probably was signed."

Hueing to the established propaganda line, the German-controlled Oslo radio said the "fight against the Bolsheviks is continuing." The broadcast made no mention of resistance against the Americans or British.

Earlier, the British radio quoted the German-directed Scandinavian telegraph bureau as saying Field Marshal Montgomery had refused to negotiate for the surrender of Norway unless the capitulation offer was extended to the Russians.

Churchill remained in London over the week-end and the King and Queen returned to Buckingham Castle yesterday. There were reports that the Cabinet had been called into an unusual Sunday session, but subsequent inquiries at the Ministry of Information met with a statement that no Cabinet meeting had been held.

The excitment over Denmark's liberation had not entirely subsided. A small detachment of Americans entering Copenhagen yesterday was fired upon by roof-top snipers, presumed to be Danish Nazis.

The snipers met with return fire from American and British soldiers, freedom fighters and members of the Danish police. The skirmish occurred in the capital's main square.

Thousands of Danes thronged the square earlier to jeer and spit at more than 400 Danish Nazi sympathizers, loaded into trucks and paraded before them. Occupation of Holland by the Canadian First Army was scheduled today.

Norway was the big question mark.

Despatches last night from Oslo said Josef Terboven, Nazi commissioner of Norway, and General Franz Boehme, German commander in chief there, were at the Nazi headquarters and that the hour of capitulation depended largely upon the disposal of technical details involved.

The small northern kingdom, which has a population of about 2,800,000 was reported garrisoned by 150,000 to 300,000 Nazi troops. The Norwegian government in exile in London has said much of the remnants of the Nazi Navy are in Norwegian waters. Unconfirmed Swedish press despatches from Swedens' Norwegian border said 500 German planes had arrived in Oslo from Denmark.

Many observers said the Nazi forces there might simply wait in their quarters to be captured.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said an Allied fleet already was cruising off Norway's Atlantic coast read yto make a "symbolic invasion." Norwegian sources in Stockholm, however, said this seemed unlikely.

23 Enemy Craft Give Up; 1,300 are Taken Prisoner

Rome, May 7—(AP)—The Allied Naval Command announced today that rapid progress has been made in clearing Genoa and upper Adriatic ports of mines and completing the surrender of Nazi vessels.

A total of 23 enemy craft have been surrendered at Ancona, including one small submarine. Thirteen hundred naval prisoners have been taken.

A channel is being cut through sunken vessels and minefields into Genoa harbor, where berths for 12 ships already are ready for use. The smaller ports of Oneglia and Porto Maurizio farther west are virtually intact.

The only hostilities reported in the Mediterranean command area yesterday were attacks by a small group of R. A. F. fighters on motor traffic northwest of Fiume.

Left Wing of Column Driving Toward Chihkiang Shattered

Chungking, May 7—(AP)—Chinese troops, with air support, have completely destroyed part of a Japanese force driving toward the U. S. 14th Air Force base at Chihkiang in western Hunan, the Chinese high command announced last night.

The entire left wing of the enemy force was shattered Saturday afternoon 20 miles from Wawutang, 56 miles southeast of Chihkiang, the high command said.

The Chinese indirectly suggested development of what, if not checked, might prove to be a grave threat to Chihkiang, reporing a breakhrough by a Japanese column in the center, to a point vaguely described as "southeast of Ankiang," which is on the main highway only 35 miles east of the coveted air base.

Will Surrender President's Sons to Philippine Government

Manila, May 7—(AP)—Two sons of Philippine President Sergio Osmena, held in custody in Manila by United States Army authorities as suspected collaborationists with the Japanese, will be turned over to the Philippine Government after the war.

An Associated Press despatch from Washington Saturday night quoted President Osmena as saying that he had directed that his two sons held in Manila be dealt with "as with the others suspected" of dealings with the Japanese. He denied an earlier report that he actually had ordered their arrest.

BODY OF GOEBBELS REPORTED FOUND

Prague Radio Hints that other Nazi Leaders Died in Berlin

By The Associated Press

London, May 7.—Reuters in a Moscow despatch said today, that it was reported without confirmation that the bodies of German Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels and his family had been found in an air raid shelter near the Reichstag building in Berlin.

The German-controlled Prague radio announced last night that Goebbels, his wife and children, Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy and Werner Naumann, secretary of state for the propaganda ministry, all died during Russian attacks on the Reichchancellery in Berlin.

It was the first report by German sources—other than that of war prisoners Hans Fritsche to the Russians—that Nazi leaders other than Hitler had died in the defense of Berlin.

The broadcast said that in addition to Goebbels, Bormann and Naumann, General Schwedt, deputy chief of the general staff, General Bergendorf, chief adjutant to Hitler, "met a hero's death at the Fuehrer's side."

This was the only reference made to Hitler himself.

Russian troops, systematically examining the bodies found in the Nazi chancellery in Berlin, have not yet reported finding that of Hitler, although the bodies of many members of the general staff, leading Stormtroopers and high-ranking Nazis—all suicides—have been found.

The Russians still believe that the report of Hitler's death was a Nazi trick, and that he is in hiding.

Drive on Prague

dred thousands of Germans still were unsurrendered in various scattered pockets in Europe.

Perhaps the largest pocket was in Norway where 150,000 to 200,000 German troops awaited surrender or annihilation.

Nearly 4 Million Captives

Supreme Headquarters noted that 398,630 Germans surrendered Saturday for a three-day total of 987,573 and an aggregate since D-Day of 3,874,771 for General Eisenhower's armies of the west.

An estimated 40,000 additional prisoners were taken by the Third Army yesterday, with 14,436 actually processed through the cages. The total for the last two weeks reached 187,655 and since last August 1 the total was 731,176.

With the great munitions and beer center of Pilsen captured, and Karlsbad behind Third Army lines, Patton's famous Fourth Armored (Breakthrough) Division in twin stabs drove 25 miles to the northeast reaching Brez, 50 miles southwest of Prague, and Borochowitz, 52 miles south of the capital.

All Divisions Advance

Brigadier General William M. Hoge's division returned to action after a long layoff and encountered little or no resistance. Its drive carried through sectors held by the Fifth (Red Diamond) and 90th (Texas and Oklahoma) Divisions.

All other Third Army divisions—six armored and 12 infantry—advanced along a 150-mile front.

Patton's infantry was drawn in part from the First and Seventh Armies—out of work since joining Russian lines in the center of what used to be the Western Front, and since surrenders in the south.

The First, Second, 97th, 90th, Fifth, 26th, 65th, 71st, 80th, 90th, Fourth and 70th Divisions were in the line. The First and Second Divisions were last reported with the First Army; the 70th was with the Seventh Army.

Patton's armored divisions were the Fourth 11th, 13th, 14th, Ninth and the new 16th—reported in action for the first time. The Ninth Armored Division last was reported with the First Army in the Leipzig area.

Organized in Four Corps

Patton's troops were organized in four corps, the Third, Fifth, 12th and 20th. The Third and Fifth Corps had been parts of General Hodges' First Army until it met the Russians in the Leipzig-Dresden area.

The First Infantry gained up to ten miles on a 15-mile front 15 to 20 miles southwest of Karlsbad (pop: 24,039) and cleared Sangerberg, 15 miles southwest of Karlsbad. The 97th Division in a 15-mile push reached a point ten miles northwest of Pilsen (114,704) and its Skoda munitions works—last important arsenal to be lost by Germany.

Tricked by Germans

London, May 7—(AP)—Czechoslovak Patriots, who indicated late last night that Russian troops had reinforced them in the bloody street battle for control of Prague, apparently were tricked by the German command.

Shortly before midnight the Free Czechoslovak radio station in Prague proclaimed "help has arrived. Allied forces are approaching. Units of General Vlassov already are free. Now we are temporarily leaving the air."

Later, a German-controlled Prague station was heard in London broadcasting in Russian to General Vlassov's forces to fight with Germany against Bolshevism.

The German broadcast aroused speculation in London that the Russian forces providently arriving to "help" the Patriots may have been those of General Andrei Vlassov, a renegade White Russian general who went over to the Germans early in the war. There were unconfirmed reports last week that at least some of Vlassov's forces had sought refuge in the tiny principality of Liechtenstein, adjoining Switzerland.

Russian sources in London were uncertain, explaining that at least two Generals Vlassov now were active in the Red Army.

Supposed Hunt for Dachshund Led to Nazi Surrender in Italy

Rome, May 7—(AP)—German spies and other difficulties delayed final capitulation of the German and Italian Fascist armies in northern Italy for nearly two months after negotiations were started in spy-thriller secrecy which included disguests and an ostensible search for a dachshund named Fritzel.

Two Allied officers, U. S. Major General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, of Washington, D. C., and British Major General T. S. Airey, flew to Lyon, France, on March 13 and then, wearing civilian clothes and using names borrowed from two American enlisted men they met in France, drove to Switzerland where they set themselves up in a small house at Locarno and prepared to wait for a meeting with Nazi SS General Karl Wolff.

The report on negotiations for the peace, released yestreday at Allied headquarters, said "Lemnitzer described the three weeks which folowd as chapters from E. Phillips Oppenheim." The two officers explained their presence in the community by saying they came to look for a dog, the report said, and "Fritzel was purchased by General Airey, who brought him back to Caserta after completion of the mission."

Meeting Arranged

The Switzerland meeting with Wolff, top SS General in Italy, was arranged after a series of events beginning in February. Then, Allied agents reported that certain German generals were ready to talk surrender. On March these agents said two German officers had reached the Swiss border and wanted to establish communication with Swiss headquarters. March 8 was set as the date. After this communication, the meeting with Walff was arranged.

Wolff arrived on March 19 and was informed during a 44-minute conference that the Allies were interested only in unconditional surrender.

Wolff said Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had just been sent to Germany and that made things difficult because he did not know how the new commander, Colonel General Heinrich von Vietinghoff, would react to the surrender proposal.

Before Wolff left for his headquarters in Italy, it was agreed to hold another conference in five days. Wolff explained, however, the difficulties of travel in northern Italy. Once he was shot up in an Allied air attack, and another time his automobile overturned in a blackout.

Himmler's Spies Cited

Another difficulty was to keep news of the conversations from Hitler and Himmler, particularly since Himmler's spies were infiltrated throughout the German Army.

The German commanders lived in constant fear that Hitler and Himmler might drop into Italy for an inspection tour. General Wolff had seen the two Nazi leaders early in February and told them of the general hopelessness of the German situation. At that time, however, he received no definite instructions from them.

March 24 passed without word from Wolff. Finally word came that Wolff expected to meet them Easter Sunday, April 1, but on April 2 came a message that he was unable to do so.

The story was that Himmler telephoned Wolff and asked him why he had gone to Switzerland. Wolff explained that he made the trip in connection with negotiations for the exchange of prisoners. Himmler instructed Wolff not to go to Switzerland again. He said he planned to call Wolff regularly to assure that he was carrying out these instructions.

Final Offensive Launched

The Allied officers left Switzerland and returned to Caserta. On April 9, the Allies launched their final offensive in Italy. Later Wolff sent word that he was going to Switzerland with two plenipotentiaries who were authorized to go to Casterta and sign a surrender.

The German representatives were brought to Allied Headquarters on April 27 by plane and negotiations started anew. One German haggled over surrender details, but after being told that they would either surrender unconditionally or negotiations would be called off, the Germans agreed to the terms.

The surrender was signed April 29, to be effective at noon, May 2.

Within half an hour after signing, the German emissaries were in a plane heading north. The weather was bad and only the skill of the pilot enabled the Germans to reach the Swiss frontier before dark. They drove across Switzerland, passing through Bern at midnight.

Monday was an anxious day of waiting. Would the German plenipotentiaries reach von Veitinghoff's headquarters? It was a hazardous trip, especially since Allied troops were closing in.

Elaborate Code System

An elaborate system of radio code communication between Allied Headquarters and German Headquarters had been devised, and Alexander took no chances of the emissaries' failing to reach von Vietinghoff in time for the cease fire order to be issued before the prescribed hour.

He sent von Vietinghoff a radio message that "honorable terms of unconditional surrender have been signed, effective at 1200 hours, GMT, May 2."

German headquarters at Bolzano messaged May 1 that the surrender would be carried out, and requested Allied forces to refrain from attacking German centers of resistance remaining in northern Italy.

On Wednesday morning, May 2, Allied Headquarters officers sat alert before radio receivers for the scheduled German broadcasts to troops to lay down their arms. The first such broadcast came from Bolzano. Soon all German military transmitters were spreading the word.

HITLER HOPED TO LAST FOR ALLIED SPLIT

Captured SS General says he saw his Chief in Berlin April 18

Rome, May 7—(AP)—Adolf Hitler expressed the belief as late as April 19 that a break might come between the western Allies and Russia, and "then I shall join the party which approaches me first—it makes no difference which," according to Allied headquarters.

This declaration was made to Waffen SS General Karl Wolff when Wolff went to Berlin April 18 and saw Hitler the next day, it was disclosed in a detailed account issued yesterday at Allied headquarters of Wolff's negotiations leading to surrender of Axis troops in Italy.

"On the second day of Wolff's visit to Berlin, he reportedly saw Hitler in a bunker located two hours by motor from the center of Berlin," the announcement said. "Hitler seemed in low spirits, but not hopeless."

OWN V-E DAY DECREED

THREE FISHERMEN DROWNED

Chambersburg, May 7—(AP)—A night fishing trip at Mountain Lake, near Sannettsburg, resulted in death for three fishermen.

Their bodies were found Saturday near their partly submerged boat by members of their families who instituted a search when they failed to return home.

The victims were Thomas M. Zimmerman, 56; Edgar D. Wenger, 33, Zimmerman's son-in-law, both of Chambersburg, and Frank M. Smith, 37, of McConnellsburg.

NOTHING REMAINS OF HITLER CHALET

Ruins of Favorite Retreat Symbolic of Fuehrer's Entire Work

Berchtesgaden, May 7—(AP)—Hitler's favorite retreat, Haus Wachenfeld, on his Berghof estate at Obersalzberg eight miles from Berchtesgaden, is symbolic today of the Fuehrer's entire work—it is totally wrecked.

Allied bombers a fortnight ago blasted buildings all around it but, according to natives, did not hit Hitler's chalet itself. They said SS guards set fire to the chalet rather than have it fall into Allied hands.

At any rate, gone is the celebrated 30 by 20 foot window of the huge parlor from which Hitler used to look across the deep valley at Bavaria's most famous mountain, the Watzmann.

Gone is the spacious dining room in which he entertained European bigwigs. Gone are the reception halls and private apartments for visiting friends.

Gone also are those costly paintings and sculptures which made Haus Wachenfeld a veritable art museum.

The art objects as well as quantities of food, materials and possibly documents, may be hidden somewhere in the mountain recesses behind Hitler's estate.

Frau Therese Aaschauer Scheffau, a native of the nearby village of Schellenburg, says she saw hundreds of trucks rolling in the direction of Obersalzberg carrying supplies of all kinds.

Two days before the American seizure of Berchtesgaden last Thursday, she said, Nazi SS (Elite Guard) troops blew up and set fire to Haus Wachenfeld and sealed with thick stones many caches in the mountains which, on opening, may yield surprises.

"Nobody believes Hitler is dead," Frau Scheffau added. "We all believe that some day he'll try to reappear. Destruction of his home is God's just punishment for Hitler's misdeeds."

Hitler, she said, had not been in Berchtesgaden since the attempt on his life on July 20, 1944. Marshal Goering, she added, was a frequent visitor in this region until quite recently, while Himmler and Goebbels seldom were seen here even in Hitler's heyday.

VON BOCK'S BODY FOUND RIDDLED BY ROADSIDE

German Marshal Believed to be Hamburg Strafing Victim

With the British Second Army, May 7—(AP)—The bullet-riddled body of German Field Marshal Fedor von Bock was discovered yesterday by British troops near a roadside north of Hamburg, where he apparently was slain in an Allied strafing raid.

The ex-commander of the central army group in the German invasion of Russia in June, 1941, had been dead for about a week.

Von Bock's body either had been ignored or not recognized by German troops, and was left for a burial squad to pick up.

Von Bock was relieved of army command after German failures to take both Moscow and Stalingrad.

The British Second Army in the last week has captured 60 German generals, including Lieutenant General Krose, an artillery commander, and Vice-Admiral Michel, chief inspector of naval stores.

HARD COAL MINERS DEFY U. S. ORDER

Stay Out Despite Federal Deadline on Strike; Pay Talk Still Deadlocked

Miners in the Pennsylvania anthracite regions remained away from work today, despte a Federal order which had instructed them to report this morning.

The men have been on strike since the expiration of the United Mine Workers-operators contract last Monday midnight.

In New York yesterday it was reported that negotiations on a new contract remain deadlocked.

John L. Lewis, UMW president, refused to comment after leaving a 45-minute session with the operators.

Owen Williams, Solid Fuels Administrator representative, said that the shutdown is costing an average daily production loss of 190,000 tons. Already, other spokesmen warned, the effect is being felt in other important war industries.

Some of the 72,000 striking anthracite miners attended local meetings yesterday and voted to continue to stay out.

The general body of the UMW of the Glen Alden Coal Co. voted unanimously to "stand solidly behind John L. Lewis and not return to work until a contract has been signed."

The men are employed in the Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton area.

Two male companions were seen to assist the girl from the scene after the car hit the automobile of Howard Marino, 35, of 2131 Medary av., late Saturday night. They disappeared in a clump of trees.

Marino and his wife, Gisele, 33, were treated for cuts at Lankenau Hospital. Joseph Packer, of 107 W. School lane, who took the Marinos to the hospital, said the girl staggered and fell on the highway when she first got out of the car.

REGISTRATION CHANGES VOTED BY ASSEMBLY

Would Close Books in City 50 Days before Election

Harrisburg, May 7. — Several changes in the Philadelphia permanent registration system and its administration will be made if Governor Martin approves the bill sponsored by Representative Charles C. Smith, Republican, which was salvaged from the House table and put through finally at the week-end session.

The measure provides that registry books be closed against enrollments by voters 50 days before November municipal elections such as in this odd-numbered year; changes the basis for annually purging lists of non-voting registrants to those who failed to go to the polls in two preceding calendar years; and authorizes the registration commission to destroy all records, except registration affidavits and original strike-off petitions, not essential for maintaining a voter's status, after two years.

Under present law new registration has terminated 35 days before a municipal election, because the primary heretofore was held in September. Until the end of the war period the primaries in odd years are to be in June.

The Democrats opposed the bill, declaring that advancing the deadline by 15 days would prevent thousands of unregistered and residence-changed industrial workers from enrolling.

Developed by Dr. H. J. Corper, director of the research department at the hospital, a test is made by placing the tuberculin on the skin and it makes possible speedier and simpler methods of detecting tuberculosis. The request for the material was made by the French embassy at Washington.

A dinner celebrating the 46th anniversary of the hospital will be held May 21, at the Warwick at which activities of the hospital will be discussed.

Rescue at Zoo May Day

Florence Przepiorska, 877 Pennock st., gets a rabbit out of the police station in the rabbit village

May Day at the Philadelphia Zoo yesterday attracted a record-breaking throng of 39,821 persons, representing all the age groups.

One of the highlights of a memorable program came when Warren Buck, recently returned from his 21st animal-hunting trip to Africa, pulled the cord that officially opened the season on Monkey Island.

The monkeys, as if sensing that the big crowd demanded something a little extra of them, put on a great show that tickled the oldsters as much as the youngsters who tagged along after them.

