Ship Seizure Bill Gets Approval Of Senate Group

House Measure Faces
Attack By Johnson,
Clark, Vandenberg.

WASHINGTON, May 12. (AP)—The bill empowering President Roosevelt to take over foreign ships in American ports and use them in the defense or aid-to-Britain program was approved without major changes today by the Senate commerce committee.

Meanwhile, as officials worked on other aspects of the defense and aid plans, it became apparent that many sacrifices by American consumers were in prospect. For one thing, William L. Batt of the Office for Production Management forecast that the nation's entire aluminum supply would be devoted to military needs by 1942.

Another Auto Cut
Other defense officials said that a second 20 per cent cut in automobile production was a "distinct possibility" although "still in the pure speculation stage" and that if a sharp upswing occurred in defense demands, the manufacture of furnaces, refrigerators and other household goods might also be curtailed.

Before the Senate committee okayed the House-approved ship-seizure bill, 11 to 4, it defeated a move by Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Clark (D-Mo.) to prohibit the transfer of any Axis ships to Britain.

This amendment was defeated 10 to 6 but its sponsors gave notice they would press for its adoption in the Senate floor when the measure comes up for debate, probably late this week. Senators Johnson (R-Calif.) and Burton (R-Ohio) joined Vandenberg and Clark in voting against the bill as a whole.

Those Favoring
Those voting for it were reported by committee members to be Senators Bailey, Caraway, Overton, Bilbo, Radcliffe, Pepper, Lee, Hill, and Mead, Democrats, and Senators McNary and Barbour, Republicans.

Incidentally, the committee heard from Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission that his report of last week that only eight of the ships sailing from American ports for Britain had been sunk in the first three months of this year did not include vessels which cleared from Halifax. No figures were given on these.

Legislation approved today by the House Merchant Marine committee would authorize the Maritime Commission to control the departures, destinations and cargoes of all merchantmen. In return the vessels would receive priorities on the use of dock facilities for loading and repair.

The measure apparently was designed to facilitate the commission's task, assigned recently by President Roosevelt, of obtaining a vast pool of shipping for aid to Britain. The commission said it would facilitate "the movement of national defense materials and goods vital to the national economy and to the national economy during the emergency."

Defense Developments
The day also brought these other developments:

3 Go From City June 2-7; 7 in County

Three trainees will be called from Harrisonburg and seven from Rockingham under Virginia's fourteenth Selective Service call, it was announced yesterday at state headquarters. Under this call no colored men will be taken from the city or county.

A total of 768 men, including 480 whites and 288 negroes, will be inducted under this call between June 2 and 7, bringing to 10,413 the number either inducted or called and leaving a balance of 3,753 yet to be summoned to service under the state's current net quota of 14,164.

Of the 768 men, 461 will be inducted in Richmond, and 307 in Roanoke.

