

The Determined Spirit

In general the Germans do not need to go to their enemies to learn something. The Germans are well advanced in all fields of knowledge in order to know what to do and if they look back into history examples, of great men and women stand up in front of them and many suitable declarations are at their disposal.

Nevertheless we will quote just for once one of the most bitter enemies of Germany of the last war, in order to show how a determined will opposes bad luck in what seemed then to be a hopeless situation, and through its inflexibility still force luck on its side. It was the Frenchman, Clemenceau, who surmounted all the crises of his country and who expressed in a speech before the Cabinet, his determined fighting and holding out spirit.

On March 8th, 1918 Clemenceau declared: "My foreign and inner policies are one". The inner policy: "I am waging war". The foreign policy: "I am waging war". Russia betrays us: "I will still wage war!" Roumania must capitulate: "I am waging war, and I will carry on waging war until the last quarter-of-an-hour, because this last quarter-of-an-hour will belong to us!"

Then came the great German offensive of 1918 which thrust forward as far as the Marne. Paris seemed to be in danger more than ever before. France was quite exhausted, but Clemenceau spoke before the Cabinet, a declaration which became famous: "We will gain victory. I will fight in front of Paris. I will fight inside Paris. I will fight behind Paris."

Are the Germans less determined than Clemenceau? Never!

Archiszewski against Lubliners

The Polish Prime Minister in London, Monsieur Archiszewski, declared according to the Argentine newspaper "La Nation," that the Poles could never recognise the Lublin Committee and their legal representatives because most of the members of this Committee had for a long time been active members of the Comintern. If the Allies came to terms with this Moscow-formed reality then there would be serious consequences not only for Poland but for all the other countries in Europe.

High Death-rate

Reports are continuously being made by the De Gaulle news agencies about the ever increasing death-rate in France. The professors Chevalier and Meirra, of the Academy of Medicine, have, according to these sources, declared that the death-rate figures due to a shortage of food have increased by 37 per cent.

More "Justice" Deaths

During the course of the so-called "War criminals action" in Sofia the public prosecutor proposed a sentence of death on all the members of the Filoff and Boschiloff governments.

Grand Mufti in Danger

The Grand Mufti of Egypt has received a letter of threat from the "Star" organisation which gave the order for the murder of Lord Moyne reports the Swedish newspaper 'Goeteborgs Morgonpost'. The threat says that the Grand Mufti will be murdered if he dared to sanction the death sentences against the murderers of Lord Moyne.

A Special Mission

Samuel Rewing Rosemann, for many years personal advisor to Roosevelt, has been appointed as his personal representative in the status of an ambassador and ordered to make an inspection tour of Western Europe. The purpose of Rosemann's mission is to give Roosevelt a survey of the economic conditions in France, England, Belgium and Holland and eventually to suggest suitable measures.

Spears Criticises

Major-General Sir Edward Spears who was British ambassador in Syria and Lebanon from 1942 to 1944 gave a lecture in London to the "Royal Empire Society" as seen in the Reuter report. Spears criticised the British Arab policy and stressed that Great Britain could easily lose her position in the middle east if she was not careful. England must make it a principle, he declared, that at no period and under no circumstances must an enemy power set foot in the middle east.

ENEMY BREAK-THROUGH STOPPED Bolsheviks Lose Many Tanks and Guns

From the Fuehrer's Headquarters February 2nd, 1945.

The German Supreme Command announces:

In Hungary the enemy continued his counter attacks between Lake Balaton and the Danube, the focal points being north-east of Stuhlweissenburg. The attacks were mainly repulsed, some penetrations being sealed off or nullified by counter attacks by German and Hungarian formations.

In this fighting Lance-Corporal Karl Schuster of a Tank Grenadier Regiment knocked out 5 out of 7 Soviet tanks, which had broken through, within a quarter of an hour with a 7.5 cm. anti-tank gun. Furthermore he destroyed 2 motor lorries with guns in tow and shot up the majority of the accompanying enemy infantry. The remnants of the Bolshevik force consisting of 21 men were taken prisoner.