Then, too, there was a Zoo circus, with clowns and performing animals, an exhibition of falconry by Lieutenant and Mrs. Daniel P. Mannix and a concert by the Girard College Band.

A good-sized crowd was on hand when the gates opened at 9 A. M. and the line outside the turnstiles grew longer as the day progressed. The previous high attendance was 38,858 in 1943.

Highways Inquiry

few remaining miscellaneous matters before final adjournment.

Outside of receiving and acting upon routine communications between the two branches which previously had been reported "missing in transit" or inadequately prepared by clerks, the principal action required on new legislation was adoption of a conference report on a Senate bill increasing from $1.50 to $2 the annual fee for resident fishing licenses.

A dispute over disposition of the additional 50 cents was ended by the House agreeing to the bill's original provision that the money be used for acquisition of land and trout waters, construction of ponds and dams, and to aid problems relating to better fishing.

Other measures Martin is in position to sign as result of legislative completion at the last all-night sittings, include:

Hare-Lee-Sollenberger bill to equalize State subsidies to school districts and providing $27,000,000 more for the 1945-47 biennium than in the current two school years period, for establishing a $1,400 annual starting minimum salary for lower paid categories of teachers in all districts and increasing many other mandated pay schedules. Increased subsidy for Philadelphia is stated as $1,585,000; the only actual salary raise there is a $100 added yearly increment for elementary teachers.

To Buy Toll Bridges

Authorizing acquisition by the Commonwealth of ten toll bridges over streams entirely within Pennsylvania, at cost not to exceed $7,000,000. Traffic tolls to be abolished immediately.

Construct William Penn memorial and other buildings for State Library and Museum in Capitol Park area, $6,500,000.

Abolish the General State Authority created in 1935 by former Earle Administration; Commonwealth to take over all buildings constructed by Authority and retire $48,870,240 of outstanding bonds.

Further regulate bituminous coal strip (open pit) mining operations, confined to central and western Pennsylvania.

The House Democratic minority brought about defeat of a Senate-approved bill favored by the Governor, authorizing institution districts to receive and maintain patients afflicted with mild mental disorders now confined in overcrowded State hospitals, the Commonwealth to make reimbursement.

A similar fate befell the Senate Crowe (R-Monroe) bill to permit local option referendum on operating ice skating rinks, including hockey games and exhibitions, on Sunday after 2 P. M.

The school subsidy measure went through the Senate unanimously, while only six votes were cast in the House against concurring in Senate amendments.

Freed Pilot, Wife who Remarried Mark Time on Problem of Future

Neither can Decide what Course to Follow Till They Talk it over

Mrs. ROBERT A. McDOWELL

A. P. Wirephotos

Lt. HAROLD W. GOAD

Calcutta, May 7—(AP)—Lieutenant Harold W. Goad, 27-year-old bomber pilot from Portsmouth, Ohio, whose wife remarried after he was declared officially dead by the War Department, says he wants to talk with her before he decides what course to follow.

"I would like to get a telephone call through to my wife," he said. "I just can't decide anything until I talk to her."

Goad's plane exploded over Japanese-held Burma, October 14, 1943, after he dived out of formation to prevent damage to other craft in his squadron. Goad was blown through the roof of the fuselage and, with two other members of his crew, survived. Others in the formation had reported there was not a chance that any of the crew had lived.

The three fliers were taken captive by the Japanese. They were in prison for 18 months. At the expiration of 12 months the Army reported Goad dead and, six months later his wife was married to Naval Ensign Robert A. MacDowell.

"I thought I could take anything," Goad said as he sat on the edge of a cot in a hospital where American military personnel were taken after their liberation with the British capture of Rangoon, "but this is tougher than anything I have been through."

In his hand he held a cablegram from his wife. It read:

"Darling, am so glad to hear you are alive. Will see you soon. I love you with all my heart."

Long Beach, Calif., May 7—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Goad-MacDowell confronted with the problem of having two husbands, told reporters at the home of friends here:

"I'm faced with a decision I can't make at present. I was convinced beyond all doubt that he (Lieutenant Goad) was dead before I married again. I'm not going to make any move until I see him. I couldn't explain very much in 20 words—that was all the Government would allow me to send him."

Mrs. Goad-MacDowell said she is also concerned about sending a message to Ensign MacDowell. "You can't cover a situation like this in 20 words," she added.

UNION MEN TO BUY $4,000,000 BONDS

Other Workers Agree to Purchase Equipment for Carrier

War Bond purchases totaling nearly $4,000,000, enough to pay for two squadrons of fighterbombers for the aircraft carrier Valley Forge, were pledged today by members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, CIO, in the Philadelphia area.

The union's sponsorship of 36 planes, half of the ship's complement, was announced by Harry Block, president of District Council No. 1 of the union.

The announcement set the pace for pledges of other firms and community organizations in the Seventh War Loan drive which continues until June 30. Community participation in the drive begins next Monday.

Three other Philadelphia industrial plants have agreed to purchase more than $1,000,000 worth of additional equipment for the Valley Forge.

Men and women of the Abbott Dairies, Inc., 31st and Chestnut sts., have agreed to sponsor five torpedo bombers and three divebombers to be carried on the ship. Cost of these planes will make the firm's quota $993,517.

The cost of stocking the carrier's drug room will be met by employes of the Smith, Kline and French Laboratories, 5th and Arch sts., whose quota is $49,920.

The $10,000 to be raised by the Earle Gear and Machine Works, 4707 Stenton av., has been earmarked for purchase of a complete radio transmission set.

Part of the $2,000,000 quota of members of the Health Group of the campaign has already been pledged to pay for the Valley Forge's sick bay. The group is composed of doctors and dentists and their workers.

Meanwhile, plans are going forward for opening day ceremonies to be held next Monday as the city launches its community participation in the drive.

The role the city has played in past wars will be the theme of a pageant to be held at Broad and Sansom sts. Battle flags carried by city regiments from the day of the Revolution to the first World War will be carried over contingents dressed as soldiers of former days. Rear Admiral Milo F. Draemel, commandant of the Fourth Naval District, and Mayor Samuel will be the principal speakers.

CITY EXPECTED TO ACT ON AIRPORT LEASES

Approval by Council this Week is Forecast

City Council is expected to approve on Thursday the lease with six airline companies for operation of the Northeast Airport.

But Director of Public Works John H. Neeson states that he still is in no position to fix a definite opening date for the airport.

He said, "We still need many critical materials before we can put the field in operation. Although we hold priorities, probably the same priorities are held by others. That means we have to wait our turn for deliveries."

The last three construction contracts, those for general electrical installations, boundary facing, and grading and paving, were awarded recently. Work on them is progressing, and officials have estimated that if delivery of materials is obtained they should be completed within the next 45 days.

TANKER SAVED FROM SEA

Ship, Abandoned after Collision and Fire, Salvaged by Tug

Although abandoned and given up as lost, the tanker Murfreesboro, built at the Chester yards of the Sun Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., has come back, like a ghost of the sea.

The tanker burst into flames after colliding with another ship in an Allied convoy bound for Europe. Abandoned by her crew, the Murfreesboro was left burning.

But the ship stayed afloat and a call for aid went out from the convoy. The Navy tug Choctaw, which was 950 miles away in Bermuda, was sent to the rescue and brought the tanker to port.

VICTORIA TORRENCE

Aerialist with Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus, killed in Madison Square Garden, New York City, last night, at conclusion of her act with her husband, Frank Torrence, when she fell 60 feet to floor of arena

CIRCUS GIRL KILLED IN 60-FOOT FALL

Aerialist Slips Out of Husband's Grasp after Ringling Show Act

New York, May 7—(AP)—A woman aerialist of Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus plunged 60 feet from the ceiling of Madison Square Garden to her death last night as she was descending a rope with her husband at the conclusion of their act.

The woman was identified by police as Victoria Torrence, billed with her husband, Frank, as Victoria and Torrence. Circus officials said the accident occurred when the couple was being lowered to the floor.

It was the second mishap since the circus opened at the Garden April 4. On April 27, eight women performers fell 30 feet from high ladders. None was fatally injured.

Other Performers Hysterical

Mrs. Torrence fell face downward and landed on the tanbark in the center ring as screams and gasps of horror came from many persons in the audience. As she was carried from the arena many of her fellow women artists became hysterical. But the show went on to its scheduled conclusion.

Mrs. Torrence, a comely brunettte in her early 20s, had finished a nine-minute act on a long pole suspended by wires from the ceiling of the arena and she and her husband were starting to descend.

As was their custom, Torrence grabbed a rope to be lowered with his wife to the floor as she stretched out horizontally, her neck supported by his left foot and her legs locked around his right foot. The band had stopped playing and the Garden was in darkness, except for a strong spotlight playing on the couple.

Slips from His Grasp

Then something went wrong. As Torrence shoved the pole out of the way with his free hand and as attendants started to lower them, Victoria slipped from her husband's grasp and plummeted to the floor, her body twisting as she descended.

As his wife plunged, Mr. Torrence clutched at his left chest with his free hand and as he was lowered he placed his hand over his eyes.

Attendants carried the unconscious woman from the arena. Hospital attendants said that her head and chest had been crushed in the fall.

TRIAL OF VAN RIPER ENTERS 13TH DAY

Summations are Expected to take all Day; V-E would Delay Case

Newark, N. J., May 7—(AP)—The trial of State Attorney General Walter D. Van Riper and two others on charges of violating gasoline rationing regulations will resume today in Federal Court after a week-end recess.

Summations by defense and government attorneys are expected to take up the morning and afternoon sessions.

Federal Judge John C. Knox has announced that he will allow each defense counsel an hour to sum up, and the Government an hour and a half, before he charges the jury of nine men and three women. The case is not expected to go to the jury before tomorrow.

On trial with Van Riper are the Imperial Service Stations, Inc., a corporation which he heads, and John Praml, who managed the corporation's West Orange service station.

Praml pleaded guilty to two counts of the seven-count indictment and is being tried on only five counts. Van Riper and the corporation are standing trial on all seven.

Knox said Friday in recessing the trial until today that if V-E Day was proclaimed today the summations would be held over until tomorrow.

As the trial moves into its 13th day, the record contains approximately 540,000 words of testimony from 75 witnesses. In evidence are 75 exhibits, most of them records of the Imperial station.

Japs on Tarakan Flee to Hills, Captured Airfield Repaired

DUTCH EAST INDIES UNITS ARE AIDING AUSTRALIANS

MacArthur's Men Attack Strong Positions to West of Davao

AIR EQUIPMENT SEIZED

Manila, May 7—(AP)—Australian Air Force crews were putting Tarakan's captured 4,500-foot airdrome into shape as a potent fighter base today. The Japanese on the little island off Borneo withdrew northward into mountain positions, avoiding a showdown battle.

Capture of the field was announced today by General Douglas MacArthur, who said the Australians also had seized the center of Tarakan city.

MacArthur said the Australians, aided by Dutch East Indies troops, had to use tanks, demolitionists and flamethrowers to reduce a maze of pillboxes and interlocking tunnel strongpoints on Tarakan Hill, in the heart of the city.

MacArthur's communique reported 11,028 more Japanese dead had been counted and 462 more prisoners taken in the Philippines during the week ended May 5 as against 391 Americans killed and 1,323 wounded. The period covered the capture of Baguio, on Luzon.

This brought enemy casualties to 355,093 for the Philippine campaign, which began last October. American dead, wounded and missing total 37,482.

On Mindanao Island, Major General Roscoe B. Woodruff's 24th Infantry Division attacked strong Japanese hill positions west of captured Davao city. Considerable air force equipment was seized and several naval guns were silenced.

In central Mindanao, Major General Clarence Martin's 31st Division, with close air support, moved on the big Japanese air base at Del Monte.

On northern Luzon, Major General Charles L. Mullins' 25th Division, after a four-day assault, occupied most of Kenbu plateau, the last big hill mass south of long-contested Balete Pass. Planes swept northern Luzon with 370 tons of explosives.

SOBER REJOICING ASKED BY U.S. ON V-E DAY

Government Requests that War Workers Stay on Jobs

Washington, May 7 — (AP) — Sober rejoicing is the Government's official prescription for V-E Day.

Fred M. Vinson, war mobilizer, wrote it in these words:

"Numerous citizens and local officials have inquired whether the Federal Government looks with favor upon local celebrations, following the termination of hostilities in Europe, which interrupt the normal course of business.

"The Federal authorities will not attempt to prescribe a rigid rule of conduct, but rather incline to entrust the matter to the common sense of the citizenry and their local officials. The Federal Government does, however, request that there be no interruption of war production, and no greater interruption of normal activity than the peoples' sense of sober rejoicing demands."

They sank two large oilers, a medium freighter, a small cargo ship and left three others sinking. Three more were left burning. Nine small freighters and a lugger were damaged.

Raid is 17th on Jap Mainland Island since March 27

Guam, May 7—(AP)—Airdromes on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese mainland islands, were attacked by about 60 Marianas-based Superfortresses today. Good bombing results were obtained in clear weather.

The B-29 raid was the 17th on Kyushu since March 27, when Superforts began their campaign against staging bases from which the Japanese have launched attacks on American positions and shipping at Okinawa, 325 miles to the south.

Three B-29s were lost and between eight and 15 enemy interceptors shot down in Saturday's triple raid against Kyushu airfields and the Hiro naval aircraft plant near Kure. Tokyo reported 25 Superforts laid mines in the Inland Sea Saturday night.

All of Germanw's Baltic shores were cleared.

In Germany, northwest of Berlin, armored columns were rapidly cleaning up all territory on the eastern bank of the Elbe and it was believed that at the rate the Russians were going they would be across the river from the Americans at Magdeburg within a day or so.

On the northern flank Marshal Gregory Zhukov's First White Russian forces were joining up with the southern wing of Rokossovsky's Second White Russian troops, mopping up the Wittenberger and Brandenburg areas.

Zhukov's prisoner bag, which was 17,120 yesterday northwest and west of Brandenburg, swelled to nearly 25,000 by this morning. The Russians were out all night bringing in Germans.

RESCUED OKINAWA VETERANS RETURN

1,000 Victims of Sinkings are among 3,000 Brought Back by Transports

San Francisco, May 7—(AP)—Nearly 3,000 men, women and children, all warriors or victims of war, were back in America today from far-flung points of the Pacific.

This number included 1,000 survivors of Navy ships sunk off Okinawa. All returned here Sunday aboard two transports.

The first ship through the Golden Gate was one bearing 195 liberated prisoners from the Philippines and 350 Army and Navy personnel, 29 of them survivors of an unannounced ship sinking.

The second brought the 1,000 Okinawa survivors and 1,400 Seabees from Guam, both parties due for extended leaves at home. The Okinawa veterans had been rescued after the sinking of the U. S. destroyers Calhoun, Dickerson, Halligan, Emmons and a number of landing craft.

Survivors of the sinkings came home attired in odds and ends of clothing. They will be re-outfitted at Treasure Island before leaving for their homes.

Nearly half of the 195 from the Philippines prisoner camps were under medical care and among them were a number of British citizens.

PORTUGAL BREAKS TIES WITH GERMANY

Reich Envoy Notified as he Leaves Services for Hitler

Lisbon, May 7—(AP)—Portugal severed diplomatic relations with Germany yesterday on the ground that there no longer is a legal government in the Reich.

German Minister Adolf von Hallen was notified of the Portuguese government's decision as he was leaving the legation chapel after memorial services for Adolf Hitler.

The German legation, chancery, consulate and propaganda bureau were sealed by the Portuguese government.

Apparently Portugal had waited for the Hitler services to be concluded before acting.

All German activities ceased promptly, including those of DNB, the German news agency, throughout Portugal. The German diplomats may embark on the Swedish exchange ship Drottingholm which is still anchored in the Tagus River. There was no mention of any sailing date for the ship.

said Blum and Schuschnigg had been spirited away from an Alpine prison camp at Itter Castle in Austria by the Germans just before Americans of the U. S. Seventh Army arrived there.

Group Includes Clemenceau

Members of the French group returning to Paris included Leon Jouhaux, head of French trade unions; Francois de la Rocque, head of the extreme right anti-German Nationalists, and Michael Clemenceau, son of the World War I statesman and a nephew of General Charles de Gaulle.

British notables released with Winant—all of whom said they were going to London as soon as possible—included Lieutenant Viscount George Henry Lascelles, nephew of King George; Captain Lord Buller-Fullerton-Elphinstone, nephew of Quenn Elizabeth; Captain George Alexander, Earl of Haig, son of the World War I commander; Lieutenant Charles William, Earl of Hopetoun, son of the Marquess of Linlithgow, and Lieutenant Matu Duhamel, a relative of Prime Minister Churchill.

Winant, also returning to London, had been shot down over Muenster on October 10, 1943, on his 13th mission as a Flying Fortress pilot.

Existence of the Itter prison camp was revealed by the famous Basque tennis ace Jean Borotra, who escaped and made his way to American lines.

City Officer Drives to Castle

Major John Kramers of 426 Glen Echo road, Philadelphia, had tried to reach Itter Castle but was turned back. Then he met a 12th Armored Division tank commanded by Captain John Lee, of Norwich, N. Y., who drove up to the castle, where they stayed overnight.

Next day the 36th Division's 142d Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Marvin Coyle, of Rahway, N. J., left for the castle.

About that time Borotra made contact with Lieutenant C. J. Reinhard, of Montrose, Calif., who passed him on to Colonel Coyle.

Another company was ordered up a back road with Borotra as guide.

Lieutenant Henry Hodes, of Allentown, Pa., walked up the road, with his tanks following. Then doughboys spread out in the hills around the castle and moved in to find the famous Frenchmen.

Daladier said that Edward Waiter, hated head of the Dachau death camp, killed himself and was buried on the slopes below Itter Castle.

Just one week ago Waiter put a bullet through his heart—and lived—but sent another bullet in under his eye and died, Daladier related.

Winant, Jr., son of the U. S. Ambassador to Britain, all just liberated from a Nazi prison.

The American meal, elegant in comparison with their fare in prison, pleased the French guests, but they hesitated over the American apertif.

It was whisky.

VETERANS FACE U. S. DRAFT

Ottawa, May 7—(AP)—Defense headquarters said today that discharged Canadian army personnel who establish residence in the United States are liable to induction in the United States Army.

ARMY PLANS 'LEAK' STIRS HOUSE GROUP

Rep. May is Aroused by Premature Discussions on Demobilization

Washington, May 7—(AP)—Torn with dissension over leaks from behind its closed doors, the House Military Affairs Committee sought additional details today on the Army's demobilization plans.

It faced a tough assignment. There wer indications that Army officers who talked freely last week might be reluctant to do so again.

One member said he doubted "if the Army ever again will feel free to talk to us confidentially after what happened last week when all the details of the demobilization program were in the newspapers within a few hours."

The chairman, Representative May (D-Ky), said he did not know who was responsible for the leak but that he intended to find out. May added he would start today's closed-door session with a blunt invitation to loose-tongue members to leave.

Talkers Warned

"Any member who can't keep in confidence vital information given to us in confidence at our own request should get off the committee," May said.

Among details of the demobilization plan the Army has not get given the committee is the value of points under which an estimated 1,300,000 men will be selected of the 2,000,000 total to be demobilized within a year after Germany falls.

Committee members want to know the order in which these factors will be given consideration: total length of service, length of foreign service, combat record and dependents. They also are seeking more information on future draft calls.