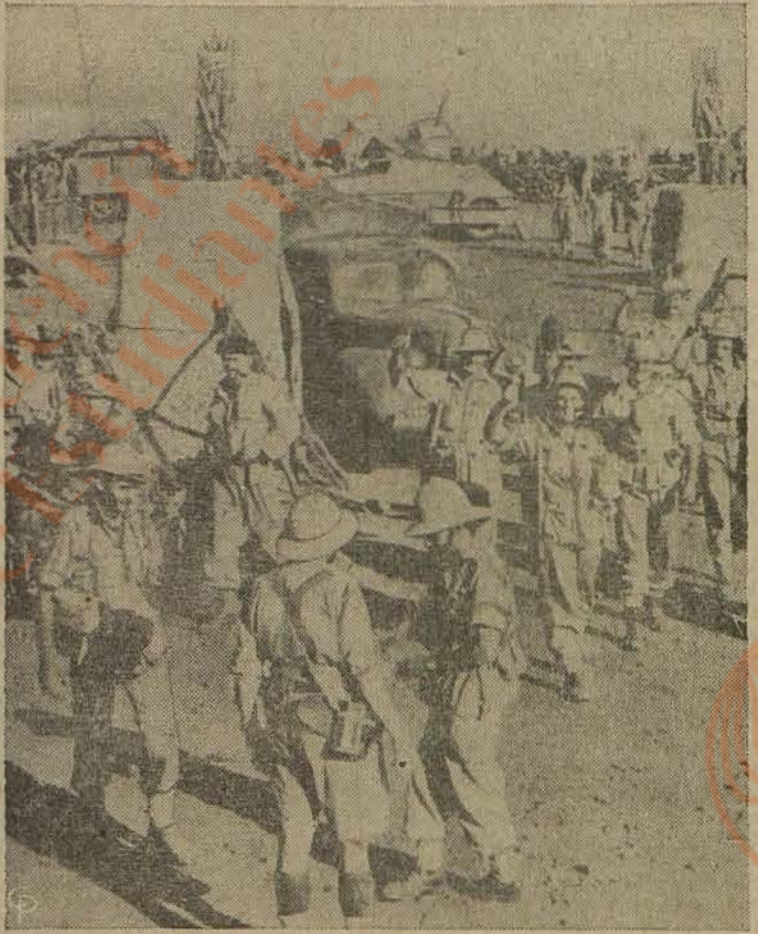

Other board quotas with the number of white men listed first and the negroes second are as follows:

Va. To End Year With Surplus

4½ Millions Forecast.
"Current War Boom"
Hoists Collections.

RICHMOND, May 12. (AP)—A general fund surplus on June 30 of at least $4,800,000 was forecast today by the state comptroller's office.

Coupled with this prediction was an estimate that Virginia would set a new record for collection from all sources during the present fiscal year in view of an increase of $8,062,721 during the first nine months compared with the same portion of the previous year.

Increase Abnormal
However, the official declared that the increase was "abnormal and a result of the current war boom," that it could not be depended upon to finance any permanent governmental activities and that part of the increase might be needed to pay for some of the state's own defense activities.

Revenues from all sources during the nine months totaled $65,341,910. It was reported, after adjustments to eliminate all revenues of the state liquor board except its estate's share of profits.

The general fund revenues, including the state share of liquor profits, amounted to $22,869,045-60.

Expenditures from all funds for the same period, excluding expenditures of the liquor board,

Radio to Fight Order of FCC

ST. LOUIS, May 1. (AP)—A vigorous fight and possibly court action to have the recent report of the Federal Communications Commission set aside was indicated at the annual meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters.

The FCC ordered drastic changes in the relationship of individual stations and chain networks and requested the National Broadcasting Company to divest itself within 90 days of one of its two networks—red and blue—and of all stations except those in originating points.

The Community Committee of the Rockingham County Agricultural Conservation program will meet Wednesday night at 7:45 in the Court House to discuss wheat marketing quotas.

The Rockingham Association is anxious for wheat growers to have a full understanding of the regulations that will apply in case the referendum to be held on May 31 results in quotas being placed on wheat.

The reason for placing the quotas and the affect it will have on the individual wheat producer in case it does apply will be discussed at Wednesday night's meeting.

Protection for All
Speaking yesterday of the proposed referendum, County Agent Cox stated that the wheat marketing quota offers protection of supplies for the consumer, and protection of the market for wheat growers themselves.

The marketing quota insures plenty of wheat for every probable demand by consumers in this country or abroad, he said. A quota on wheat may be proclaimed only when the total supply exceeds a normal year's domestic consumption and exports by more than 35 per cent. With exports practically shut off by military blockade, there will be almost 2 bushels of wheat on hand for every 1 which is likely to be consumed this year in the United States.

Protect Farm Income
In view of this supply, marketing quotas are necessary to protect farm income.

87 Babies At Hospital Here

Steal Show at Observance National Hospital Day.

Observance of National Hospital Day at Rockingham Memorial Hospital yesterday also took on the appearance of Baby Day.

Eighty-seven infants born at the hospital in the past 12 months were brought to the institution by their mothers—and a few fathers—for the big occasion. They were photographed and the mothers had an opportunity to talk over problems with one another.

There were 333 babies born at the hospital in the past 12 months and in observance of National Hospital Day, Supt. Stuart Aldhizer sent invitations to all of the mothers. He was most agreeably surprised when 87 of them responded. They gathered at the nurses home and there was a drawing for prizes. The babies and their mothers came from a wide area, a number from West Virginia.