On the front between the High Tatra and the Oder bend near Gruenberg there was only local fighting south of Pless, north of Ratibor, north-west of Brieg and on both sides of Steinau. 32 tanks were destroyed there.

The garrisons of Schneidemuhl and Posen fiercely resisted strong Bolshevik attacks which were supported by artillery fire and salvo guns. In the southern part of Pommerania enemy attacks at Deutsch-Krone and Jastrow collapsed. On both sides of the lower Vistula the enemy attacked south-west of Graudenz, employing several rifle divisions and numerous tanks. He was checked after heavy area and in East Prussia fierce defensive fighting. In the Marienburg-Elbingsie fighting continued in the former focal points. In spite of deep penetrations the unbreakable steadfastness of the German divisions prevented the numerically superior enemy from breaking through.

On the Kurland front the Bolsheviks launched numerous unsuccessful thrusts.

With strong forces the German Air force attacked Soviet tank and infantry columns at the focal points of the Winter Battle. The enemy suffered extraordinarily heavy casualties and lost yesterday 52 tanks, 27 guns, as well as 575 motorised and horse-drawn vehicles.

In the West the German divisions are engaged in hard defensive fighting in the depth of the main battle field on both sides of Monschau against the Americans who are attacking with undiminished vigour. In the sector east of St. Vith fierce engagements are continuing in the fore-field of the Western fortifications.

On the Saar front, as well as in Lower Alsace American thrusts proved unsuccessful.

In the penetration area east and north-east of Colmar the enemy was able to cross the road New-Breisach-Strasbourg to the east after fierce fighting. At Thann and Sennheim the German troops repulsed all enemy attacks.

Parts of the garrison of Gironde-South penetrated deeply into the enemy ring of fortifications after having made their way through enemy mine-fields and rolled up a large trench sector in close range fighting. The enemy suffered considerable losses.

In Central Italy the German troops threw the British back in a counter attack north of Faenza after they had temporarily penetrated the German positions.

In Croatia east of Karlovac a strong band was surprised and annihilated by a German commando force, the bulk of their weapons falling in German hands.

North-American bombers yesterday made a terror raid on the residential districts of Mannheim/Ludwigshafen. Further Anglo-American formations dropped bombs in the Rhenish/Westphalian area, as well as in South-East Germany, particularly on Graz. Last night Mannheim/Ludwigshafen and Mainz were again subjected to heavy terror raids. British bombers dropped bombs on the Reich capital in the evening and in the night, as well as on localities in Western Germany.

London continues to be subjected to the German retaliation fire.

M.P.'s. Missing

Eden announced before the House of Commons, according to a Reuter message, that two British M.P.'s namely Robert Berays (Liberal National) and Campbell (Conservative) who were visiting the British troops on the Italian front, have been reported missing. The machine, said Eden in which they were travelling from Rome to Brindisi was piloted by an experienced R.A.F. pilot. Since they left Rome on news has been heard of them. There was a heavy snowstorm near Brindisi at the time.

Roosevelt Disobeyed

The seizure of 16 factories of the big Montgomery-Ward concern has been declared as unlawful by the Jewish judge, Sullivan. A new congress has forced the quarrelling parties to stop the recommendation of the war labour office. The president in his capacities either as commander-in-chief of the army or his plenary powers has not the right to seize the firms factories.

Roaming Parisians

Thousands of Parisians have left the city in order not to starve or freeze there. In small bands they are wandering the countryside going to the peasants for food and lodgings.

The country districts have had to form a self defence league in order to prevent plunderings.

3,000 U.S.A. Soldiers in Court

According to a report of the 'American Army and Navy Journal' during the last three years criminal procedure against 3,485 American officers and men has been instituted in England. Of this number 2,858 were found guilty and punished. 19 for murder.