The War Department told the committee last week of its plans to demobilize 2,000,000 men and to retain 6,968,000 after Germany's defeat. It followed this up Saturday night with an official announcement it said had been forced by the committee's disclosures.

Point System is Basis

The announcement said 1,300,000 of those to be mustered out will be released under the point system, the others to be discharged for various reasons such as disability and age.

Combat units to be sent from Europe to the Pacific will, insofar as is possible, be transferred by way of this country with furloughs up to 30 days allowed when military considerations will permit. Most service units will go directly from Europe to the Pacific theater, with no stop in the United States.

In announcing that draft calls will remain higher than combat losses to permit more veterans to be released, the Army said inductions will cut into ranks of men now deferred for one reason or another.

Foreign Duty for All

The announcement also reiterated previous assertions that all physically fit soldiers in this country who have never been abroad will be assigned to foreign duty as quickly as possible.

On the basis of the Army's plans, an estimated 650,000 men to be demobilized are in Europe, 433,000 are in the Pacific and 217,000 are in this country, most of them with overseas service records. All are combat troops.

The 6,968,000 men to be retained will include not only the force to be turned against Japan but also an estimated 300,000 to 400,000 to be left in Europe for the occupation of Germany and an undetermined force to be kept in this country.

Sees Big Force in Few Months

Army Headquarters, Pacific Ocean Areas, May 7—(AP)—The United States will have "a sizeable force" of Army troops in the Pacific within three to four months after V-E Day to speed realization of V-J Day, says Lieutenant General Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commanding Army forces in the Pacific Ocean areas.

In an interview, the general declined to say specifically how many troops will be shifted into the Pacific by next fall for use by General Douglas MacArthur, chief of the Army's "on to Tokyo" forces.

The Allies in the Pacific probably will not need as many troops as were thrown against Germany, Richardson said, and those coming over from Europe won't require any special indoctrination for fighting the Japanese.

"Japan is like Europe," General Richardson observed, "in that it is civilized and not full of jungles. It has roads, telephones and cities just as Europe has."

FLAGS OF 3 NATIONS FLY OVER TRIESTE

Americans, New Zealanders and Tito's Partisans Move in

Trieste, May 7—(AP)—The Stars and Stripes flew over troubled Trieste today along with the Union Jack of the New Zealand troops and the red, white and blue of Marshal Tito's Partisans as American doughboys moved into this trouble spot which Tito's men claim for Yugoslavia.

This delicate situation arose in the Adriatic port when Tito's Partisans pushed across the Yugoslav border and spread Partisan guards over the area embracing Trieste and Gorizia and roughly all of the territory east of the Izano River.

The Partisan men and women in varied uniforms, all bearing the red star of Tito, were stationed in all of the villages throughout this territory and they still were moving in yesterday past the long convoys of American troops taking up their positions in roughly the same area.

The red, white and blue Partisan flag with a red star in the middle fluttered from thousands of windows, and Partisan slogans were painted on walls throughout the disputed area.

Many villages which formerly had Italian names already bear new Yugoslav names, with the old communal sign painted out.

Miami, May 7—(AP)—Eighteen 12,000-pound locomotives ferried piecemeal across the Atlantic two weeks ago by Air Transport Command planes are now hauling supplies for Lord Louis Mountbatten's forces in Burma.

Twenty-seven A. T. C. transport planes were used to speed the 18 knocked-down freight haulers from the Miami field to Burma.

GEN. BRAUN'S GRAVE FOUND

Air Officer Was Buried in Italy, Apparently by Germans

Bologna, April 23—(Delayed by censorship)—(AP)—The body of Brigadier General Gustav J. Braun, assistant commander of the U. S. 34th Division, who was shot down in a small observation plane last March 17, was found in a marked grave just south of Bologna three days ago.

Braun had been interred apparently with full military honors by the Germans in a small valley just west of highway 65, near the hamlet of Colla Selvamaggiore.

Over the grave had been placed a large wooden cross with the red bull's head emblem of his division burned into the wood. Next to him was buried Sergeant Larkuis Cunningham, of Hammond, Ind., pilot of the place carrying Braun.

Both bodies were removed to an American military cemetery.

AMERICAN PLANES TO POLICE EUROPE

Strong Force to be Kept Abroad for Duties in Post-War Occupation

London, May 7—(AP)—All indications here point to the fact that the U. S. Army is preparing to retain a strong air arm in Europe for police and transport duties long after the end of the war.

While there has been no official announcement concerning the size of the Allied occupational air force, it is estimated unofficially that it probably will require a total of between 75,000 and 100,000 men in the ground crews alone. The force will be composed of both American and British planes and personnel, though not necessarily in equal numbers.

Presumably the American contingent will be drawn from both the Eighth and Ninth air forces and will be retained in Europe for varying periods, depending both on the needs of the moment and the previous length of service of individual members.

The Eighth Air Force, commanded by Lieutenant General James H. Doolittle, is a strategic branch consisting of heavy bombers, Flying Fortresses and Liberators, and fighters.

The Ninth Air Force, commanded by Lieutenant General Hoyt Vandenburg, is composed of a variety of aircraft fighters, light and medium bombers, troop transports, cargo carriers and hospital planes.

Doolittle's heavy bombers, based in England, are reported preparing to move to former German air force airdromes in Germany.

All the Ninth Air Force planes already are based on the Continent.

The main purpose of the post-war air police will be to help maintain order in Germany. If everything goes well, many of the battle-worn heavy bombers probably will be pressed into service as cargo carriers and transports.

After the last week there can be no doubt about their adaptability to the job. Coming to the rescue of starving Dutch civilians, several hundred Flying Fortresses, Liberators and R. A. F. Lancasters dropped 9,550 tons of food over Holland in eight days. In two days the Lancasters brought back to England more than 2,000 liberated prisoners of war.

Many good values in Used Cars are advertised today in The Bulletin.—Advt.

HIMMLER ORDERED DACHAU MASSACRE

Captured Papers Show he Wanted no Inmates to be Taken by Allies

Sixth Army Group Headquarters, May 7—(AP)—Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler ordered evacuation of the notorious Dachau concentration camp on April 14 and the extermination of all of its inmates to prevent any witnesses to Nazi inhumanity failing into Allied hands, the Sixth Army Group said in an official statement.

The commander at Dachau suggested to Himmler that the camp be turned over to the Allies, last night's announcement said it was learned through documents seized by the U. S. Seventh Army. Himmler replied with an order prohibiting such a move, and concluded, over his own signature:

"No prisoners shall be allowed to fall into the hands of the enemy alive. Prisoners have behaved barbarously to the civilian population at Buchenwald."

The Buchenwald camp, one of the worst Nazi murder prisons, was liberated by the Americans the week before the Himmler order was written.

The commander's name was not given in the statement but he may have been Edward Waiter, who committed suicide at Itter Castle a week ago today after having gone there from Dachau.

No explanation was given immediately why the camp was not evacuated as ordered by Himmler and why stacks of dead prisoners and long rows of the barely living victims were left to betray the Nazi brutality.

WAC MAY TALK HER WAY OUT OF GUARD HOUSE

Army to Hear her Story before Acting on Charges

Camp Edwards, Mrss., May 7—(AP)—A WAC private who wed an Arkansas convict and overstayed her extended honeymoon furlough, was detained at this post, awaiting Army disposition of her case.

An Army spokesman said last night the Private Mary Delena Bailey, 20, returned some time Sunday and that disposition of her case will depend upon her story. Any action against her wild be initiated by her commanding officer, he added.

The Wac, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., married John R. Bailey, Jr., of Malvern, Ark., after she had obtained a furlough for him from the Arkansas State Penitentiary, where he was serving a four-year sentence for robbery.

The couple had never met until shortly before their wedding.

After being "introduced" by mail by another Wac, Private Maxine Bailey, sister-in-law of the convict, they began writing each other.

While the young Wac was awaiting action for overstaying her furlough, Bailey was reported ~~unable~~ to find a room and was staying at a Bourne police officer's mother's home nearby.

NAZIS KILLED 4 MILLION AT CAMP, SOVIET SAYS

Asserts Oswiecim Exceeded all others as Murder Scene

London, May 7—(AP)—The Moscow radio said today that more than 4,000,000 persons of various European nationalities were killed by the Germans in the Oswiecim concentration camp in Poland.

The broadcast quoted the Soviet Extraordinary State Commission describing the camp as "far surpassing all hitherto known German death-camps in its elaborate equipment, technical organization and mass-scale extermination of people."

"German professors and doctors conducted here mass experiments on perfectly healthy men, women and children," the report said. "They conducted experiments in sterilization of women and men, experiments on children, experiments on artificial infection of masses of people with cancer, typhus and malaria and they tested poisons in live people."

Emigres in Bern Claim to be Enemies of Nazis; Program Outlined

By PAUL GHALI

(Special Despatch to The Bulletin)

Bern, May 7.—"Freies Deutschland," a committee of German emigres who claim to be old-time anti-Nazis and fervent Democrats, is making a vigorous bid for the leadership of post-war Germany on a platform of a communal economy and justice for victims of Nazi persecution.

Most observers here are doubtful about this self-appointed group and call its members "German nationalists of the worst reactionary type." The French diplomatic and consular corps has been ordered by Paris to avoid contact with the committee's agents here, who have been particularly active.

The committee contends that its influence has increased sharply in occupied Germany, and that its ideas, therefore, are worthy of the consideration of the Allied high command when the problem of how Germany shall be governed arises.

Recruited From Workers

Freies Deutschlanders are particulary numerous, the committee says, in Russian-occupied regions where its members are recruited from the former workers' trade unions of the Deutsche Arbeiterfront, instituted by the Nazis after their seizure of power in 1933.

The Russians are said to have entrusted the administration of several villages and towns to local trade union leaders with satisfactory results. The unionists have not been accorded such powers in British, American and French occupation zones but centers of the movement are active in Frankfurt-am-Main, Nuernberg, Mannheim and Stuttgart, according to committee representatives.

The committee has four immediate aims:

1. That the German people themselves pass judgment on those guilty of war crimes against anti-Nazi Germans.

2. That important administrative posts be entrusted to Germans who have fought actively against Nazism, or have been in concentration camps as a result of their anti-Nazi feelings.

3. That workers' and peasants' trade unions with neutral political tendencies be established at once. The Freies Deutschlanders suggest that the administrative framework of the Deutsche Arbeiterfront could be used for this, contending that the Nazis have always been a minority in the union organization.

Plan for Reparations

4. That all German industrial concerns belonging to societies or inviduals be transformed into co-operative societies, with part of their production and profits to be earmarked for gradual payment of reparations incurred in foreign countries by the Nazis.

5. That the reorganization of Germany be based on the principle of communal life. The committee formerly advocated a centralized organization of Germany.

The latest program resembles that of Germany's old Federalist party which took the stand that communes were the nucleus of the nation's political life.

The names of the Freies Deutschland committee are still secret, as is the origin of their funds.

WAR SLAVES LOOT FALLEN CITIES

Liberated Workers make Best Use of Chance to Rob Former Masters

By WALTER T. RIDDER

(Special Despatch to the Bulletin)

With the U. S. Seventh Army in Germany—(delayed)—If you follow hard on the heels of the combat troops, you see some strange and wonderful sights in a newly captured city. It makes for a pretty good carnival, although the German people probably don't appreciate it as much as does the impartial observer.

For instance, there's the German butcher I saw in Nuernberg the other day. A Russian slave laborer had broken into his shop and had set aside for his personal use a considerable portion of the butcher's stock. He had the butcher backed up against the wall and was waving a clever wildly in the air.

"Fifteen months I worked for you Germans," he shouted in bad German. "One month," he screamed, and drove the cleaver into the wall just above the butcher's head. "Two months," he intoned, and slashed at the wall just behind the butcher's ear. The ghastly count went on with the butcher avoiding the deadly thrusts only by the most desperate jerks.

His First Good Meal

After the 15th near-miss, the Russian literally kicked the butcher out of the shop and settled himself contentedly to enjoy his first good meal in heaven knows how long.

A large department store warehouse containing clothing, linens, toys, household goods and musical instruments also has been "liberated" by our troops. A vast horde of freed women slaves descended in force on the place and fought each other in their frantic search for loot. They ceased fighting themselves only long enough to throw out bodily the German women who sought to help themselves. Thereafter, the women posted sentries at the gate to make sure no German could get in.

If the freed laborers saw anything they wanted, they just took it. They threw Germans off their bicycles and rode away in splendor; they helped themselves to German motorcycles and whatever cars were available; and they plundered freely the German stores.

Popular Plunder

The American combat troops captured articles with more discrimination. There are certain items which they seek, the most popular being pistols and cameras. Invariably the first shops to be searched by the G. I.'s are the photographic stores, where precious film and fine German cameras are usually to be found.

Roll Down Stairs as Bag Burns and Arouse Sleeping Family

Colfax, Wash., May 7—(AP)—Fire started by a short circuit threatened the Oscar Steiger home while the family was asleep.

The flames reached a cotton bag of marbles. The bag burned, the marbles rolled down the stairs, and the family awakened.

They caught the fire in time, put it out and went safely back to bed—all thanks to a few marbles.

LESS-THAN-COST FOOD SERVED BY RED CROSS

Large Portion of Supplies Given Servicemen without Charge

Washington, May 7 — (AP) — American troops overseas each month are now getting these things at less than cost, the Red Cross said today.

More than 1,640,000 complete meals.

9,000,000 snack lunches.

680,000 lodgings.

Basil O'Connor, chairman of the Red Cross, declared in a statement that the Red Cross policy of charging servicemen for meals, lodgings and snacks in its clubs was established at the beginning of the war in compliance with the wishes of the War Department.

He added that a large portion of food supplies bought by the Red Cross is distributed free in Red Cross mobile installations, in service hospitals, at ports of embarkation, to casual forces and patients in transit and in the field by Red Cross workers.

PUZZLED GERMANS LIVE AS IN A DAZE

Even Those in Uniform Pity Civilians, who can See no Future

By L. S. B. SHAPIRO

With the British-Canadian Forces in Northern Germany, May 4—(Delayed)—It is not only the German state, now prostrate and shattered, that is like a body with its nerves quivering in its open wounds.

The German people, once the most orderly and disciplined in Europe, wander aimlessly like herds of cattle on the roads and amid the ruins of their cities. Most of these civilians don't know where they are going, or why.

They are pitied even by the Germans in uniform, who feel slightly superior because the soldiers, at least, know that they have a destination, the nearest Allied unit to which they can surrender and from whom they will receive food and treatment as prisoners of war. The German civilians only walk on and on, and whimper in their confusion and distress. They are so broken in spirit that they make an apt foreground for the mountains of rubble through which they move.

Unbelievable, Unparalleled

This is the unbelievable, the unparalleled, scene in northern Germany. It is an ugly scene. Retribution, however, just never is pretty.

West of Hamburg, a German naval captain in a prisoner-of-war cage burst into tears as he regarded the refugees shuffling along the road nearby. His senior staff officers stood around him and dabbed their eyes. A soldier guarding them looked away disgustedly.

"They were tough enough for five years," he said. "What the hell are they crying for now? They asked for it, didn't they? We had better take these blokes to Belsen or to Buchenwald, where they'll really find something to cry about."

But the war's end did not interest the civilians. For them it was ended seven days ago. They are only interested now in how they will eat and whether the Russians might come to this area.

Anti-Hitler Feeling

All the German prisoner cages I visited were rife with anti-Hitleria, which led to a suggestion by an American colonel attached to the Allied Military Government that if the prison camps in America still contain ardent Nazis, they should be sent to Germany to see what Hitler has done to their country and their people.

I asked a German vice consul to comment on the news of the surrender of the German forces throughout this area. He said: "It is no surprise. I knew this was coming since Stalingrad. It was only a matter of time."

Thus the war is ended, and with it the German nation has died. It is now a community of hysterically whimpering people, trudging along roads toward a future as dark as the clouds out of which a cold, pelting rain is adding nature's ironic garland to their idiotic adventure.

Music in Review

The Spring concert of the University Glee Club took place in the auditorium of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation on Saturday evening. Numbering about 50 male choristers, former members of various collegiate singing organizations, the club gave an excellent account of its resources before an audience that was large and enthusiastic. John Thomas conducted; Edward Rhein, well-known baritone, appeared as guest-artist, and Oscar Eierman functioned effectively as accompanist.

Mr. Thomas and his associates collaborated in an attractive program. Highlight included two choruses from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman;" a group of Italian folk songs, and Elgar's "Feasting I Watch." A choral arrangement of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee" and Moussorgsky's "The Song of the Flea" also scored. Mr. Rhein established himself in the audience's favor with an aria from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro;" lieder by Beethoven and Richard Strauss, and numbers by Deems Taylor and others.

Just quit, fold your hands and decide you've done a lifetime's share of work . . . while there's so much work to be done? That's not for "Little Katy" . . . she's much too enterprising!
Luckily for us, she chose to start her second career with a job in our restaurant kitchen, keeping that big, active workshop shining clean. And she's made good. You should just hear her fellow workers sing her praises! For Katy's cleaning is a dramatic performance that delights us all. You'd think she was chasing demons! Woe betide any speck of dust that might mar her housekeeping of the storeroom. Mere cleanliness isn't enough for her . . . everything gets shined to mirror-like brightness.
Thanks to Katy, all the other "Katys" and everyone else concerned with our kitchens . . . managers, assistants, dietitians, cooks and helpers . . . kitchen cleanliness is something you can take for granted at Stouffer's. Anything else would be an affront to the pride of our people. They all cooperate in a never-ending crusade to keep things as spotless as though they expected you momentarily for a critical inspection. BOMB BOX-SCORING BOOSTED RECORD

Major Keating Tells how Point System Helped Shots and Morale

Major PHILIP J. KEATING

Atlantic City, May 7.—Establishment of a box score on bombing results boosted accuracy of the 15th Air Force as much as 100 per cent, Major Philip J. Keating, former B-24 pilot, disclosed today.

Major Keating, whose home is in Ventnor, is here at the Army Air Force Redistribution Station awaiting reassignment after commanding the 88th Bombardment Group of the 15th A. F.

The bombing box score, he said, was as American as baseball and the point system no sooner had been installed than decided improvement were noted.

"Give the boys an incentive," he said, "and something to shoot at and they'll be that much tougher. There's no substitute for healthy competition."

The ratings and standings of each group were printed each week in 15th Air Force newspaper, "Bomb Blast," he said, and created widespread interest. It not only boosted the morale of air crews but also the ground force men who had been plugging away and doing a good job for two or three years.

One of the best ratings made by his group, Major Keating said, was scored on the Schwecht synthetic oil works in Vienna.

"We completely demolished that plant," he said. "A good average is between 60 and 65 per cent. You can understand how the boys felt after that one.

"Particularly since we had made a raid over the same target with relatively poor results. That's how the point system helped. The boys were eager to learn from every mission. They listened to advice like a rookie to a baseball manager."

A Tokyo Jibe at Berlin

THROUGH the Tokyo radio Japan gravely censures Germany for contributing to its own downfall by unwise diplomacy. It says that Berlin policy actually consolidated instead of weakening co-operation among Germany's enemies.

The broadcaster admits that "with few exceptions the nations of the entire world are enemies of Japan." Could Tokyo diplomacy have had anything to do with that?

In the years in which it was hatching out the schemes that led to the Pearl Harbor treachery Japan was lavish with provocations to both Russia and Britain. It wrangled incessantly with Moscow over the Chinese Eastern Railway, and finally put on pressure that led to the sale of Russia's interest to Manchukuo, Tokyo's puppet. It tolerated frontier bickerings that at times led to actual war.