More than 700 persons were shown through the hospital during the open house period in the afternoon. There were so many that the staff ran an hour late in showing them all around. The visitors were shown the operating rooms, the laboratories, and the kitchens and other quarters usually not seen by visitors.

"A big success," said Mr. Aldhizer last night. "We of the hospital are most happy that so many of the mothers brought their babies here for a little 'reunion.' We also are glad that so many other persons took the opportunity to visit our hospital. We were literally swamped."

Hulvey Begins Sergeant Duties

He will have his office temporarily at 12 North Court Square. Mr. Hulvey has requested the state auditor's office to audit the books of the late sergeant and also to install the standard system of bookkeeping used in sergeant's offices.

The new sergeant entered upon his duties yesterday.

Strikers Halt Defense Work On Two Coasts

Pacific and Boston
Shipyards Workers
Stage Walkouts.

(By the Associated Press)

A new upsurge of labor difficulties halted work yesterday on $500,000,000 of warship construction and other defense contracts in West Coast shipyards, and on a $3,000,000 naval drydock project in Boston.

In addition:
A strike was called for 11 a. m. (EST) today in the Hudson Motor Company in Detroit, great Michigan industrial center already in the throes of a team-threat of a walkout in many General Motors plants on Thursday.

A walkout of 200 employees of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corporation, building supply concern, threatened to delay emergency construction in Washington.

Engine, train and yard service men of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast Railroad voted to strike, but set no date.

Only a relatively small number of workers—1,700 AFL and CIO machinists—were involved in the West Coast ship construction dispute. Their walkout, described by President William Green of the AFL as an "outlaw strike", forced the closing, however, of 11 shipyards and drydocks in the San Francisco area with between 15,000 and 20,000 employees.

Want Pay Increases
Green applied the designation "outlaw" because the walkout violated, he said, a management-union agreement prohibiting either strikes or lockouts. The AFL machinists replied that they had not ratified the agreement; the CIO was not a party to it.

The machinists seek an increase from $1 to $1.15 an hour with continuance of double time for overtime. The management offered $1.12 with time and one-half for overtime.

All the other disputes involved wage questions, though details were not, in all cases, disclosed.

The United Automobile Workers (CIO) asked a 15-cent hourly wage increase from Hudson whose present scale was not made public. The company has about 8,000 employees and some defense contracts. The UAW-CIO said those engaged on defense work would not be affected by a strike.

Rudolf Hess, Hitler Henchman And No. 3 Nazi, Surrenders In Britain After Solo Flight From Germany

"Hallucinations"
Victim, Berlin Says.
Note Left Behind.
Adjutants Arrested.

BERLIN, Tuesday, May 13. (AP)

"Rudolf Hess, one of Germany's 'big three,' was reported missing today, presumably lost on an airplane flight while the victim of 'hallucinations.'"

The Fuehrer had ordered his deputy in party affairs not to make airplane flights for some time past and Hess' adjutants—whose number was not specified—have been arrested for permitting this and other trips, the announcement said.

The 47-year-old Hess, who was designated by Hitler at the outbreak of the war as his political heir after Reichsmarschal Hermann Goering, left Augsburg in Bavaria about 6 p. m. Saturday, piloting his own machine, and has not been heard from since, it was said.

Hess left behind a letter showing "in its confusion traces of mental disorder which led to fears that party fellow member Hess was a victim of hallucinations," the party statement added.

The complete announcement said:
"Party fellow member Hess, who, because of his failing health, for years has been strictly forbidden by the Fuehrer to be active in aviation, was able, contrary to these instructions, to acquire an airplane again recently."

"On Saturday, May 10, about 6 p. m., party fellow member Hess started on a flight at Augsburg from which he has not returned to this day."

A letter left behind unfortunately shows in its confusion the traces of mental disorder which led to fears that party fellow member Hess was a victim of hallucinations.

Adjutants Arrested
"The Fuehrer immediately ordered the arrest of the adjutants of party fellow member Hess who alone knew about those flights, and did not hinder them and did not report them in spite of the instructions known by them to have been given by the Fuehrer."

"Under those circumstances the national socialist movement unfortunately must assume that the party fellow member has crashed somewhere on his flight or had (other) accident."

Tall, dark, bushy-browed and somber—Hess was one of the most powerful figures in the Nazi regime, both publicly and behind the scenes.