Sinking Admitted

Reuter reports that, according to an official announcement in Washington an American transport with over 2,000 soldiers on board was sunk a short time ago in European waters through enemy action. 248 soldiers lost their lives, 517 were missing and the remainder were saved.

U.S.A. Battleship Hit

While the fighting in the north-east of the Lingayen area seems to have come to a standstill the Americans have succeeded in gaining ground to the south and south-east. According to front despatches unloading is going on daily in spite of heavy Japanese air attacks.

There is the possibility of a landing being carried out south of Luzon because large concentrations of transport vessels and air-borne troops are assembling at Leyte.

In the Lingayen Bay an Allied battleship was hit during an air raid. Two transports fell victims of the Japanese U-boats.

Strong formations of American bombers attacked Tokyo on Saturday. There was damage and casualties.

"Pressing Methods"

The "United Committee of all Polish Political Parties," posted a resolution at the beginning of January—according to a Paris report—in which it sharply protested against the forming of the Lublin Committee as provisional Polish Government and at the same time against the policy of the Soviet Union towards Poland.

The resolution speaks of "pressing methods" among them, the deporting of millions of Poles to Siberia or Turkistan and declare that the Communist Government formed in Poland by the Soviets by no means represent the opinion of the Polish nation, who are well-known all over the world for their love of freedom and independence.

The Polish United Committee in France also strongly protests against the parcelling up of Poland by the Soviet Union.

Hopkins in Paris

Radio Paris announced during the week that Roosevelt's personal advisor, Harry Hopkins arrived in Paris on Sunday evening.

It was officially announced in London, according to a Reuter message, that the commissioner for the Lease and Lend supplies and the special personal deputy of Roosevelt, Harry Hopkin had been to London recently.

"Criminals" Without End

It is reported from Bucharest that a widespread Legionaire organisation has been discovered in which the chief of the Bucharest State prison was connected.

The publishing of the lists of so-called war criminals is expected in Bucharest within the next few days. Already over 1,000 arrests have been made.

Eden admitted in the House of Commons that England did not have a press representative in Belgrade.

LORD HAW-HAW'S PLATFORM

German Nation Faces Crisis Confidently

When I have referred recently to the failure of the Western Allies to synchronise their maximum pressure upon the Reich with the gigantic Soviet onslaught which has gained so much ground in the past fortnight, I did not consider myself to be displaying abnormal analytical power, I was alluding to the contrast so marked and so obvious that no commentator could ignore it, and in Moscow during recent days there have been many unkind and slighting allusions to the difference between the pictures presented by the Western and the Eastern theatres of war.

I must say, however, that, versed as I am in the ways of British propaganda, I was quite unprepared for the sensational announcement in the last issue of the "Sunday Times" that the Western Allies have helped the Soviets by deliberately enticing the German Supreme Command to launch that December offensive in the Ardennes, whereby Eisenhower's plans were, in fact, completely deranged. That many of Britain's spokesmen are anxious to identify themselves as closely as possible with the Kremlin and the Red Army is common knowledge, but how anxious must be the desire to ingratiate themselves with Stalin when they profess that the serious reverse which Eisenhower suffered last month, and on account of which many of his officers have been relieved of their command, was actually a deep-laid plan to assist the Bolsheviks by inducing the Germans to seize the initiative in the West.

Apparently, the "Sunday Times" believes that the British people are as credulous and uncritical as they were five years ago, and that, moreover, their memory is so short as to be negligible. The tremendous losses suffered in the Ardennes by the Allies, the removal of the threat to the industrial areas of the Saar and the Ruhr, and the enforced suspension of their maximum activity during a vital period of the struggle were the actual results, and the suggestion that the Allies in any way helped the Soviets is a very inartistic attempt to gild the Red lily. It is due to the foolish desire in British political circles to persuade Stalin that Britain has really and truly played her part in this war and that some recognition of her service, however slight it may be, ought to be accorded to her when the time comes for the final settlement of accounts.