It insulted England repeatedly, and subjected British nationals to indignities that made the blood of even the long-suffering Chamberlain boil. It did everything to insure that if these two nations ever found occasion to war with Japan, they would go to it with zest, and a hearty determination not to permit a soft peace.

Even to nations in no way opposing its schemes, Japan has been insolent. Spain, which strove for amity with the Japanese, was forced to break relations this year because of a murderous outrage against the Spanish consulate.

When Tokyo rebukes Berlin for unwise diplomacy, an old saying comes to mind. One about Satan rebuking sin.

Italy Fears for Trieste

RIOTS in Rome between Communists and those Italians who were demanding that Italy retain Trieste and other territory it had held at the head of the Adriatic give a foretaste of the controversies that will cause headaches to the peace negotiators. The Yugoslavs want Trieste, but American and British troops, as well as Tito's Partisans, have entered the city.

More grief is coming to Italy from the French, who demand a Mediterranean coastal strip on the eastern side of the previous Franco-Italian border and have sent troops into Ventimiglia, in this area. The French plead need of protection from another stab in the back.

Anti-Fascist Italians make no claim to retain any of the Mussolini additions to their empire, but demand restoration to them of pre-Fascist acquisitions. They seem to have British backing as far as the Adriatic territory is concerned; but on the general colonial situation British governmental statements have not been encouraging to the Italians.

The Italians hold that European stability requires that their country and empire be not diminished in size or influence. If territory acquired in the pre-Mussolini period is taken away, they say, grievances will be created which will add to the general disquiet out of which future wars may be bred.

It is all part of conditions which threaten to revive balance of power quarrels and emphasize the need of effective work at San Francisco for international security.

Destroying the Evidence

IT may be difficult to convict some of the lesser criminals of the Nazi gang for lack of evidence acceptable in court. Reversing the familiar legend of the fisherman, it will be the smaller fish that get away.

For years they have done their part in the scheming and plotting, the oppression of occupied countries and the plundering of their peoples. But it is probable that most of the records of their machinations and misdemeanors will have disappeared when the day of reckoning comes. Much of the evidence has been destroyed by bombings and burnings during the course of the war. In other instances the Nazis themselves have taken care to get rid of the record.

It is reported that the German Legation in Stockholm has done a thorough job of housecleaning its files and archives. There was so much stuff to be destroyed in a hurry that a crematory oven was borrowed to expedite the process. Eleven tons of papers were burned. Gone up in smoke is a collection of documents which might have kept historians happy for years of study and research.

In the long run it may be better so. The ugly story of the Nazi rise and fall will be told a thousand times. But the last chapter is what really matters. A detail in it is the desperate haste of the Nazis in Stockholm to destroy the written evidence of their crimes, cruelties, schemings and stupidities.

Rundstedt Reflections

MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT gives us a picture of how the Allied military effort looked to a high ranking enemy officer who had the responsibility of meeting it. It is one thing for those on the sidelines to express opinions of what the Allies or the Germans should have done; it is another matter when you have the job of making decisions.

Von Rundstedt gives the answer to those who were inclined to minimize the effects of Allied air attacks on Germany. The captured Marshal says it was the destruction of his communications by Allied bombers which stopped any serious German counter-attack in Normandy; and the same type of bombing foiled the Nazi attack in the Ardennes in December.

Our air force did not knock out Germany in any single dramatic raid, but the process of attrition gradually robbed the enemy army of its mobility.

Von Rundstedt also thinks more highly of the British Navy than some of its critics. He gives it credit for guarding England against invasion after Dunkirk. Sideline observers might have been willing to transport an Army through hostile battleships. Von Rundstedt was not.

Second Term for Mayors

SUPPORT by Republicans of the Charter amendment to permit a Philadelphia Mayor to serve a second term is said to be based on their belief that Mayor Samuel is their best bet in the next election.

Yet in the Legislature the vote for the change was 201-0 in the House and 48-1 in the Senate. Were Democrats perhaps thinking of victory in the next mayoralty election? The thought is one calculated to put Mayor Samuel on his mettle to turn in the best possible record.

The amendment deserves, of course, to be appraised in impersonal terms. It strikes down a rule of long standing, the original reasons for which may have lost much of their force.

There used to be a fear that an executive eligible to succeed himself would use his appointing power to insure his succession. If the public avoided that danger by making a Mayor ineligible for a second term, it likewise deprived itself of further service from a Mayor who might make good in his first term.

As merit systems are introduced and gain in strength the danger of political exploitation of public employes declines. Philadelphia's merit system is far from preventing political exploitation, but it offers even now a powerful deterrent to any Mayor who might want to use the power to hire and fire for his own personal advancement.

Rentals and Assessments

CITY Council has adopted a resolution requesting the Board of Revision to take cognizance of "numerous unwarranted increases in rentals of commercial properties" and to increase assessments where the increases are considered exorbitant.

The action recommended is entirely too special to form the basis of assessment practice. The Board of Revision would promptly run into legal trouble if it attempted to single out for assessment boosts those property-owners suspected of profiteering.

Assessments can legally rise if values rise. If values rise for commercial properties, they rise whether the properties are rented or not and whether the rents are increased or not. Nor is there any ground for limiting assessment rises to commercial properties if residential properties are likewise advancing in value.

While the resolution can hardly be taken seriously by the Board of Revision, it hints at a disquieting underlying situation. Commercial rents, not subject to any control, are rising, and prices of residential properties are likewise soaring. How long the Board can avoid taking cognizance of this is a question. Its caution is understandable. Nobody remembers the last inflation of assessments and subsequent deflation with any pleasure.

Distinguished Service

PHILADELPHIA women have rendered no more outstanding and unselfish help to the war effort than by participation in the Red Cross Allied Prisoners of War Food Packaging Service. Because of the freeing of thousands of prisoners as a result of the collapse of Germany, this humanitarian agency will end its activities at the close of this month.

The good the agency accomplished can hardly be measured by a count of the packages daily dispatched to our men in prison camps. As confirmation comes of the harsh treatment and inadequate rations given our men by the Nazis, it is clear that these packages saved the lives of thousands of Allied soldiers.

This volunteer agency in Philadelphia attained a degree of efficiency in organization and production which would give it a good rating in industrial management. The women who answered the call of their Government for this service of mercy not only worked unsparingly for a good cause, but they labored intelligently.

Philadelphians will long remember with pride those who worked without pay that the lives of our soldiers might be spared.

Blood Plasma's Value

I have been reading a great deal lately about the shortage of blood donors and I should like to quote from a letter from a young Medical Corpsman somewhere in Germany:

"If you could only see how much good blood plasma is doing. It really makes you stop and think when you see a fellow come into the aid station looking more dead than alive and going out talking and looking normally all because of a couple of pints of blood plasma. If the folks back home could see this thing happen I don't think they would have to go around begging for donors. They would have more than they could handle. I don't know whether you know it or not, but the donating of blood is one of the most important things you or anyone could possibly do."

Sweden's Love for Peace

Since returning to the U. S. from Europe with one and one-third legs and a bad disposition I have seen and heard many strange and funny things. Mr. Davidson's complaint about Sweden not being in on the San Francisco fracas is not the least of the funny things. I'll say they're peace loving — they would prefer slavery anytime to fighting. They would be utterly useless in case Germany wanted to start another war—which they will, of course. My ancestors were Swedish.

Disputes in the Open

Allow me to congratulate The Bulletin on your fine stand in behalf of international co-operation.

I am convinced that the nations of the world can live peacefully if we really want to. One of the first steps in our fight for enduring peace is to rid ourselves of the feeling of superiority a lot of us have. Our neighbors in other lands are essentially the same as we are with much the same hopes and desires. It will be to our mutual advantage if we learn to accept these people as part of the great family which inhabit the earth.

The great conference at San Francisco and the others to follow will make the rules we are to live by. The fact that there are disputes means nothing as long as they are kept in the open. The delegates are faced with a gigantic task and they deserve all the support we can give them.

Would Let Europe Starve

We notice where Judge Samuel Rosenman has requested, and intimated to the President, that the American people must ration even more to feed the starving peoples of Europe. We admit that the plight of these unfortunate peoples must be sad. But, are we our brother's keepers? Isn't it about time the people of Europe depended upon themselves? Isn't it about time that Uncle Sam ends his Santa Claus policy? Some people, you know, the more they are given, the more they wish and expect.

The American people must eat also, Mr. Rosenman should be reminded. No one is giving the American taxpayers anything. We are about at the end of our rope as it is, so that the starving millions of Europe may eat.

Airing Better Music

Referring to several letters you have published on radio music—which was certainly beautiful during our Presidential mourning period—many of us have wondered where all those fine records and transcriptions came from and where they have disappeared. One of the writers, M. N. P., suggested that lovers of good music "let themselves be heard through the press." That is a splendid start, but let us go still farther and go direct to the sponsors and broadcasting stations, with specific requests for such good music as can be broadcast in the length of time the sponsor can give. The requests for cheap music are being answered, so undoubtedly those for good music will be too, if sufficient are received.

Seamen's Bill of Rights

I am a merchant seaman from your city and I want to say a word for getting up a Merchant Seamen's Bill of Rights.

Some of us young seamen want to finish school after the war. Other shipmates have been injured and need hospital care for life. All of us would like the assurance of post-war employment rights.

These things have been recommended by Admiral Land and put into a Bill of Rights for us (H. R. 2346), and we really deserve them. General Eisenhower himself praised us for our efficiency and devotion in delivering the goods.

Trade and Peace

In our quest for peace, it may prove disappointing to count too much on the type of tariff, high, low or reciprocal, or even free trade to resolve the conflicts between nations arising out of their quest for world markets for the surplus goods of their unbalanced economies. We are hardly ready to allow an international body to control foreign trade, and a private world government, through an enlarged system of cartels, is unthinkable.

Balanced economies in self-sufficient nations or groups of nations forming natural economic units might be a powerful antidote for both war and internal strife. This can be readily achieved in United States. Britain with her dominions and colonies has the potentialities. Russia could reach this goal with directness. China is due for industrialzation. Europe lends itself to natural economic units. High standards of living could be developed within these communities held together by enlightened self-interest.

The interchange of ideas through travel and education may be a stronger force for peace than the interchange of goods. Foreign trade is not the safest road to peace.

Horns on Tomatoes

I see that old "Battle Ax" McMurters is at it again. Too bad he hasn't anything else to do but kill defenseless cats. If he needs cats so bad for fertilizer for his garden, he should take a broom and go and clean out all the dirty alleys in Philadelphia, and I'm sure he could get plenty of fertilizer that way. As for digging that second hole—he ought to throw himself in it and I'm most sure all the tomatoes that came up would have horns on them.

Ruined Flower Borders

The person signing himself "In a Stew" has my hearty sympathy. For several years, after a lot of hard work setting my flower borders in order, I have had the choicest spots ruined by neighbors' cats.

I find the majority of owners display the same do-nothing-don't-care attitude that the person did who said that she didn't know what she could do about it. Well, I know what I can do about it and I am going to do it, for I have found a humane and legalized way of catching the pests and disposing of them, too.

If the owners don't show the flower lovers and bird lovers any consideration, but act like selfish children, let them take the consequences.

I like Mr. Murters' forthright ideas on the subject. So do my entire family. We thoroughly enjoy his letters and hope they will appear more frequently.

Killing Black Markets

Now that less and less meat is available for even such points as one has, I wonder how much longer the people are going to put up with those who patronize black markets and with the operators of them. For just as long as there are people who boast of getting rationed goods without points, and there are those who say to them, "How lucky you are," instead of "How disgusting you are," will there be a dearth of meat through the regular channels so that each could get a fair share.

It is amazing that people as a whole do not realize this, nor realize how soon they could stamp out this whole odorous business. Even one week of strict adherence to rationing by all could put the skids under these rats who deserve no better a fate than Mussolini. The OPA has done a marvelous job as a whole when one remembers the profiteering of the last war, when no rationing was in effect, but daily its work is being wiped out by the very people who scream the loudest as they pay high prices for rationed goods without stamps.

The morn may still awaken
When wars shall be no more;

And close the bitter score.

Carbon for City Water Not a New Idea—Adventure in Purchasing a Brush

By PAUL JONES

LAST week we printed the recipe of a veteran reader who told us how to retain sound health for 80 years and more. He said you were all right if you drank six cups of black coffee per day, ate plenty of bacon, scrapple and pork chops, and took care to consume large quantities of Philadelphia city water.

For the negative side of this fascinating debate, we now introduce another customer:

"I am quite in accord," he says, "with his advice to drink six cups of black coffee as an antidote after a slug from the faucet, and also with his statement that one should drink more city water than blended whisky. But I do not hold with his opinion regarding straight Bourbon or real Irish, although I, too, lived across the street from a blending plant for 55 years, and took no harm from it. . . .

"My recollection of Chief McLaughlin's statement, as reported in the newspapers, is that the city will now treat the water with carbon. Hell—that is what the upstate anthracite miners have been doing for us for years—free, over Judge Ladner's objections. Can't we get together on a new board to keep the members from trying to go north and south at the same time?"

We feel that our correspondent scores an undeniable point. It is a solemn thought to reflect that all the black silt choking the once lovely Schuylkill is really healthful carbon, put there to purify the water. Adding more of the stuff at the pumping stations might appear to be painting the lily, gilding refined gold and carrying carbon to Carbondale, but that criticism could come only from people who believe you can have too much of a good thing.

Carrying It Unwrapped

The other day, remembering that for some time we have been intending to fix a chair, and had in fact got as far as purchasing a pot of stiff glue (well begun is half done), we made up our mind to buy a small brush.

A good workman needs good materials, and we ransacked two or three hardware counters, before coming up with a small wire-handled brush for which we paid five cents. We always say it's false economy to put your money into inferior tools.

Be that as it may, we are here to state that this was a small brush. A midget could have put it in his vest pocket and sailed through the French customs without fear of detection.

"Let me wrap it for you," said the courteous attendant.

"That's all right," we said, handing over the nickel. "It'll go in my overcoat pocket."

"You mean you don't want a bag?" he asked, tempting us with a handsome paper sack.

"No," we said firmly, remembering a poster we had seen in Washington—Help Win the War, Carry Your Purchase Unwrapped.

Here we had a chance to share some of the feelings of men in foxholes, and this well-meaning merchant wanted to deprive us of our austere pleasure. We must admit we wavered, because we are very "suggestible," as the educators say, and we were fraid we might break down his morale, just to keep up our own, which would be sort of selfish.

For once, we held firm; although it occurred to us on the way out that we ran some risk of being logged as a shoplifter, we took that risk without flinching.

We have no doubt whatever that the paper shortage is a serious affair. Among our immediate circle of acquaintances, we number Boy Scouts who have collected and turned in thousands of pounds of the stuff. Meanwhile, you frequently have to fight off people who want to bundle everything up in stout paper. This, of course, is one way of ensuring its speedy arrival on a salvage dump. But hardly the quickest.

Meeting the Sugar Crisis

A lady we heard about went to a large luncheon given by the members of one of the uniformed civilian auxiliaries. Toward the end of the meal, when the speeches began, and while the waiters were dozing against the wall, a woman next to our informant reached over the table, and glommed a sugar bowl.

She next opened a capacious handbag on her lap. Inside it was a box. She removed the lid, and poured the contents of the sugar bowl into the box. Then the lid went back, the purse snapped shut, and the empty bowl returned to the table.

We were much impressed by this method of meeting the crisis in sweetening. Once more, we reflected that nothing can down the dauntless ingenuity of the pioneer woman.

As an American, we would like to feel that this spirit is something specially American, but a friend of ours once told us that he had observed the same resourcefulness in a lady from one of the Balkan states.

It was, in fact, the celebrated Marie, Queen of Romania. She was having tea one afternoon in an English country-house, and our pal happened to be sitting next to her. Between them was a small tabouret, on which rested a silver cigarette box.

Presently, the Queen indicated she could use a gasper, and our friend passed her one, noticing as he did so that they were of the finest Macedonian tobacco, Balkan Sobranies, in fact. Their quality did not escape the royal palate, and a few minutes later, she sneaked out a hand, captured the box, and dumped its entire contents into her handbag.

We will now propose the usual toast—The Ladies, God Bless 'Em.

GALLUP POLL—

Conscription of German Labor in Greater Favor

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7.—Reports of German atrocities are apparently having their effect on the desire of the common people to deal sternly with Germany.

A coast to coast study reveals a substantial increase in the number of persons who favor the proposal that three or four million German men should be required to go to Russia and rebuild cities which the Nazi armies blasted to ruins.

The Russians have been insisting on this plan for the use of German labor, and the late President Roosevelt, when he returned from Yalta, gave the proposal his support. There has been a steady trend of public opinion in this country in favor of it.

A significant finding in the poll is that a very substantial majority of labor union members approve the idea of forcing German labor to rebuild damaged Soviet cities, despite the fact that prominent American labor leaders have opposed the plan on the ground that authorized "enslavement" of workers anywhere is a threat against the principles of labor unionism and economic freedom.

The poll results for the nation, with the trend of sentiment since last year, follow:

"After the war should three or four million German men be required to spend two or three years helping rebuild cities in Russia which they have destroyed?"

In the Day's Work

Post-Graduate English

IT was 4 P. M. Time for Mr. John Z. Squinch to get to work on the correspondence that had been on his desk since 8.30. He took up the first letter and buzzed for his secretary, Bettina Pringle, who was due to quit for the day at 4.30.

Bettina came in with her notebook, and Mr. Squinch motioned toward a chair. "Supersteel Specialties, Inc., Mansfield, Ohio," he began. "From your letter of May 4 we draw the implication—"

"Inference," murmured Miss Pringle.

Mr. Squinch scowled at her over his spectacles.

"We draw the implication," he went on, "that you are dissatisfied with our last shipment. We assume that some of this has passed into production. You may return, at our expense, the balance—"

"Remainder," the secretary said, as if talking to herself.

Mr. Squinch scowled at her. "I," he said, with emphasis, "am writing this letter."

"Yes, sir," Bettina remarked. "Supersteel will be sure of it."

Her employer ignored this crack and resumed: "—at our expense, the balance. We assure you that if the quality of the shipment is what you infer—"

"Imply," said Miss Pringle.

"—we shall take preventative measures against a recurrence of the condition."

"Preventative?" Miss Pringle grimaced. "That's an irregularly formed doublet. Possibly you mean 'preventive.' "

"Listen," said Mr. Squinch, exasperated, "are you working here as my secretary, or are you running a school? I learned English before you were born."

"Yes, Mr. Squinch," said Bettina, sweetly. "I just thought maybe you would like to take a post-graduate course. If you'll excuse me for saying so, I have always felt that the letters that go out from Esco, Inc., ought to be impeccable, in order to uphold the dignity of the firm. But of course if you think otherwise your instructions will be obeyed. I shall be glad to type your letters exactly as you dictate them."

"See that you do," he said, sharply. "I don't like your tone at all."

Mr. Squinch felt rightly that he had put Miss Pringle in her place. Manlike, his ego inflated, he related the incident in detail to Mrs. Squinch that evening.

"She's a saucy thing," Mrs. Squinch agreed. "But she was absolutely right."

"How you women stick together!" was Mr. Squinch's only comeback.

Do Yanks' Pin-up Girls Menace Home and Happy Marriage?