Since the World War he had been an intimate of Adolf Hitler, whom he met on the battlefields of France.

He was one of the first members of Hitler's storm troopers, and soon was the Fuehrer's private secretary. As such he often made appearances for Hitler when the latter could not personally attend.

Flight of Hess May Be Result Of Split Among Nazi Hierarchy

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, May 12. (AP) The flight of Rudolf Hess, Nazi party leader and probably Adolf Hitler's most intimate associate, into British hands in Scotland aroused intense speculation in diplomatic quarters tonight on the possibility of a split in the Nazi hierarchy.

Diplomats familiar with Nazi politics described Hess as a tremendously important figure in Germany. His power as party leader was strengthened by his close personal relations with Hitler dating back to early party history.

As Hitler's deputy for party affairs, Hess was the controller of political patronage and was considered almost fanatically devoted to the Fuehrer. Whatever the circumstances, of his flight and even accepting the German version casting doubt on his sanity, informed diplomats agreed that it would prove a severe shock to the German people.

Speculation about a possible break in high Nazi ranks centered on the theory that Hess fled Germany for some reason and intentionally landed in the one country which certainly would not send him back.

Some sources even suggested that Hess might have been escaping from another Nazi "purge" such as the famous one of June 30, 1934, when

Axis Heads To Map Program

Stalin and Mussolini
Likely to Meet Soon
With Hitler.

VICHY, FRANCE, May 12. (AP)—Separate meetings of Adolf Hitler with Joseph Stalin and Benito Mussolini were considered in diplomatic circles here tonight as likely to result from the current political moves over Europe.

The object of the meetings, these circles said, probably would be complete economic if not military organization of the Axis-dominated continent.

Observers listed the current shakeup of Spain's civil and military organization and Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan's negotiations with the Germans as indications of forthcoming conferences of the German Fuehrer and Stalin and Mussolini.

Ties With Africa
In addition, they noted the trip of French Air Secretary Jean Marie Bergeter to Dakar for the announced purpose of strengthening air defenses and seeking closer aerial ties between French West Africa and the mother country.

Although Bergeter arrived in Dakar yesterday, today's official announcement was the first disclosure that such a journey had been contemplated, much less made.

Chief of State Philippe Feltin returned from his Riviera vacation today to await the arrival of Darlan tomorrow from collaboration conferences with German leaders.

Unconfirmed reports from Paris Saturday said Darlan had gone to German territory to confer with "a high personality."

Nazi U-Boat in Mexican Landing

MEXICO CITY, May 12. (AP)—Unconfirmed reports circulated in informed quarters here tonight that a large German submarine three weeks ago landed several passengers—presumably Nazi agents—in Mexico and left after loading a cargo of antimony concentrates.

According to the unconfirmed reports, the submarine landed about April 21 somewhere in the almost deserted 50-mile stretch between Vera Cruz and Alvarado, on the Gulf of Mexico.

The Rockingham County Music Festival will be held at Massanutta Springs Thursday, beginning at 12:30 p. m.

Children from most of the schools of this county will have a part in the festival. About 1,500 children are expected to take part in the festival.

During the program they will sing a number of songs together which they have learned for this program. They will be under the direction of Prof. Nelson T. Huffman, of Bridgewater.

The accompanist will be Miss Thelma Stiles of Linville High School.

Special numbers will be presented by the following schools, Timberville, Linville, Edom, Mt. Clinton, Dayton, Mt. Crawford, Park View and Timber Ridge.

The program will begin promptly at 12:30 p. m. in order that it will close in time for the buses to get back to the schools on the regular schedules.

British Bomb Nazi Shipyards

Hamburg and Bremen
Plants Damaged
in New Attacks.

LONDON, May 12. (AP)—British bombers, apparently still concentrating on efforts to paralyze Germany's sea power at its source, were reported officially today to have left Hamburg and Bremen, two of Germany's great shipbuilding centers, in chaos after devastating new overnight attacks.

The RAF continued "destruction and disorganization of vital parts" of Hamburg, the air ministry said, and delivered an equally heavy raid on Bremen with corresponding success in the brightness of a clear, moonlit night.

