ADDRESS OF Mr. Abr. FROWEIN

CLOSING SESSION, BERLIN CONGRESS OF THE INTERNATIONAL
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Ladies and Gentlemen,

The IXth Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce is coming to a close. As President of the Congress, I have the privilege of thanking all of the delegates for the lively interest they have taken in the work of the Congress. The attendance at this Congress has been greater than at any other Congress ever held by the International Chamber of Commerce. This is of course highly gratifying for the German National Committee. Such large attendance has its disadvantages, however, for it makes the Congress far more difficult to organize. If there have been any shortcomings, I hope you will excuse them. We want every delegate to take away with him a favourable impression of his stay in Berlin. May our work and its results which are contained in the resolutions adopted, help to promote economic cooperation between the nations. With these few words of thanks to you all and with this wish, I now conclude my duties as President of the Congress, duties which you have so greatly facilitated for me.