MOST of us have wondered how and why pin-up girls boosted the morale of our soldiers and sailors. But if the pictures of movie actresses and cloak and suit models and cover girls, whom they have never seen in the flesh, are a solace and an inspiration to the lads on the fighting front, we are all for them having as many of them as they want.

Now, however, one of those deep thinkers, who always arises to upset our beliefs just as we have gotten comfortably settled into them, declares that instead of the pin-ups being Joan of Arcs who are going to lead our troops on to victory, they are going to be a menace to G. I.'s future happiness and a bomb under his doorstep will blow it to Kingdom Come.

For, says this student of human behavior, in their long absence from home and those they love, the G. I.'s have lost their realistic snapshot of things and people as they are and they see them only through the rosy picture their fancies paint. Thus every man's own home becomes a palace, and the wife or girl he left behind as pulchritudinous as the pin-up girls upon whom he daily feasts his eyes, and who establish his ideal of what a women should really look like.

Having spent months and months and months contemplating the pictures of the most glamorous of the feminine sex is no preparation for coming face to face with just the plain, mill-run of it, and the wives and sweethearts of servicemen are going to find it just as hard to win their men away from the pin-up girl picture standards as it was after the other war to get the boys back on the farm after they had seen gay Paree.

But, trivial as the pin-up girl episode is, it fills us with dread and fear and pity for the disappointments that the soldiers are bound to have when they come back home. It is going to be as disillusioning and heartbreaking an experience as it is to go back after years of absence to the place where we were born, and to find that the palace of our childish memories is little more than a shack.

The soldiers are always writing back that they want to find nothing changed. They want everything to be just as it was when they left, but that is impossible because change is the law of life. Nor was there ever any such place as the one to which they want to return. That is a creation of their fancies. They have made a dream world, flowing with milk and honey; with easy money; with success handed to every man on a silver salver; with politicians who are honest; with women who are beautiful and loving and kind and men who are honorable and altruistic.

But, alas, there is no such Elysium this side of Heaven. There is poverty and want, and graft and greed, and all the weaknesses and sins of humanity, just as there have always been. And many an idealist is going to wish that he could go back and gaze at the pictures of his pin-up girls, instead of staring reality in the face.

Know Your United Nations

ETHIOPIAN law courts often are held out in the open and each man acts as his own attorney. Judges wait on street corners for cases and are paid from wagers made on their outcome. Ethiopia has supplied by lend-lease, tractors, lorries and cars to the British troops in North Africa. Invaded by Italy in 1935, she conquered Egypt in the 8th century B. C. A camp was set up for Greek refugees in Ethiopia after Greece was occupied. Bands of patriots were organized with the co-operation of the British in 1940 and helped to rid the country of the Italians. The country supplies food to neighboring nations and to those in the Near East. Emperor Haile Selassie returned to Addis Adaba, capital of Ethiopia, exactly five years to the day after his exile began. His ancestors are reputed to be directly descended from King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Let's Have a Party and Study History

SPELL-BOUND and wide eyed, these school children at the Philadelphia Art Museum look at a lantern slide picture of Lincoln and hear the words Lincoln spoke on the need for all men to be free. No need to say "Pay attention to your history lesson" to these three absorbed little girls, Carmela Manfre, 2222 S. 22d st., Annette Boffa, 11, 2002 S. Beechwood st., and Eleanor Goodwin, 2039 S. Beechwood st., all 11 years old.

Besides seeing the leaders of America, these children relive the epics of the Nation—the trek across the western plains, life on the Mississippi, all accompanied by appropriate folk music. The whole is woven together as a story by Jack Bookbinder, on the staff of both the Museum and the Board of Education.

The youngsters study American history, too, through the medium of art. Below a group of students looking at a display of native art—that's a Pennsylvania Dutch baby at the top left. Students are, from left, Mary Ann McCann, 2450 S. 28th st.; Thomas McGinnon, 2028 S. Hemberger st.; Evelyn Hawk, 3012 Mifflin st., and Alan Dash, 2416 S. 21st st.

ONCE upon a time they called it civics, or maybe it was American history. School children learned it by rote, and many an agonized tear was shed over memorizing municipal bureaus, legislative procedure, American Presidents or battle dates.

It would have been hard to persuade the schoolmarm of grandmother's day that the time would come when children would learn about America by looking at beautiful pictures and listening to folk melodies—or that children of ten, 11 and 12 could laugh loudly and freely during their lesson.

But this is what has been happening to Philadelphia school children today. And they don't call it civics or history—they call this business of looking at America through the eyes and ears of our painters, craftsmen and song writers "American Field Day." It's held at the Philadelphia Museum of Art on the Parkway and is a joint project of the Museum's Division of Fine and Industrial Arts.

Of course, the project at the Museum does not attempt to take the place of standard courses in the schools. It is, instead, an effort to supplement textbooks with a deeper appreciation of the meaning of the American way.

In the words of Fiske Kimball, director of the Museum of Art, the project was originated because of the need for "encouraging young people to take pride in their varied national and ethnic backgrounds; strengthening the fabric of democracy by rediscovering the inspirational elements of our character and culture as revealed in the lives of our most memorable leaders as well as in the arts that reflect the spirit of the common man in America."

Ties that Bind

Sponsors of the program hope to illuminate the strong ties of similarity that bind us closely to other peoples throughout the world," Mr. Kimball adds.

This spring, 6,782 students from 59 public schools attended the two-hour "class" at the Museum. They came from high and elementary schools, in groups of about 200 students, a different group participating every school day for a period of six weeks.

According to E. M. Benson, chief of the Museum's Division of Education, the telling of the story of America through the combination of these various art forms is an achievement unique to the Philadelphia Museum. The program will be resumed and, if possible, expanded the next school term.

Leave Her to Heaven

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

OH, I may be wrong, may be doing her a terrible injustice," the letter continued, "but if I am, you will never see this letter. For I am leaving it with Mr. Carlson at the bank here, enclosed in a sealed envelope on which I shall write:

"'This is to be opened if after my death my husband remarries.'

"Inside the envelope I shall put a note to Mr. Carlson instructing him that if Mr. Harland marries Ruth, he is to mail this letter to you; but if Mr. Harland marries someone else, Mr. Carlson will destroy this letter unopened, for I will be proved to have been wrong.

"So if you ever read this letter, you will know that I was right, and that Ruth poisoned me.

"Ruth was in love with Mr. Harland almost from the beginning, but at first he loved me. You know my father's hobby, so there was arsenic in his workroom at Bar Harbor, and also in the house at home.

AFTER Mr. Harland's brother was drowned, I stayed at Bar Harbor while [illegible]. Harland went to Back of the [illegible]n. You remember you came to see me there. That was 'maid's day out' and Ruth cooked dinner, giving us trays. Mother was in bed, and we all ate in her room. Ruth and I had our trays on the card table, but when I was about to sit down she caught my arm and said: 'No that's my place. This is yours.' Yet the trays were, as far as I could see, exactly alike; lamb chops, salad, and apple pie sprinkled with confectioner's sugar. I think there was arsenic in the sugar on my pie, for that night I was taken sick. I seemed to be burning up inside, and I was terribly thirsty, and yet I could not even keep water down.

"But I recovered. We were to have a baby, and Mr. Harland and I—even though we grieved for Danny—were happy that fall. But little by little I saw him turning from me to Ruth, going almost every day to see her.

IN the spring I lost my baby, but I lost Mr. Harland too, for after that he put me out of his life. I tried to win him back, and we planned a fishing trip together, but he insisted that Ruth go with us; and even the guides must have noticed that he preferred her company to mine. During the forest fire which caught us on the river they were together, and they slept that night in each other's arms.

"A few days ago, Ruth tried again to poison me. We had dinner at her apartment and she made a curry, and served our plates in the kitchen and brought them in to us. I saw traces of white powder on my curry but thought nothing of it. She must have used too much, or not enough, because though I was sick for days, I did recover.

"I suppose she will try it again, and perhaps succeed, but I can't seem to care, for Mr. Harland no longer loves me, and I'm tired, tired, tired. If I die during his visit in Bar Harbor, I think it will be because she gave me arsenic. I think she must have kept some of Father's when we sold our Boston home after Mother's death, or she can get it from his workship in Bar Harbor.

WHEN we were girls, we shared what is now her bedroom, in the southeast corner of the second floor of the Bar Harbor house; and the baseboard was loose in the corner by the east window, and we pried it out and dug into the wall behind it and made a secret hiding place there. If she has arsenic hidden, it may be there. Here in Boston, of course, she doesn't live with us, so she could hide it anywhere.

"If I die, and if Mr. Harland does not marry Ruth, I may be mistaken. But if he does, then you will read this letter, and you will be able to find some way to punish them. I've told Mr. Carlson I want to be buried in Mount Auburn. The books says you can always detect arsenic poisoning even years after death. If she does kill me — she's always hated me, as adopted children often do hate the real sons and daughters—please try to punish her, if only for the sake of the promise I once gave you. I've wept many times because I let Richard persuade me to break that promise.

"Goodby, Russ. I always loved you." "Ellen."

QUINTON finished and Mr. Shumate took the letter, handit to the clerk. He spoke to Quinton. "That is all."

Mr. Pettingill approached the witness stand. "By the way, Brother Quinton," he remarked. "You said you and Ellen were friends. Pretty good friends?"

"Yes."

"How friendly were you?"

"We were engaged to be married."

Ruth looked quickly at Mrs. Parkins. Her eyes were downcast, her cheeks blazing.

"When was that?" Pettingill asked.

"We became engaged immediately after her father's death."

Quinton's face was white.

"What happened to break it up?"

"She decided to marry Mr. Harland."

"You mean she was still engaged to you when she went to New Mexico?"

"Yes."

"Did she let you know she was going to marry Mr. Harland?"

"Yes."

"Invite you to the wedding?"

"No."

"Did you go to Mexico?"

"Yes."

"To the wedding?"

"They were married and gone before I got there."

Mr. Pettingill nodded contentedly and sat down. Quinton left the stand. He consulted for a moment with the Attorney General, then addressed the court.

"We call Joseph Catterson," he said.

I DO NOT SEE YOU

I DO not see you very much,
And yet you always hold my hand.
Encouraged by that cheering touch,
I can meet every day's demand.

Your gaze is warm across the miles;
I feel your thoughts encircle me.
The healing of your words, your smiles,
Is present in my memory.

I may not see you all year long,
But still I never am alone.
I hear the echo of your song.
I feel your strong hand in my own.

Meet Andreyeva, Woman President of Soviet Republic

ZOYA ANDREYEVA was born in a Chuvashian village of 350 huts in one of the most backward regions of pre-revolution Russia.

Twenty-five years later she was working overtime, teaching a people that were 82 per cent illiterate, to read and write.

Today she is chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of Chuvashia, a job which really means President of the Chuvash Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic in the Russian S. F. S. R. Andreyeva is probably the only woman President of a Republic.

The republic she heads has about one million citizens, of Turic origin. Before the revolution, says the information bulletin of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, the Chuvashi were a poverty-stricken people, who had neither statehood nor national freedom.

Andreyeva was the daughter of the village doctor. Throughout her childhood she heard him talk of the people's poverty and their need for education and enlightenment. She determined to be a teacher, received her diploma in the year of the Soviet Revolution and began to teach children in Yangorchin village.

Evenings she went to the bathhouse—the warmest place in the village—frequented by the villagers as a social center. Instead of joining in the plaintive songs, Andreyeva sat alone and read a book.

Curiosity was aroused. People asked questions. Soon Andreyeva was reading aloud to the girls and in time the circle widened to take in the whole village.

Since that time, Andreyeva has taken time out for further study in Moscow. Seven years ago she was elected head of the Chuvashia government.

Look at her country now and you will see some impressive changes. To its agriculture and forestry Chuvashia has now added industry—a synthetic rubber plant, chemical plants, paper mills, and wood-working mills. It has 1,303 schools, seven normal schools, a pedagogical institute and an agricultural institute.

In the face of that record Andreyeva has an interesting comment to make:

"The Chuvashi would never have risen to their feet if they had not enjoyed the support of the Russian people, who sent us engineers and agronomists, machines for our factories, pedigreed stock for our farms and schoolbooks for our children.

"The first thing we did was to teach our people to read and write, for we know that culture follows literacy."

Veterans' Guide

It's Easy to Prove You're Eligible for a GI Home Loan

By MAJOR THOMAS M. NIAL

IN my last two articles, I have written about home loans for ex-service people; because, so far, the emphasis seems to have been on that type. Actually, almost all loans guaranteed by the V. A. have been for home purchases.

The last figures I got showed 2,468 loans guaranteed by the V. A. Of these 2,400 were for homes, 50 for business and 18 for farms.

Anna Theresa Hayes, of White Plains, N. Y., was the first ex-Navy girl to get a home loan. She used to be one of "the girls who go down to the sea in slips"—a Wave. She left the Navy in 1944 because of disability. So she made an arrangement with a savings and loan association up in White Plains. With the help of the V. A. guarantee permitted by the G. I. bill, ex-Wave Hayes wound up with a house which she and her mother intended to use as a nursing home. Smooth, eh?

To get down to the essentials for a couple of seconds, what made Miss Hayes eligible?

She had served on or after September 16, 1940. Her service was 90 days or more (she actually was a Wave about 20 months). She was discharged or released "under conditions other than dishonorable."

That's all. Anyone with those qualifications is eligible. You don't have to have the full 90 days' service if you were separated because of line of duty disability.

These same qualifications will also make you eligible for a business loan or a farm loan. The V. A. will not only want to know that the cost to you doesn't exceed a reasonable normal value, but that you are really going into business for yourself and the money will be used for that purpose, that the property you propose to buy will be useful and necessary to your business, that your chances of success are reasonably good.

That's fair enough. If the V. A. sees it your way, it will guarantee half of the loan for whatever amount you need — subject to a maximum guarantee of $2,000.

COOKING:

Tomato Pie a Tasty Main Dish

By FRANCES BLACKWOOD

THE tomato pie has many friends in this country even though it is a dish of foreign origin.

Some of those friends may have let the memory of this old favorite slide into the dim background of pre-war delights thinking of it as one of those foods to be found only in pet restaurants, to be eaten on special dining-out occasions.

Actually though, tomato pies can make main dishes at home. To make them perfectly one must practice a bit perhaps. But even so, no first attempts at the job need be wasted. These may not look quite as they should but it is difficult for even the amateur to fail with their flavor.

TOMATO PIE

First make a dough: Crumble a yeast cake into a cup and slowly stir ½ cup of lukewarm water into it to dissolve it. Sift 1 cup of flour and ¼ teaspoon of salt into a bowl. Stir the yeast into it and then slowly add and thoroughly beat in almost ¾ cupfuls more of flour. Stir, beat, and work the flour into that dough until it works free of the bowl, then sprinkle what is left of the ¾ cupful of flour on a board, turn the dough out on it and knead it until all the flour is worked in and the dough is smooth and elastic.

Pour about 1½ tablespoons of olive oil on a large pie pan (14 inch one), or cookie sheet, and spread it evenly over the bottom using the ball of dough as the spreader. Sprinkle the bread board with a light dusting of flour, lay the dough on it again and work the oil it picked up into it by kneading. Repeat this. Thus you give the dough just the touch of oil that it needs and grease the pan at the same time. After that, lay a cloth over the dough on the board and let it rest 20 minutes. Next roll it out to make a thinnish crust to completely cover the pie plate. If you want to do it the way old hands at the game do, after rolling the dough to make it a circle you'll drape it over one upraised fist and then deftly twist, turn, and pull it until it becomes a larger thinner circle of dough, just the right size for the pan as if by magic. Lay it on the oiled tin.

Then, either set wedges of cheese or strips of anchovies spokewise around the dough. Have a tomato sauce ready that you made while the dough raised. This is made by cooking down 1 quart of tomatoes, ½ cup of sliced mushrooms and 1 cup of sliced onion to a thick sauce. Season it with salt and pepper to your taste and add a mere trace of sugar. Pour it on the dough and set the pie in a quick oven to bake until the edges of the crust are a nice golden brown.

The Life of Adolf Hitler

Fuehrer Placed Cloak of Legalism on Nazi Revenge and Aggression

Executions by SS Troops and Inhumanities of Concentration Camps Stain on German Honor

By LOUIS LOCHNER

For many years chief of the Berlin. Bureau of The Associated Press.

(Fourth of Several Articles)

WELL, we'll see," was Adolf Hitler's remark when he returned to his headquarters in the Kaiserhof Hotel, within a stone's throw of the Reich's Chancellory, at noon of January 30, 1933, to tell his inner circle of followers that aged President Paul von Hindenburg had appointed him chancellor.

The words, according to one of the men present, were spoken simply, without pomp and pose.

It was perhaps the last time that Der Fuehrer could speak without affectation. From now on he had to make good the claim to being a superman that the Nazis under Hitler's own direction had built up during 14 long years of struggle for power. Never again could he really relax.

When I try to trace Der Fuehrer's face in my mind's eye as I gazed upon it at least four times a year for the next eight years, I see it becoming more and more smug, ever more haughty, increasingly imperious, unapproachable. The days were very limited during which, as Hitler earlier had put it to me, "the latchstring is out for any party member to join me at the lunch table." The late Kaiser Wilhelm was a democrat compared with Adolf Hitler from 1934 on.

It would indeed have taken a superman to retain even a modicum of modesty in the face of the adulation showered upon the Nazi chieftain. "Whatsoever the Fuehrer does, is right," was made an article of faith for every Nazi, soon also for every pupil at school.

The Mills Grind

Never in the history of any political movement was propaganda used more extensively and onesidedly than by the Nazis. One of the first things the triumphant followers of Hitler did upon seizure of power was to possess themselves of every instrumentality for influencing the minds of men. Press, radio, news reel, legitimate and movie stage—all were seized and "gleichgeschaltet," i. e., cast into the same Nazi mould. Whenever a new building was completed, a works project started, an anniversary celebrated by an industrial concern, immediately a sign appeared on the premises, "Dies verdanken wir dem Fuehrer (This was made possible by the Fuehrer).

Hitler, a master at mass psychology, realized that he must, first and foremost, obtain jobs for those six millions of despondent dole receivers who were reaching the lowest sloughs of despair.

Hitler decided to put his nation to work by introducing compulsory labor service for every able bodied youth and by reviving the gigantic standing army of monarchical days. With the building of a gigantic war machine, German business enjoyed a revival.

However wild Hitler's prechancellor speeches may have been, he proved himself a shrewd realist in the manner in which he gradually acquired unparalleled power. Everybody had expected the Nazi-threatened "night of long knives" to follow his appointment as chancellor on January 30, 1933. Hitler's rowdy followers were most anxious to make good his threat of the "rolling heads" that very night, and to inaugurate a blood bath for the settling of old scores.

This Way, It's Legal

Hitler decided otherwise. He thought it smarter to give the world an example of discipline, of obedience to law and order. Aside from a few local excesses, no mass murders occurred. Hitler had devised a far cleverer method of punishing his adversaries: so-called legality. He simply clothed his SS-men with extraordinary powers to arrest on suspicion, hold without trial, and even execute thousands upon thousands of Germans who were thorns in the flesh of the Nazis. From this idea sprang the conception of the vile, inhumane concentration camps which stained German honor as perhaps no other single act of the Nazis did.