Here, indeed, is an inferiority complex based upon real inferiority; and I can only repeat what I have said before—that if Germany could be defeated, as she cannot and will not be, Britain would have even less power to influence the affairs of Europe than she possesses to-day, when the Soviet monster is not supreme. Still, news from the Eastern Front shows that the momentum of the Bolshevik drive has not yet begun to dwindle, despite the fierce tenacity of the German resistance. The German attitude concerning the general situation was summed up in the proclamation issued by the Chief of the Army General Staff, who said that, with the enemy on either side of them, German troops were marching westwards and had reached appointed new positions. Simultaneously, reinforcements were pouring in from every direction, and when the alignment of these in the new positions is completed the battle with the threatening Soviet forces will begin.

It is obvious, therefore, that the campaign is still in a fluid condition. The German nation is calmly confident that this great crisis will be successfully overcome, whereas in London there seems to be a prevalent, although greatly mistaken belief, that Germany will not weather the storm; and on this basis the most far-reaching speculations are proceeding as to how the Reich should be mangled, crushed, squashed and generally liquidated after the hypothetical Allied victory. Into the details of these proposals I will not go, since it is useless to attempt to discuss contingencies which will not materialise, and, since, beyond that, the German people take it as axiomatic that the common foe will be vanquished. The future of Germany will be secured by the German armed forces and the will of the German people.

Official Statement.

In order to dispel rumour and counteract idle gossip "The Star" is officially informed upon enquiry that since the departure of the s.s. "Vega" from this island no news of any description has been received concerning this vessel.

The German authorities have on several occasions sent radiomessages enquiring as to her probable further visits to the Channel Islands, but no replies have been received to date.

The Bailiffs of Guernsey and Jersey have therefore been permitted to prepare for broadcasting a joint appeal on behalf of the inhabitants.

The following message was handed to the German authorities on Thursday, Feb. 1st.

The Secretary General, International Red Cross, Geneva.

"Reference recent conferences with your representatives in the Channel Islands, stocks of flour and grain for maintenance of bread ration of the civil population will be exhausted on or about February 10, 1945.

We urgently appeal for dispatch of flour or grain for Jersey and flour for Guernsey, since in the latter island grinding can only be done by electricity of which no supply is available for this purpose due to shortage of diesel oil and coal.

Please reply."

Appeal for Children's Clothing

To the Editor of "The Star."

Sir,—In the past your newspaper has done great work in appealing for help for the children of this island, and I am hoping that you will be prepared to carry on this good work.

I happen to be in charge of over three hundred of the island school children at the Castel and Intermediate Schools ranging in age from 4 to 16 years of age and I know that many of them are short of clothing although the parents would be perfectly able to pay for such articles.

Mackintoshes and coats and warm clothing are particularly needed and I would be extremely pleased to pay for any suitable articles handed in at my home—Le Tertre, Castel, or at the Intermediate School. Arrangements can be made for collection and great care will be taken in selecting the most deserving cases.

At the present time all over the island numbers of children are earnestly striving to prepare themselves for the Entrance Examination to the Intermediate School but very many of these children will lack means of transport. At the same time there is a possibility that people will be evacuated from the island because of illness. If some of the latter or any other people have bicycles which they are prepared to sell or to loan to these very deserving children I would be pleased to get into touch with them—Telephone 6942 (Home)—686 (Intermediate School).

There is also an urgent need for lengths of hose to make tyres, and I hope that we will have offers from people with such articles for sale.

CHARITY NEED NOT BE COLD
The Open Mind and the Warm Heart

The recent blessing of food parcels from the International Red Cross has placed thousands of Channel Islanders in a position that at one time they would have been shocked to find themselves. They have become the recipients of charity without any chilling touch; the stigma "as cold as charity" does not apply here.