In keeping with this course of alleged legality Hitler also permitted Reichstag elections to be called for March, 1933, to test the popularity of his appointment. Then, late in February, the Reichstag building suddenly was wrapped in flames. A drugged Dutch half-wit, Marinus van der Lubbe, was found ready to confess himself a communist who acted with other communists to start the fire; and quite "legally" Hitler persuaded octogenarian President Hindenburg to outlaw the communist party as a result. Even then, despite terrific pressure and terrorism, he obtained only 43 per cent of the vote, and had to make a deal for a coalition with Alfred Hugenberg's German Nationalists and their eight per cent of the vote.

Thus in control of a narrow majority, he "legally" suppressed all other political parties. Then, when in August 1934 Hindenburg finally passed on, Adolf Hitler declared himself both chancellor and chief of state. But again he had this aggressive act "legalized" by a fraudulent plebiscite of more than 90 per cent of the voters.

The Nazi movement and its leader were ballyhooed by impressive pageants and festivals. The nation was kept so busy seeing and marching that millions, perhaps, did not realize what was happening to them and how, by the time the world war broke out, they had become slaves. Worse than that, they had been lulled in the false security that Adolf Hitler would keep them out of war.

All the more rude was the awakening when once again, on September 1, 1939, German armies were pouring into Poland.

P.O.W. FOOD BOXES CENTER TO CLOSE

Red Cross Agency Sent 7,000,000 Packages to Captives of Nazis

Because of the freeing of Americans held as prisoners of war in Europe, the Red Cross Allied Prisoners of War Food Packaging Service, 23d and Chestnut sts., will cease operations on May 31 along with three similar centers in New York, Brooklyn and St. Louis.

The center in Philadelphia, the first in the country, had reached a production rate of 14,000 prisoners of war food boxes a day. Since the first day of operation, in an empty factory building at 30th st. and Allegheny av., a total of 7,000,000 food boxes have been packed and shipped abroad.

Dr. George P. Rea, chairman of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Red Cross, said this is probably the first official action since Pearl Harbor to end an entire principal home front activity in direct support of our overseas forces.

The mass production methods developed by Mrs. Lloyd were adopted by the food packaging centers in the three other cities. Under the system which Mrs. Lloyd set up for some 1,025 volunteer workers weekly, 11-pound boxes filled with 22 items of food and cigarettes, rolled off two assembly lines at the rate of 45 a minute. Assisting Mrs. Lloyd as vice chairmen were Mrs. S. Leonard Kent, Jr., and Mrs. Henry H. Pease.

Ballet Russe Concludes Spring Visit at Academy of Music

By MAX de SCHAUENSEE

THE fourth and final performance of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo's spring visit, took place last Saturday night at the Academy of Music before a sold-out house. There is no doubt that Philadelphia is desirous of ballet in large doses.

Four ballets were danced, these being George Balanchine's "Serenade" and "Danses Concertantes"; the "Pas de Deux Classique," and Igor Schwetzoff's "The Red Poppy." The last two ballets were the hits of the evening.

"Serenade," set to Tschaikovsky's music with costumes by Jean Lurcat, seemed like a pretty monotonous affair. It is an abstract use of movements which integrate and flow aimlessly and lengthily. Ruthanna Boris achieved some pretty movements, and the Messrs. Danielian and Magallanes supplied whatever interest there was.

"Danses Concertantes," which followed might have been a continuation of its predecessor, except for the fact that the settings and costumes were different—the product of Eugene Berman. Stravinsky's music seems singularly labored and uninspired and the choreography adheres to this mood. Mme. Danilova, excellent as to style but spotty in technique, was present in this opus, as were Frederic Franklin, who gave the impression of being awfully pleased about something, and Maria Tallchief, Nicolas Magallanes and Mary Ellen Moylan.

The evening received a real "lift," when Nathalie Krassovska and Leon Danielian did some truly exquisite dancing in the "Pas de Deux Classique," and brought down the house.

Igor Schwetzoff's "The Red Poppy" was seen for the fourth time here, and, as in other performances, was thunderously acclaimed after the Russian sailors' dance of the last act.

Leon Danielian as the Ribbon Dancer and the lovely Miss Boris as the Dancer on the Golden Platter were again fascinating in their exotic dances. Nathalie Krassovska as the Chinese Maiden, Tai Hoa; Nikita Talin as the American sailor; Yurek Lazowski as the Russian sailor, and Michel Katcharoff as the villainous Japanese bartender, have all grown in their parts.

The large audience for the Saturday matinee performance of the Ballet Russe contained a generous representation of the city's juniors and juveniles and the program seemed well-chosen for appeal to them as to older devotees of the dance. "Coppelia" with music by Delibes and its story of animated dolls was the features. Alexandra Danilova and Frederic Franklin appeared in the principal parts. "The Blue Bird" to music from Tschaikovsky's "The Sleeping Beauty" starred Nathaline Karssovska and Leon Danielian. Plenty of color and liveliness marked the final ballet, to the music of the Polovetsian Dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor," and with Mlle. Danilova, Yurek Lazowski and Ruthana Boris in the chief roles. —W. E. S.

ALL-PHILADELPHIA FESTIVAL TONIGHT

Salute to United Nations Program to Last 3 Days at Academy of Music

The three-day All-Philadelphia Festival presenting a worldwide picture of artistic culture, opens in the Academy of Music tonight.

The title, "Philadelphia Salutes the United Nations," is in keeping with a program that runs the gamut from boogie-woogie to Chinese folk songs and will be repeated, with a few changes, tomorrow night.

Matinee performances tomorrow and Wednesday and the concluding entertainment Wednesday night are entitled "Philadelphia Schools on Parade" and are composed entirely of musical talent from the schools.

The celebration is sponsored by The Evening Bulletin Folk Festival Association.

During tonight's intermission, Dr. Katherine McBride, president of Bryn Mawr College, will speak on the significance of the intermingling of national cultures. In advance of the festival she said:

"Every activity that combines groups of diverse origins and cultures, that supplies a meeting ground for their different forms of music, dancing and other popular arts and that makes us aware of what others have done to give America culture, is needed now more than ever."

Mayor Samuel described the festival as "a great community undertaking" and Orville H. Bullitt, president of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association, praised the festival "for bringing together such community groups in a display of their accomplishments."

The program opens with a sketch entitled "Spirit of 1776," followed by three selections by the Rice Club Male Chorus of the General Electric Co., directed by Louis C. Doelp. From the Chinese Catholic Church of the Redeemer, a group of children will sing the Chinese national anthem and three traditional songs.

American spirituals and popular songs by the A. C. Bilbrew Chorus will be followed by a group of modern dances given by the Bordentown, N.J., Manual Training School.

Songs of France will be followed by selections of Gericke, Brahms and Wagner, sung by the Orpheus Club under E. Clifford Dinsmore. Filipino folk dances and Spanish folk dances will be followed by mummers' march tunes, played by the Hegeman String Band.

After the intermission, the Matinee Musical Club's vocal ensemble and orchestra will give works of Strauss, Romberg and Herbert, followed by Polish folk dances under the direction of Amelia Wojtowicz and a second group of modern dances and songs directed by Malvena Taiz.

A chorus made up of graduate nurses attached to various hospitals will be followed by the Immaculata College ensemble in songs and dances and then the "Kilties"—bagpipers band of the Philadelphia Transportation Co.—will give a group of traditional Scottish tunes.

Sacred music by the Halevy Chorus will be followed by an Italian dance group sponsored by the Order of Sons of Italy and directed by Pasquale Seneca. An Armenian group of folk dances will follow.

The program ends with traditional dances and songs by the Russian United Chorus and the Balalaika Orchestra.

A's Halt 6-Game Defeat String but Lose Final Against Senators

Quantico, Va., May 7.

HERE today for an exhibition with the Marine post team, the A's hoped to pull themselves together for their western invasion which begins Wednesday when the rampaging White Sox are encountered in Chicago.

They broke even with the Senators before a 15,602 crowd yesterday in Washington. Winning the first game, 3-2, the A's ended a losing streak which had extended to six games. Russ Christopher's hurling and Charley Metro's hitting and fielding turned the trick. Then they fell back into evil ways, bowing 2-0, before Dutch Leonard's superb pitching.

Christopher rolled up his fourth win with the handsome support given by Metro in the opener. The Senators got to Russ for 12 hits, but Charley, with a double and single, drove over the first and last A's runs and prevented two likely opposition tallies by a spectacular running one-hand catch in the fourth inning.

Carrasquel Losing Pitcher

The A's faced Mickey Haefner at the outset, but the left-hander, who yielded six hits, gave way to a pinch-batter and Alex Carrasquel worked the last three rounds to give up two hits and take the beating.

Dick Siebert opened the eighth with a double and Irv Hall sacrificed. Dick clung to third as George Kell was thrown out, but Metro, with the count 3 and 2, rifled a single to center for the big run.

The nightcap was a matter of too much Leonard. Dutch turned in a three-hit job for his second win. Frankie Hayes got one of the hits and George Kell cracked a single and a double. These were the only A's to get as far as second. Hayes stole after his hit in the second frame, Kell's two-bagger came with two out in the fifth and after he singled in the eighth, pinch-batter Larry Rosenthal drew a pass. But two were gone and pinch-batter Joe Burns lined to right field.

Charley Gassaway took the licking. He gave up eight hits in seven innings and the game was gone before the third inning finished. Joe Berry allowed a double after two were out in the eighth.

Triple For Estalella

Metro's two-bagger to center backed Kell's infield hit in the second round to give the A's their first tally in the early clash. Peck and Estalella engineered the second run. Peck opened the third with a triple and rode home on Estalella's pop to right that the wind carried away from Myatt for a single.

Singles by Binks, Torres and Zardoni in the sixth got the Senators their first score. Case's bunted single, Myatt's sacrifice and Kuhel's one-bagger tied the count in the seventh.

In the second set-to the Senators did their scoring early. Case opened with a single and promptly stole. Kuhel walked after Myatt popped out, then Binks singled to right to get the tally over. One was out in the third when Myatt got an infield single and raced to third as Hayes let a pitch get away. Kuhel walked and as Binks rolled out, Myatt went home.

Giosa-Bucca Box Tonight in Met Final

Eddie Giosa and Sante Bucca, South Philadelphia neighborhood rivals, come together in professional competition for the first time tonight in the featured ten-round bout of promoter Jimmy Toppi's boxing show at the Met Opera House.

Termed a "natural" by the fans, the match was nearly two years in the making. Toppi first tried for it when Giosa and Bucca were beginners in pro ranks and he kept renewing his offers until he finally succeeded a couple of weeks ago. Once he bid a total of $2,250 to the two Italian lightweights and was turned down. Tonight they will fight for a percentage of the gate, with no guarantees.

It will not be their first meeting in the ring. They traded punches once in an amateur tournament, Giosa coming out with the decision after three close rounds.

Between them, Giosa and Bucca have engaged in more than 60 battles and lost less than ten. Each ran up a winning streak of more than 20 straight bouts before suffering defeat for the first time.

Five six-round bouts comprise the supporting card, the semi-windup principals being Leon Szymurski and Jimmy Long. The preliminaries include Frank Feener vs. Charley Howley; Johnny Fry vs. Ernie Frazier; Willie Weasel vs. Talbot Anderson.

Club Swinging Title Protested

Philadelphia contenders in the national AAU Indian club-swinging competition Saturday night at Jersey City will formally protest the victory of 15-year-old Margaret Dutcher, of Ridgewood, N. J.

Mrs. Roberta Ranck Bonniwell, Helm McKee, Kay Geary and Marian Twining, who finished in that order back of Miss Dutcher, say the winner included no "rhythmics" in her routine, although it is a must in women's club-swinging competition.

Penn State's gymnastic team won the title in their division, the victory being all the more remarkable because the team abandoned drills after Penn State abandoned the sport as a war economy. Ed Hobart, a Naval trainee from Philadelphia, was a member of the winning squad.

Pelicans' 32-Run Win Sets Records

New Orleans, May 7 — (AP) — Three new records were established and another tied in the Southern Association yesterday when the Pelicans downed Nashville in the opener of a doubleheader, 32-0, although the Vols took the final, 3-1.

The Pelicans' 32 runs topped the 29-5 defeat Memphis handed Little Rock in 1921; also a previous shutout record of 21-0 set by New Orleans against Chattanooga in 1930. Their 31 runs batted in bettered Birmingham's 25 against Little Rock in 1940. In the fourth inning the Pelicans used 20 sluggers and got 16 runs, tying previous marks by Birmingham and Little Rock. The Pelicans got 28 hits and 14 walks off five Vol pitchers.

Hoppe Increases Lead

San Diego, Calif., May 7—(AP)—Challenger Willie Hoppe defeated three-cushion billiards titlist Welker Cochran in both blocks of their world championship series yesterday, 60-55 in the afternoon and 60-56 at night. Their point totals; Hoppe 3,514, Cochran 3,484.

Hockey Bill Killed

Harrisburg, May 7. — A bill which would have permitted Sunday ice hockey and skating shows in the State if approved by referendum was killed in the final hours of the Assembly session. The vote was 90 to 88.

Close-Ups on Sports

By Lynn C Doyle

T. M. Reg. in U. S. Pat. Off.

THE opening of Monkey Island was celebrated at the Zoo yesterday, one day after a similar observance got under way at Shibe Park.

• • •

The Shibe Park management was more generous, however, and kept the monkey show going for two days, even though the playful little fellows from Pennock Prep were pretty tuckered after the last performance yesterday.

• • •

Yesterday's monkeyshines were not up to Saturday's, though. The Phils just couldn't keep up the killing pace of five errors a game.

• • •

After such a gallant showing, fans were considerate and agreed that seven botches in yesterday's double-header were quite enough, so long as the boys were really trying. And any unbiased witness will agree they were.

• • •

Still, if it's action you want, the Phils-Dodgers series had it. With 60 runs, 79 hits and 23 errors in two days, who could ask for more? Except, maybe, a little major league baseball.

• • •

While the A's were breaking a six-game losing streak in Washington, the Phils were completing one of their own at Shibe Park. If that is the law of compensation, we're for repeal.

• • •

The Yanks joined the company of the A's in being shutout by that Boston rookie, Dave Ferriss, who has pitched just two major league games in his young life. So yasee, folks, there are rookies and rookies!

• • •

Happy Chandler will have to bring his own welcome mat when he revisits his old Kentucky home. The Commissioner's warning against betting on the ponies has the Blue Grass burning like a prairie fire.

• • •

Well, you see, Cuh'nel, suh, the Senator was talking to ball players and you-all shouldn't have been listening.

• • •

Chandler later added that he will stay away from the tracks himself to set a good example.

• • •

When you say that in Kentucky, Happy, smile!

Bridesburg Hurler Fans 13

Bridesburg scored its fourth straight shutout in blanking South Phillies 7-0 in a Mack Conference game yesterday at 4200 Richmond st. Bud Stone fanned 13 and gave only one hit.

Crusaders C. C., last year's runnerup, outhit Fishers Jayvees ten to five, to win 8-6 at 69th st. and Dicks av.

A stellar pitching performance was turned in by Ed Zeidler, who fanned 17 as Lower Olney Jayvees beat Mt. Airy F. C. at Mascher st. and Roosevelt blvd.

Rhawnhurst A. A. continued its winning streak at 8300 Bustleton av., blanking Amity 3-0. Elmer Vearling was the batting star with two doubles and a single in four trips to the plate.

Bric A Bac sets Tia Juana Record

Agua Caliente, Mexico, May 7.—Jockey Jack Westrope guided Bric A Bac to a three-length victory in the $20,000 added Tia Juana Handicap yesterday, setting a track record of 2:02 2-5 for the mile and a quarter.

The son of War Admiral won from E. B. Johnston's Jury Box, which finished three-fourths of a length in front of Mrs. J. B. Burnstein's Okana. Bric a Bac paid $11.60, $3 and $2.20.

St. Joseph's Athlete to Command Ship

Lieutenant John F. O'Donnell, 283 S. 52d st., former St. Joseph's College football player, will be commissioned as commanding officer of the LSM 443 (landing ship medium) today at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Lieutenant O'Donnell made numerous ocean crossings during his 17 months of duty as commanding officer of a Navy gun crew on a merchant vessel.

Five Share Shoot Prizes

Frank Wall, Ben Pope and Dick Tongue, of Philadelphia; Dave Sweigart, Media, and R. R. Meli, Chester, were winners of 25-bird target matches yesterday over the Delaware County Sportsmen's traps near Chester. Wall, Pope and Sweigart broke 24s, Tongue 22, and Meli 23.

Delpark Wins Cup Soccer

Delpark defeated British United Service team, of Washington, 3-1, in a semi-final National Amateur Soccer Cup match yesterday at Front st. and Erie av. to enter the Eastern Sectional finals.

Wasdell Hunts the Ball—But Not in Right Place

Lu Olmo (left), of the Dodgers, was credited with a single when Jimmy Wasdell, Phillies first baseman, played Button, Button in eighth inning of first game yesterday at Shibe Park. It was Olmo's fourth of eight hits for the day. The Phil pitcher racing in is Anton Karl

Chandler Stands Firm on 'No Races'

Versailles, Ky., May 7—(AP)—Baseball's new Commissioner today re-emphasized his "advice" to ball players and umpires to stay away from race tracks.

"It is not immediately clear whether the Commissioner has jurisdiction over players and umpires at times other than during the playing season and affiliated times, but if anyone wants to test it—."

That was Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler's reply to a question on what action he would take if players and umpires disregard his "advice" and go to the race tracks on off days.

"My position in the matter has been clearly stated," said Chandler, apparently referring to his statements at St. Louis and Chicago.

He indicated that he was unfamiliar with what was done in past years in this respect, but added that if a complaint is made to him, or if he files a complaint on his own—which Chandler said he can do—each case will be judged on the basis of its own circumstances. He did not elaborate.

Chandler, now at his home here, had no further comment on the Thoroughbred Club of America's letter, which took the Commissioner to task for declaring race tracks off-limits for players and umpires "to avoid public censure."

The letter from The Thoroughbred Club criticised Mr. Chandler for using the newspaper medium "to convey that advice" to players, adding that "when you state that going to races is a matter to provoke 'public censure,' it definitely becomes our business."

Membership of The Thoroughbred Club of America contains some of the biggest names in the horse breeding business.

Chandler will be honored at a testimonial dinner tonight in Lexington, Ky., sponsored by the Cooperative Club of Lexington, and attended by a number of baseball's "big names" and some of the Commissioner's old teammates and friends.

Playing the Game

By Ed Pollock

IT will be interesting to see what happens to Granville Hamner, the kid shortstop who was in the big league spotlight at 17, and at 18 is in the shadows of the dugout.

Hamner fielded like an outstanding prospect when the Phillies brought him up from the sandlots of Richmond, Va., late last season. He could go a mile to his right, and coverage to his left was at least adequate. Furthermore, he had a gun on his shoulder that could fire putout throws from awkward positions at deep short.

Everyone agreed that here was a star in the making, but this season he has played poorly. Last Saturday, he cracked wide open and Fred Fitzsimmons had to get him out of there.

In the first inning he fumbled an easy grounder. Then two throws which should have started double plays popped out of his glove and his confidence went with them.

Young Hamner was so far gone he couldn't catch a thrown ball. He fumbled throws from the outfield and even the catcher's practice toss as an inning was about to start.

The Tragedy of Ridicule

THE fans were on him of course. The catcalling must have cut like a lash.

I knew it was his last inning when he walked off the field at the end of the Brooklyn third. He knew it, too, because Don Hasenmayer had warmed up in the bull pen. The kid was dejected as he walked into the dugout.

Fans who had cheered him last season were ridiculing him now. That's pretty tough for a kid who has just passed his 18th birthday.

The boos get veterans down sometimes, but they can slough off their miseries. They know that today's "bum" often is tomorrow's star.

One of the first tragedies of life is the discovery of ridicule. I still carry the memory of the first time I realized someone was making fun of me, and that was many years ago.

It doesn't hurt any more, but the scar's there. The skin toughens as the years go by, but at 18 there isn't much callus to penetrate.

Too Much Early Speed

YOUNG HAMNER was hurt inside, and unless I miss my guess, it will take him a while to get over it.

Some youngsters never overcome the first outstanding failure. It shatters their confidence and they haven't enough fortitude to piece it together again.

Others come out of it with a stronger will than ever. Determination is a confidence builder.

The trouble with Hamner is that he came along too fast too soon. Herb Pennock was concerned about that. I remember he talked about it shortly after the boy joined the club.

Hamner had been in a few games and was the talk of Shibe Park so well had he played at short.

"We'll just have to keep him in there," said Pennock. "There's nothing else we can do."

Hamner Feels the Pressure

WHAT was wrong with him staying at short? Wasn't he playing a great fielding game?

"Certainly," the Phillies' general manager replied. "He's a fine prospect, but he shouldn't be playing in the majors. What he needs is a lot of seasons coming up through the sticks."

I never could quite understand that. Wouldn't he learn more playing with big leaguers than in the bushes?

"Yes, he might learn more," Pennock answered, "but it's a tough psychological burden for a kid to carry. There's more pressure in the majors, more emphasis on every play. That pressure should come slowly through seasons of training."

Gran Hamner felt the full pressure Saturday. His confidence gave out. His future as a ball player depends on his reaction to that unhappy experience.

Phila. Stars Split Twin Bill

After blanking the Baltimore Elite Giants here 13-0 on Saturday in their opening game in the Negro National League, the locals played a doubleheader yesterday in Baltimore, losing the first 6-2, but gaining the victory in the final, 8-5.

At New York, Homestead Grays trounced New York Black Yankees, 13-3 as Josh Gibson poled a 430-foot homer in the first inning. New York Cubans lost at Newark 3-0.

Brookhattan Win Lewis Cup Soccer

New York, May 7.—Brookhattan yesterday won the Lewis Cup, emblematic of pro soccer championship, beating Brooklyn Wanderers 3-1 at Starlight Park.

Brookhattan lost the first game last week, but won the title on total goals, getting 4 to 3 in the two games.

Naval Academy Retains Sailing Title

Annapolis, Md., May 7—(AP)—U. S. Naval Academy retained its Middle Atlantic sailing championship yesterday, scoring 120 points.

Cornell University was second with 89.5 points, followed by Stevens Institute of Technology, 68.5, and the University of Pennsylvania, 66.

J. C. Snedeker, Cornell skipper, took individual honors with 59 points.

Uzcudun is Alive

Madrid, May 7—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun, former heavyweight boxer, far from being dead as reported last week, is "not even sick." He is resting at Caldas Denalavella, a summer resort. It was reported that he had been shot by Maquis.

Olmo Gets 8 Hits and Phils Err Seven Times While Losing 6th Straight

By ED POLLOCK

MIS-SPENDING the week-end by dropping four straight to the Dodgers, the fumbling Phillies ran their losing streak to six in a row yesterday and have only three victories to show for 16 games this season.

The Blue Jays got enough bad baseball out of their systems to do for a decade and entrenched themselves so thoroughly in the National League cellar they'll need block-busters to blast their way out.

Again piling error upon error, they committeed seven in the Sunday doubleheader which Brooklyn won, 7-5 and 10-7 before a crowd of 11,712 fans. On the basis of earned runs, the Phillies would have won both games, but the payoff is on total score.

Considering what happened, spectators were well behaved. Few bottle tops, paper airplanes and other missiles were tossed about. Perhaps they felt the Jays are more to be pitied than scorned.

77 Runs in Three Days

Statistics reveal lamentable performances in the five games lost during the home stand. Believe it or not, in three playing days at Shibe Park 77 runs have been scored, 60 over the week-end.

Of these 77 runs, 48 were credited to the opposition, although 23 were unearned. They sprouted from 17 Phil errors in the four Brooklyn games, and three in the single contest against the Giants. In three days the Jays have erred 20 times.

The only good thing about the Brooklyn series is that it's ended. Lippy Leo Durocher, of course, would like it to go on and on, and so also would Lu Olmo, who in 18 times at bat in the four games helped himself to six runs and 12 hits, including a homer and double.

Olmo had four for four yesterday in the opener and four for five in the finale, which ended only five minutes before the seven P. M. curfew. In the closing game, Olmo drove in six runs and lifted his RBI total for the series to nine.

The National League schedule shows blanks for the Phillies today and tomorrow. On Wednesday, the Cubs will be here for the first of the intersectional games which gives Fitzsimmons plenty of time to turn gray while pondering the plight of his club.

Fitz tried shaking up his Sunday batting order. He led off with Don Hasenmayer and followed with Buster Adams, Vance Dinges—the one bright spot in the soupy gloom—Jimmy Wasdell, Jimmy Foxx and Vince DiMaggio.

Chapman Bombarded

For one inning the rearrangement seemed just what the Phillies needed. They piled into Ben Chapman, the Dodgers' starting curver, and got him out of there in a hurry with four consecutive singles and a two-run double by DiMaggio. Ten Phils batted in the inning and scored five times.

It looked like a new world of sunshine to fans, but clouds soon gathered. Whitlow Wyatt, former Dodger veteran, made his first start as a Blue Jay and was doing all right until errors gave the Brooks three unearned runs. Wyatt had to quit in the sixth and was charged with the defeat. Les Webber, who finished and gave the Jays only two hits in the last six innings, was the winner.

Olmo's homer put the Dodgers out in front in the second inning of the finale and the Phillies never caught them. The Jays appeared to be well on their way to tie the score, but the Brooks with three hits gathered in half a dozen runs in the last three innings. Passes, fumbles, and wild throws gave them the necessary impetus.

Ken Raffersberger, who lasted seven innings, was the loser. Only two of the eight runs scored off the Phillies' left-hander were earned.

Cuccinello Homer Gives Chisox Sweep

By The Associated Press

It took Tony Cuccinello 11 years and 10 months to the day to atone for his ignominious Comiskey Park debut.

The veteran Chicago White Sox infielder made his first appearance in the Sox home grounds in the first major league all-star game July 6, 1933, as a pinch hitter for the National League, and was fanned by Lefty Grove for the final out.

Yesterday the 37-year-old third-sacker hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning of the second game to enable the Sox to sweep both ends of a doubleheader from Cleveland, 3-2 and 6-4. The twin victory gave the Pale Hose a half-game lead over the second-place Yankees, who split with the Red Sox.

"Cooch's" four-base smash made him the American League's leading batter with a .395 average, six percentage points above Vern Stephens' figure. The stocky Long Islander, playing with his fifth team in 15 years in the majors, is enjoying his best season at the plate with 15 hits in 38 at bats and eight runs driven in.

Oris Hockett won the opener for the Sox with a run-scoring single and gave Ed Lopat his second triumph. Joe Haynes won his third straight in the nightcap.

After rookie Dave Ferriss, discharged Army Air Force veteran, blanked the Yankees 5-0 for his second shutout in two starts, Hank Borowy gained the New Yorkers an even split by kalsomining the Red Sox 2-0 for his fourth straight victory.

Detroit unfurled superlative pitching as Hal Newhouser and Alton Benton hurled a double dose of goose eggs against the St. Louis Browns, 3-0 and 1-0.

The New York Giants added to their National League lead by winning the opener of a doubleheader from the Boston Braves, 4-3, and tying the second 1-1. Homers by Phil Weintraub and Ernie Lombardi in the ninth enabled Bill Voiselle to ring up his fourth victory.

St. Louis' Cardinals deadlocked Chicago for third place by winning two from the Cubs, 6-2 and 5-1. Max Lanier and Mort Cooper each won his second game of the season. Red Schoendienst, of the Cards, dislocated his shoulder in a fall in the first inning of the opener.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati split. The Reds won the opener, 3-1, for Ed Heusser's third victory and the Pirates took the nightcap, 5-1, as Rip Sewell outpitched Bucky Walters.

Wilmington Nine and Trenton Split

The Wilmington Blue Rocks retained their lead in the Interstate Baseball League yesterday by splitting a doubleheader with the Trenton Spartans at Wilmington. The Rocks won the opener, 5-4, but dropped the final, 3-2, in seven innings. Estock allowed Trenton only four hits in the first game.

Lancaster maintained its position in second place by splitting a pair with the Redbirds at Allentown. The Roses won the opener, 5-4, then lost, 9-0. Hagerstown won a pair from York at Hagerstown, 5-1 and 2-0.

Big Field for Middle States Tennis

By HELEN O. MANKIN

A large entry of girls is expected to participate in the first annual Middle States clay court interscholastic tennis championship for the Frank Zook Memorial Trophy at Cynwyd Club, next week-end.

Mrs. Ellwood I. Beatty, Jr., vice-chairman in charge of entries, says some schools are entering their entire squads. Shipley School, of Bryn Mawr, has 13 players, including Annie Vauclain, Martha Staley, Mary Lou Hollaman, Margie Houston, Lise Cresswell, Lucia Depew, Holly Hartung, Barbara Mangan, Jodie Dexter, Joan DeGripinberg, Barbara Pettit, Mercedes Zoller and Mary Jane French.

Woodbury High, champion of the South Jersey League, has entered Dolores Dolan, Betsy Claypoole, Shirley Thompson, Janet Bowers, Elise DuBois, Betty Weed and Betsy Ferguson.

Emilie Leonards and Susan Budd head the players from Baldwin School. Doris Greenwood and Alice Hess are from Friends Central and Jane Austin and Nancy Vadner from Lower Merion High.

Rhoda Joan Hopkins, of New York City, is one of the first out-of-towners to sign up.

All school girls, whether beginners or experienced players, are welcome. Entries close tomorrow. Matches start Friday at 4 P. M. and one round will be played. Competition will be resumed at 10 A. M. Saturday and semi-finals and finals are set for Sunday.

A former tennis and squash official Frank Zook, of Cynwyd, who died in 1943, was called "Papa Zook" because of his great interest in sports for young people.

Jackie Floyd Returns to Ring

Jackie Floyd, who has been absent for months from local ring competition while serving in the Army, returns to action here next Monday in the semi-windup of the Sugar Robinson-Jose Basora card at Convention Hall. His opponent will be a newcomer from Lowell, Mass., who calls himself the Blond Tiger and whose record includes bouts with Lulu Costantino, Lefty LaChance and Cleo Shans.

The bout is scheduled for eight rounds.

Three six-rounders are listed as preliminaries—Jimmy Gardner vs. Jimmy Allen, Johnny Clark vs. George Miller and O'Neill Bell vs. Lee Datts.

Clark and Bell are Detroiters who are serving as sparring partners for Robinson at the Chris Perry Elks gymnasium.

Kemoke-Farino Paired in Met Mat Match

Duke Kemoke and Lou Farino will wrestle as a team against Dominic Serio and Pat Rooney in one of the supporting matches on Wednesday's wrestling card at the Met Opera House. The program is featured by a double windup, with Natie Brown meeting Hans Kempfer and Nick Elitch opposing Angelo Savoldi in one-fall, one-hour numbers.

A 30-minute encounter between Milo Steinborn and Frank Brunowicz will open the show.

Robert Wrestles Evans in Camden

Yvon Robert, French-Canadian heavyweight, returns to action in Camden Convention Hall tonight when he meets Don Evans in the main event of Ray Hanly's wrestling show. They will grapple for two out of three falls within a 90-minute time limit.

Tony Martinelli and Michele Leone are the principals of the semi-windup number, being slated to go a half hour, barring a fall inside the limit.

Thrity-minute preliminaries are Frank Judson vs. Charley Allen, Jim Atlas vs. Fred Grubmier and Charley Strack vs. Pat Welsh. Judson and Strack are oldtimers who recently embarked on comebacks.

Sports Sidelines

New Speed Boy—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, says that his new outfielder, Joe Zardon, is the fastest man in the majors. "I would say that Zardon is a step faster in getting to first than either George Case or Snuffy Stirnweiss," Griffith commented.

Within Rights—While Ohio State has protested the action of the Cleveland club of the All-America Pro Football League, to Kenneth (Tug) Wilson, commissioner of the Big Ten, there is nothing that Wilson or the Conference can do to prevent the pro club from signing players still eligible for college football.

Busy Bill — A major league manager observed the other day that Mel Ott is working his star pitcher, Bill Voiselle, too frequently, asserting that Voiselle may get down too fine to stand the hot weather. "Voiselle is the Giants' meal ticket," the pilot replied, "and can't be pitched too often."

Getting Old—Exterminator will be 30 years old this month and the once-great race horse is not as round and spry as he was this time a year ago. Exterminator competed in 100 races and was out of the money only 16 times. He won the Kentucky Derby in 1918.

Wolgast-Febbo in Return Bout

A return eight-round bout between Johnny Wolgfast and Paul Febbo, South Philadelphia bantamweights, heads the Cambria boxing card Friday. Wolgast stopped Febbo several weeks ago when the latter suffered a cut eyebrow in the seventh round.

Four other matches are listed for the supporting card.

Russell-Evans Match Arena Mat Feature

Rebel Bob Russell will appear in an Arena wrestling windup for the fourth consecutive week when he takes on Don Evans in promoter Eddie Gottlieb's feature Friday. Russell went to a draw with Yvon Robert last Friday and before that he scored two straight victories over Dynamite Joe Cox.

Evans, who won his third in a row on the Arena mat last week by downing Abe Yourist, had challenged the winner of the main event. Since that engagement wound up as a draw, he had his choice of opponents and picked Russell.

Michele Leone vs. Rudy Dusek, meeting at 30 minutes, top the supporting card, which also will include a team match.

Books About Souls Without Surrender

The Blue Danube, by Ludwig Bemelmans—Anton, the quiet, unobtrusive, radish raiser, quietly resistant to regimentation, hero to the gentle members of churches and libraries, patient civil servants, the ever common honest common man, is a nomination for the best drawn character of the year in one of the best books of the year; a book that catches a mood, a longing that lies deep in the lives of little folks, even in Germany. "It was evident that if, in the long night in which they lived, any light would come to them, it had to come from the outside—for those within the walls who had courage and spirit were too few, too old, and much too sentimental." Humor and tragedy; romance and frustration. Another "The Moon is Down" but the locale in Germany and the little folks are crushed Germans with hopes ambushed and surrounded, cattle in the rain awaiting delivery. Tops. (Viking, $3)

The Small Back Room, by Nigel Balchin.—England liked this book about a cripple with an inferiority complex, but undoubtedly no weakling and a hero in its closing pages. It is the interesting tale of an Englishman aiding the war effort, of petty wrangling in the small back room where secret war devices are developed. Best of all is its chapter of the cripple's brave moments in taking apart a mysterious German time bomb. (Houghton Mifflin, $2.50)

From a Salesman's Notebook

By GEORGE T. EAGER

According to one successful salesmanager, a good sales presentation consists in going from known to unknown. He believes in simple, understandable ways of explaining complex subjects.

To illustrate, he cites the instance of the household refrigerator that featured the fact that the motor was hermetically sealed. Salesmen, who explained the feature in these terms, soon found that housewives did not understand what it meant and received the information with a blank stare. So the feature was explained in a simpler way. Each salesman was equipped with a small can of peaches. When he said "The motor in this refrigerator is sealed in against dust and dirt just like the peaches in this can," housewives immediately understood.

Another feature of the refrigerator was the location of the motor on top so that heat could not travel up and raise the temperature inside. To explain this feature, salesmen would hold a lighted match before prospects, ask them to hold their hand above the match and feel the heat coming up and then hold it under the match where no heat could be felt. This made it easy to explain: "With the motor on top the heat does not travel up into your refrigerator."

ETHICAL PROBLEMS

Lost Friends in War

Just Like Brothers, says "Heartbroken" who Feels He will Never Recover from Loss

SIR: Two of the boys in our neighborhood whom I practically grew up with were killed in action within the last six months. We were like brothers and losing them has broken my heart. My family says it makes them miserable just to have me around feeling the way I do. I can't seem to raise my spirits. I can't find other friends because I am so sad. How can I help myself to get over the loss of two of the best friends any fellow ever had?

Heartbroken

Friends Forgot

SIR: We are seven victims of infantile paralysis who have been confined in the hospital since the summer of 1944. During the critical stage of our illness we received plenty of mail from relatives and friends, but gradually our correspondence has dwindled to the point where we are remembered by only a very few friends. It is very hard to wait for mail day after day only to be disappointed again and again.

Stop Crying

SIR: I am married to a Marine in the South Pacific and my sister is engaged to a fellow now stationed in Europe. I try to be brave about it but she cries and carries on all the time. Her constant worrying is ruining my morale. How can I convince her that it is much better to keep your chin up and hope and pray for the best? Reds

Resents Rules

SIR: Recently we got a new principal and now our school is becoming like a prison. We aren't even allowed to cross the building after school hours from east to west even if it is pouring outside. Would readers please answer.

Loved and Lost

SIR: A certain fellow in my class often told me he loved me. I love him too but I never told him so. Last week my girl friend told him against my wishes and now he won't speak to me. We were supposed to go to a party together next week but now I don't know whether we are going or not. Jilted

(How can "Hopeful" make boy friend forget old sweetheart for whom he is still carrying a torch?)

To Hopeful: There's nothing harder to fight than a memory, my dear. You can outshine a real rival, but the recollection of a past romance becomes brighter and sweeter with the years. Your boy friend may become your fiance and your husband, but it's likely that unless you dispel this dream of his now it will haunt both of you all of your lives. I advise you to not only allow but to encourage him to see his old girl occasionally. It means taking a chance of losing him, of course, but it is a chance worth taking. And if you see to it that you are always at your loveliest and most charming, I daresay you will be the winner yet. Furthermore it will be a total victory and not the unsatisfactory compromise of being accepted as second best to a lost dream girl.

Not All Girls

("Two Purple Hearts" ask if all modern girls are uniform crazy?)

To Two Purple Hearts: I go around with a discharged veteran and many of my friends date men who have been honorably discharged from the service or who have never been able to enter the service because of a physical defect. No, I don't think all modern girls are uniform crazy. Main Liner

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

War May Cost Half Trillion

U. S. Spending Quarter Billion a Day —Allowance

What is amount of money spent per day in World War II?—(M. R.) If war lasts until June 30, 1946, total costs under existing program may reach nearly half a trillion dollars, or more than $250,000,000 a day for every day between Pearl Harbor and above date. Highest cost for any one month was March, 1945, amounting to $8,246,000,000, or $266,000,000 a day. At beginning of this year, Treasury reports indicated total cost of war since Pearl Harbor was $238,000,000,000. By June 30, 1945, costs are expected to reach $288,800,000,000. Expenditures for fiscal year ending June 30, 1946, have been budgeted at $160,900,000,000, making total budgeted cost $449,700,000,000. Actual spending by last date may be limited to $357,900,000,000, however, making daily expenditure $214,000,000.

How much does Government contribute toward serviceman's allowance of $37 for a dependent sister?—(T. D.) The serviceman contributes $22 a month; the Government the balance.

May I have a brief history of St. Elizabeth's Episcopal Church?—(M. P. S.) Founded in 1889 as a mission of the Church of the Evangelist, parish was started in a small house in Hicks st. by the Rev. Father Maurice L. Cowl and the Rev. Father William W. Webb. The new church at 16th and Mifflin sts., opened January 12, 1898, and is the first Episcopal Church in this country built by a religious order, The Companions of the Holy Saviour.