The discriminate and inquisitorial charity that so often humiliates the unfortunates who have to resort to it, can indeed be cold, it is a worse thing than the indiscriminate charity which we hear condemned by self-satisfied and patronising professional philanthropists. The International Red Cross makes no enquiries as to whether its beneficiaries are deserving or undeserving; it knows no prejudices of race, creed, politics or morality. It is sufficient to that great, warm-hearted organisation to know that human beings are in distress and must be helped.

But behind all the evil the light of humanity is shining, dimly perhaps, but with sufficient strength to send rays of hope to every dark corner of the world where there is misery and despair. The lantern that carries this light is the International Red Cross and it is fed by fuel from the warm hearts of thousands of individual men and women of every nationality and religion. So the most misanthropic amongst us—if he paused to give the matter a thought—must have felt a responsive glow in his heart as he opened his parcel.

Yes Charity earns only too often the title of "cold", for it is a strange jewel of many facets and an unpleasant one is that which looks upon the recipients of its gifts with mistrust, questions their "deservingness", grants only with reservations and stipulations, humiliating the applicants in a way that rouses their resentment (if misfortune has left them with any pride) and rebukes them for "ingratitude" if this resentment is shown.

It is true that charity and the charitable are frequently imposed upon by the unscrupulous and organisers of charitable institutions are sometimes in despair when valued donors to their funds hear of these impositions and angrily withdraw their support. No philanthropic organisation is immune from cadgers and impostors, but to withdraw support because of the sins of the few is to punish the many who are in honest need.

All of us cannot dispense the charity of the open purse, but everyone can dispense an even greater charity—the charity of the open mind and warm heart. Those who are poor in pocket are often poor in spirit as well, they know that the world in general despises poverty and condemns those upon whom that horror has fallen, whether it be their own fault or not.

To such as these if you cannot help them materially you can at least hand out the encouraging word and sympathetic understanding, whilst refraining from condemning even the "sinners" who, in the opinion of the censorious, have deserved their unhappiness. The generosity that springs from the open mind and warm heart is a rarer virtue than the generosity of the open purse, and can even be a greater help.

It is not only the materially poor who are in need of the generosity of the warm heart. It is impossible to go through life without meeting many who need help other than financial. The sick in body and mind, the lonely, those whom love and luck have passed by, "the square pegs in round holes", those whose reasonable ambitions have been thwarted—often unfairly—and those who were born without the "nous" to carry them successfully through life.

Words of encouragement may make all the difference to those who are engaged in a seemingly hopeless struggle to make their lives a success, but it is strange how otherwise kind and generous persons will withhold such words of help and praise for sincere efforts when they might be justly given.

To the struggling musician, artist, poet or author, appreciation is as necessary as sunlight is to flowers. Without it they cannot expand or give of their best, they wilt, and the beauty that under the stimulus of timely encouragement they might have given to the world is lost.

It is not vanity that urges the creative artist to seek praise; it is the natural desire to learn if the children of his own brain are appreciated, for the true artist works, not only to satisfy himself, but to give pleasure to others and without appreciation he is finished.

Remember, there are many ways in which the charity of the open mind and warm heart can bring happiness.

CRUSOE.

CORONER'S COURT

In the Coroner's Court yesterday, a verdict of death probably brought on by a puncture of the finger, was returned on 20-year-old Richard Donald Le Prevost, of Ray Cottage, St. Peter's who died at the Emergency Hospital on Wednesday.

Reginald and Stanley Le Prevost, brothers of the deceased, deposed that their brothers had never been ill until recently, when he complained of pains in the back.

Stanley Le Prevost, stated that his brother had perforated his finger with a needle, when he was mending his shoe, but little notice had been taken of this until Richard became unconscious on Wednesday and was removed to the Hospital, where he passed away.

Dr. B. S. Collings concluded that although there was no certainty as to what the wound was which caused death, it was probably due to the punctured finger, which had been caused by a needle some time ago or an overlooked wound.

The Coroner returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.