What nearby States do not require blood tests of applicants for marriage licenses?—(Reader, E. M.) Maryland, Delaware and South Carolina.

Please print a sketch of Jessica Dragonette.—(M. L. G.) She was born Jessie Dragonetti, in Philadelphia, on a St. Valentine's Day. After early death of her parents, she attended Cathedral grade school for 7th and 8th grades from St. Vincent's Home this city. Entered Hallahan Catholic High School for Girls in 1915, graduating in 1919. Through Sisters of Mercy she received a scholarship to Mt. St. Mary's College, Plainfield, N. J., and was graduated four years later. Began vocal studies in high school at age 14.

Is there a veterans' hospital, as such, in Philadelphia for treatment of discharged veterans of World War II?—(S. D.) Yes. The Naval Hospital here is designed as the hospital for treatment of discharged veterans of any war in which the armed forces of the United States have taken part.

LEGAL QUERIES

How is a claim made for refund of Pennsylvania transfer inheritance tax which has been paid?—(E. S. N.) A claim for refund of the tax alleged to have been erroneously paid must be addressed to the Board of Finance and Revenue, Harrisburg. It must be in petition form and must set forth in full all the facts relevant to the case. It must also have attached to it a copy of the official transfer inheritance tax receipt, as well as a certificate of the Register of Wills of the county in which the tax was paid as to the correctness of those exhibits. With certain exceptions all petitions for refund must be filed within two years of the payment alleged to have been erroneously made. Consult an attorney.

May a husband entering military service deny his wife the use of his automobile?—(B. H. K.) Yes; he may do so. Mere possession of the owner's card does not confer title or any rights to or in the car upon her.

Is common-law marriage legal in Pennsylvania? Is a common-law wife eligible for social security benefits?—(Mrs. S., N. A. S.) Yes, if all the requirements of the law are met. A health examination and marriage license must be obtained. The parties must be unmarried, agree to live together as man and wife, and do so for a reasonable time, holding themselves out to the world as such without any reservations whatsoever. A common-law wife may be eligible for Social Security benefits based on her husband's earnings.

How may a laundry company be compelled to pay for laundry which it lost?—(J. B., E. H. F.) If the laundry company will not voluntarily make amends upon the customer's request, suit may be instituted before a magistrate or in the court. Consult an attorney.

May the owner of a house compel his tenant to vacate so that she may occupy it herself?—(D. N.) Yes; she may do so in accordance with the terms of the lease and the local law. She does not require the permission of the Rental Division of the OPA if she had a right of possession prior to October 20, 1942. She must send the tenant and the Area Rent Office a written notice, however, stating the grounds for the action and the date when the tenant is to move. That notice is required at least ten days before time given for removal unless the tenant has not paid rent, when three days' notice is required.

Mecca for Manners

Under the direction of Miss Alverna Welch, senior councellor, the upperclassmen of Mahanoy City High have been going through various routines in table manners, conduct in public places, and introductions. Miss Welch has announced that these studes have scored perfect marks: James Madenfort, Mary Theresa Givnin, Mary Pangonis, Lois Hinkle, Charlotte Lehman, Thomas Dolphin, Joseph Lieberman, William Sticher, and Charles Nolter.

LEONARD C. MALINOWSKI

World News Scrapbook

The seventh and eighth grade students of Creighton School are deeply interested in world happenings. Many of the studes are making scrapbooks on the San Francisco Conference. Miss Horan, our principal, will put the nicest ones on display and will award a prize to the very best one.

JANET FIVES

In the eighth grade English room at Kearney School, Mrs Podolyn, our teacher, has a special board. At the top are the words "Worth Crowing About," and on each side are three roosters. Three perfect and very neat spelling papers are hung on the board. We think it's a good idea and that those studes who have their papers hung up should be proud of themselves.

JOE MESHBERG

Judging from the amount of food consumed by the girls on the hockey and basketball teams of Glen-Nor High, the recent outdoor party must have been a big success. After engaging in a game of soft ball, the 40 girls ate 150 hot dogs, with rolls, 8 pounds of cookies and 3 gallons of punch! But they ate so much that now if you just mention the word "hot dog" the girls turn pale.

Listening to the rollcall in one class at Gillespie Jr. High might prove rather amusing to a stranger. There is a Hunter and Herring—sorry there's no Fisher to complete the trio. . . . And the EEK! on Ernest Keepfer's ring is not an exclamation but his initials.

MYRA GLAUSER

After our marked English test papers had been given back to us, Miss Daniel, English teacher at Holmes Jr. High, requested that every girl in the room raise her hand. We did so, but were curious as to why. However, after she asked, "will every girl who received an E in the test raise her hand?" We understood for again every hand went up. Miss Daniel was hinting for the boys to do as well.

Bat Is the Only Flying Animal

SEVERAL kinds of furry animals have names which might make us suppose they can fly, but only one kind can fly in a true sense of the word.

Flying squirrels glide through the air, but they cannot rise by flapping wings. The same is true of the flying phalangers of Australia and the flying lemurs of the East Indies and Philippines.

The one furry animal which has the true power of flight is the bat. It flaps its wings after the manner of a bird, and may cover a distance of hundreds of feet. It is, to be sure, more awkward in flying than a bird, but it can get along in the air and at times flies swiftly.

Many persons act as if they were afraid of the small bats which fly about on this continent. Yet these bats are classed as harmless. They feed on insects, and do not bother people, animals or crops. In certain other countries there are bats which do harm, but in our land the story is different.

Some women fear that the common brown bats will become tangled in the hair. They should remember, however, that bats are experts at keeping from striking objects, however close they may fly.

It is possible that a bat has become tangled in human hair at one place or another, but personally I never have known it to happen. Dr. William T. Hornaday, who was director of the New York zoo for 30 years, said:

"I have seen thousands of bats, flying in many different places, but never yet saw one alight upon a woman's hair."

WPB READY TO LIFT CIVIL OUTPUT BAN

Cutbacks Due This Week in Quotas for Army Ground Forces

Washington, May 7—(AP)—WPB prepared today to abandon its civilian production freeze.

Indications came also that this week would bring cutbacks in war production for the Army Ground Forces.

Thus far most of the ground forces cutbacks—those in tanks and ammunition, for instance—have been paper ones. They trimmed down rising production goals for future months.

The forthcoming cuts will be actual curtailments in going production, but at the outset will be limited to such basic items as earthmoving equipment and power units.

Meanwhile, WPB made ready to offset reductions in war contracts with a limited amount of civilian manufacturing. These steps were reported by various WPB officials:

1. A spokesman said that the civilian goods freeze—which put a ceiling on non-military manufacturing programs at the level of the last quarter of 1944—was docketed for re-evaluation. In plain English, it is on the way out.

2. The Office of Civilian Requirements put in a bid for 19,000 tons of steel to be used for certain undisclosed civilian items between now and June 30. The request hasn't been granted yet.

3. A new list of 25 most urgently needed civilian articles has been drawn up for special attention in the reconversion scramble. The unannounced list is known to embrace typewriters, cutlery, dry cell and storage batteries, camera film and other items ranging from dental burrs to motor graders.

4. To discuss the effect of munitions curtailment on jobs, WPB scheduled a conference today with labor union spokesmen in the brass mill industry, thus opening a two-month series of conferences with 300 labor men in all major industries.

WPB announced Saturday night that it was prepared to grant priority help for peacetime machine tools and plant expansion worth more than $103,000,000 for 72 of the country's largest manufacturing industries.

Most of the aid, to cover only that equipment needed to bring production to a point where a plant will break even financially, will go to the automobile industry, $85,000,000 worth. Mechanical refrigerators are next highest, with $11,000,000. Some industries reported they would need little or no new equipment.

END OF WAR FAILS TO STIR TROOPS

Weary G. I.'s are Talking over one Thing: "Will I be Sent to Pacific?'

By HAL BOYLE

(Associated Press Correspondent)

With American Troops in Germany, May 3—(Delayed)—The victory over Germany finds the average American soldier curiously unexcited.

There is little exuberance, little enthusiasm and almost none of the whoop-it-up spirit with which hundreds of thousands of men looked forward to this event a year ago.

It has been a long and bloody trail—this 800-mile march from the beaches of Normandy in less than 11 months. It has drained much from the men who made it—much from their bodies and much from their spirit. They are physically and emotionally tired.

The destruction of the German armies came more slowly in this war than in 1918 when the Armistice burst with climactic suddenness, stunning the world with joy. This time there has been a series of capitulations and surrenders.

For most units there was a gradual cessation of combat as German lines melted into nothing before them or dissolved in chaos.

That has prevented any mass feeling of exhilaration such as swept through the American Army and the American nation at the close of the last war.

It also has given many soldiers days or weeks in which to think—to ponder over problems that victory in the west brings. And preeminently they are talking over one thing:

"Will I be sent to the Pacific?"

They have written the European war off the books in the Army ranks and the chief topic is what outfits will be sent around the world to finish cleaning up the Japs.

It is only truthful to report that a very small percentage of these veteran troops have any desire to go and fight Japanese. There is a great and spreading nostalgia for home and peace among the battle-weary soldiers who have walked and fought painful miles from Cherbourg to the Elbe.

Particularly, this is true among older men. Newcomers already are pretty well resigned to another year of fighting in another clime. They feel it's in the cards and there isn't much they can do but pick up their tommyguns and move on to meet the next enemy, waiting for them hidden behind the next hill or dug in deep in the next jungle.

NEW CONTRACT FOR HOPE

Comedian to Get $300,000 a Year from Paramount Studio

Hollywood, May 7—(AP)—Paramount Studio has announced that Bob Hope is back in its fold—with a new seven-year contract at more than $300,000 per year—after a six-month disagreement.

The comedian previously refused to report for work on a picture, saying he wanted to devote his time to war shows and bond drives. Hope is scheduled to start film work in August, when he returns from his fourth entertainment trip overseas.

CANCER DRIVE EXTENDED

Security Conference

Ukrainian group headed by Dmitri Zaharlovich Manuilsky, a leading economist in the Soviet. There were five in the White Russian group, headed by Kuzma Benediktovich Kiselv.

Foreign Commissar Molotov was at the airport to meet them and he was very happy. The chief delegates of both the Ukraine and White Russia have official posts on two committees but neither delegation is staying at the same hotel as the Russian delegation.

Molotov has not had anything more to say concerning the arrest of the 16 Polish leaders who set out to confer with the Russians on the formation of a new government for Poland and were arrested for "diversionary" activities against the Red Army. It is said that the matter, which isn't directly connected with the Conference, is to be turned over to President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin. If the truth must be blurted out, the San Francisco Conference is thoroughly sick of the Polish dispute. And everybody is hoping that if there are to be any more Molotov surprises in that direction, Molotov will keep them until he gets back to Moscow.

War On Japs Suggested

Apparently Molotov has decided to stay on in San Francisco a few days longer and some delegates were saying that if he really wanted to give a really pleasant surprise it would be for Russia to use San Francisco as the scene for the announcement of war upon Japan. On that Molotov was not talking.

Molotov continues to be perhaps the most dynamic figure in the conference and is having a fine time in San Francisco. Over the week-end he was taken by Henry J. Kaiser for a tour of the latter's great shipyards here. Molotov stopped to talk with the workers, including the girl welders.

One in particular was asked where she lived, how long it took her to get from her home to her work, etc. Finally the young lady happened to mention that she was married. Molotov spoke earnestly to Pavlov, his translator. Pavlov then reported that if Molotov had known that he would not have asked all those delicate questions.

The United States, Great Britain, Russia, China and France are meeting today in regard to international trusteeships. This is a quite technical subject in which the United States is largely interested because of the fact that we want to be in charge of certain military bases in the Pacific.

Only Small Areas Wanted

What has to be done is to resolve differences between the United States plan and the British plan. Commander Harold E. Stassen says he expects a formula to be worked out within a day or two. The United States would make a distinction between strategic and non-strategic areas. Great Britain would not have such a distinction.

It is estimated that 30 square miles is all the land this country wants in the Pacific, on 15 islands.

Aside from trusteeships, the other major topic to be settled is that of fitting regional arrangements into the world organization as the Big Four amendment stands. The pacts made during the war aimed at enemy states would be exempt from the Dumbarton Oaks restriction of having to go to the Security Council for approval before action against an aggressor. This does not satisfy Latin America. The Latin American countries want the Pan-American agreement drawn up recently at Mexico City also to be more or less independent of the world organization.

There is some difference of opinion in the U. S. delegation about this. One of the delegates is inclined to make some concession to the Latin-American viewpoint on the ground that the traditional Monroe Doctrine must be upheld. Another delegate is taking the view that if the world organization would keep on giving more independence to the regional setups, then finally there might just as well be no world organization, because it would mean a return to the old-fashioned separate alliances and spheres of influences.

Meanwhile 12 committees were taking up the whole batch of amendments from big nations and small today, in spite of all the fine words about the conference being wide open. These committees are meeting behind closed doors.

TRUMANS GO ON CRUISE

Spend Most of Sunday Aboard Presidential Yacht on Potomac

Washington, May 7—(AP)—President Truman took refuge from wartime cares in a Sunday cruise on the Potomac River.

With Mrs. Truman, their daughter Margaret and others, he spent most of the day aboard the Presidential yacht Potomac.

They left Blair House at 9.50 A. M. and returned at 4.45 P. M. They were accompanied by John W. Snyder, Federal Loan Administrator, and Miss Reathel Odum, Mrs. Truman's secretary.

NEW HEARING PLAN PRAISED

The assignment of assistant district attorneys to the magistrates courts of the city has helped to raise the level of procedure, in the opinion of the Committee of Seventy. Hearings are conducted in a better and less rowdy manner when the assistant district attorneys are present, the committee found.

PUBLIC URGED TO STAY HOME MEMORIAL DAY

Other Requests are Made in Announcement by OWI

Washington, May 7—(AP)—The Office of War Information said today:

"The Government needs and asks its citizens in this 178th week of the war to:

"Plan now to spend Memorial Day at home. Troop transfers, material shipments and the return of European casualties make pleasure travel more unwarranted than ever.

"Report all above-ceiling prices to your OPA ration board. Overcharges feed the black markets and help cause inflation.

"Take a job in a lead mine or smelter. The present shortage of lead workers endangers military and civilian supplies of this critical material.

"Return to sea, if you are an experienced seaman, for the big job ahead. Ships now being launched must be manned to carry increased Pacific shipments, returning wounded and supplies to devastated countries.

"Rent your spare rooms to war workers and to families of servicemen. Register the ceiling rent with OPA if you live in a rent control area."

All recruits will receive eight weeks training at the Waves training school, "U. S. S. Hunter," in the Bronx. Those selected for the Hospital Corps will be given another two months of hospital training.

LA GUARDIA WON'T SEEK OFFICE AGAIN

Asks Labor Party not to Place his Name on any Petition

New York, May 7—(AP)—The hat is out of the ring.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, nearing the end of three tempest-tossed terms as chief executive of New York City, said yesterday: "I am not going to run for Mayor this year."

The announcement came, characteristically, in the regular Sunday broadcast which the scrappy, barrel-shaped bantam has made the herald of numerous stories during his administration.

The Mayor asked his fellow-members of the American Labor Party "not to nominate me or put my name on any petition." He also said: "I will not enter the Republican primaries, I am not a candidate for the Republican nomination."

It was LaGuardia's first statement that he would not seek election this fall. In his 12 years in office he has had Republican support, but this year the party's county chairmen announced that they did not favor his re-election.

LaGuardia said that he hoped he would not have to return to public service, but added: "If we have controversy between veterans and government, and if there is corruption, it will be the duty of those of us with experience to take hold again."

During his three terms, he lashed out with energy and colorful invective at machine politicians, dictators, tinhorn gamblers, grafters and lewd entertainment.

From the moment he climbed to power in a three-way race that followed the withdrawal of Mayor James J. Walker, LaGuardia established himself as a new type of civic reformer. He fought graft without the usual reformer's solemnity, and many ordinary citizens admired him as a "regular guy" for his roughhouse informality toward his enemies.

His withdrawal turned the fight for the mayoralty nomination into a wide-open, free-for-all battle.

LaGuardia has been offered the presidency of the Air Transport Association, the New York Daily News says in a copyrighted story.

The newspaper says the position, described as "czar" of the air transport industry, had been offered to LaGuardia contingent on his retirement from public office.

"The salary mentioned was stated to be 'at least $50,000 and possibly $75,000 a year,'" the article states.

SOLDIER NOW OWNS 26 ALASKA BUSES

Cpl. Ken O'Hara Builds up Routes as he Works Way up in Army

Fort Richardson, Alaska—(AP)—Around the post enlisted men whisper that Corporal Ken [illegible] $25,- once offered an overage ma[illegible] 000 a year to resign his [illegible] mission and run his b[illegible]ess wh[illegible] O'Hara worked his fingers to th[illegible] bone in the Army laundry.

But the genial O'Ha[illegible] modest and quiet, says that story is not true. And the facts substantiate O'Hara for he has done an excellent job of running his own business even while he worked his way up from Pfc.

Enlisted men get goggle-eyed when they think of the thousands of dollars O'Hara grosses every month. To them he is the Paul Bunyan of the transportation business in this far northern country. And to the people of Alaska he is almost a Paul Bunyan, too, for he is the biggest bus operator in the territory.

In 1936, O'Hara came to Alaska from his home in Columbus, Ohio, a year after he finished at Ohio State. He worked for a canning company one season, bought a coal truck and soon bid in the contract for hauling Fairbank's garbage, which, he hastens to add, consisted only of trash, paper, boxes and the like.

Before long he had a bus line between Fairbanks and Livengood and started a bus line between Fairbanks and Ladd Field nearby. In 1940 he bought out Shorty Baird's bus line between Anchorage and Palmer. After overcoming competition he now operates 26 buses with four more on order.

His buses between Fort Richardson and Anchorage are jam-packed at all times. The fare is 40 cents a roundtrip. The taxicab fare for the same trip is $4. O'Hara pays his bus drivers between $375 and $440 a month.

Married four years ago to the former Audrey Richardson of Portland, Ore., O'Hara's fortunes have grown since he entered the Army as a private.

O'Hara now has an inter-city bus line between Anchorage and Fairbanks, a lodge at Gulkana which he calls Santa Claus Lodge and hopes to convert into a resort after the war, homes in Fairbanks and Anchorage, two garages in Anchorage, two Anchorage apartment houses, a 48-foot boat and a restaurant that grosses between $10,00[illegible] and $12,000 a month.

He expects Alaska to boom to 500,000 population after the war and wants his father, Charles O'Hara, a former Ohio carpenter whom he has not seen in 20 years, to come and live at Gulkana, and his brothers to come up and work for him.

As a corporal, O'Hara now drives a staff car for the Army Transportation Service but from 5 o'clock each evening until midnight he may be found at his bus company office. He lives in town with his wife and 2-year-old son.

Everytime one of his big buses rolls by, the enlisted men look [illegible] and say there is one G. I. who wo[illegible] have to worry about a post-war [illegible] for he will come out of the Army [illegible] lot richer than he was when he entered it.

More than 2,300 boys from the Philadelphia area have qualified for the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program as the result of examinations given April 12, [illegible] disclosed today by Major C[illegible] F. Frizzell, Jr., in charge of [illegible] recruiting here.