Anti-aircraft defenses at home, meanwhile, both planes and guns, were shooting down nine more Nazi raiders during German night attacks which were widespread but nowhere as intensive or destructive as the Saturday night bombardment which shattered more of London's hallowed historic and religious shrines and engulfed whole blocks of the capital in flame.

Air bases, the spring boards of Britain's increasingly potent air attacks and home defenses, evidently were the object of the Nazi raiders.

An authoritative source, however, declared that German claims to have bombed 20 airbases were "as usual grossly exaggerated."

Much-bombed Hamburg and Bremen were RAF targets for the third night in the past four and an air ministry news service bulletin said shipbuilding yards which line the River Elbe on both sides for nine miles at Hamburg "were threaded and crossed with fire."

Fate Unknown Two Days
For two days the British apparently had not known what a prize had flown to their side. When Germany found out, officials still insisted his fate was unknown.

Comparison of the German and British announcements, however, brought the picture into sharp focus. The Germans said Hess' adjutants who permitted him to fly were under arrest. So it was apparent that either with the connivance of close personal friends or by sheer personal bravado, Hitler's erstwhile handyman had seized a plane and fled direct to Britain from Germany.

Hess had been closest to Hitler. Although Reichsmarschal Goering was the officially-designated successor to Hitler in case of death, Hess, because he was personally far closer to the Fuehrer, ostensibly was next in line.

The tall, dark, saturnine Hess was Hitler's alter ego.

Almost immediately after the World War, the thrice-wounded Hess threw in his lot with Hitler and the Nazi party.

They stood together in the ill-fated beer hall, Putsch at Munich in 1923. They fled together, and were captured and imprisoned together.

Hess Edited "Mein Kampf"
In prison, Hitler dictated while Hess wrote and edited "Mein Kampf," the strange autobiography and exposition of grandiose schemes of the then little-regarded boss of the Nazi party.

Col. Pendleton Dies at Bluefield; G. O. P. Leader

ROANOKE, May 12. (P)—Colonel William C. Pendleton, 94, former newspaper editor, author and Confederate veteran, succumbed in a Bluefield hospital Sunday, one week after suffering a paralytic stroke at North Tazewell.

He spent his later years in Marion, Roanoke and Bluefield and while here resided with a daughter, Mrs. Louise Hodges.

Colonel Pendleton was well known in state Republican circles as leader in the Ninth district for many years and was secretary to Governor William E. Cameron in 1881.

He was a native of Amherst and was editor of the Tazewell Republican and a Marion newspaper. He also was the author of "A Political History of Appalachia Virginia," and a subsequent edition, "A History of Tazewell County and Southwest Virginia."

Born January 16, 1847, he attended Emory and Henry College and served with the 45th Virginia Battalion, Company "A," in the War Between the States. He was captured June 5, 1864, in the Battle of Piedmont, paroled two days later and returned to his home in Amherst.

Entering Virginia Military Institute as a cadet, he was a member of the cadet force of 200 assigned to take over trenches in Richmond in September, 1864.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Julia Bittle Pendleton; four daughters, Mrs. Hodges, Miss Ruth Pendleton, of Amos; Mrs. C. F. Tynes, of Bluefield, W. Va.; and Mrs. E. C. Turpin, of Bedford.

Yancey Buys Purebred Herefords To Build Up Breeding Herd Here

Another chapter in the improvement of Rockingham County livestock was written recently with the purchase of seven purebred Hereford cattle by the Dogwood Hill Farm on the Kezletown road, east of Harrisonburg.

The farm, which is owned by E. B. Yancey, of Wilmington, Del., and managed by E. R. Lineweaver, will with these seven fine purebred animals, establish a herd which in the future will supply farmers of this section with purebred bulls and heifers, contributing greatly toward the improvement of Rockingham county livestock.

To head the herd "Buck Domino," registry number 2945089, was purchased from the Buck and Doe Run Valley Farms at Coatesville, Pa. This bull was Pennsylvania state champion in 1940—then a two-year-old.

"Lady Lad 1st," registry number 2764714, a three-year-old heifer, purchased at the Morlunda Farm Sale at Lewisburg, W. Va., is another fine animal of the herd. At the latter sale 66 head of purebred Hereford were sold at an average of $594 per head. Fifty-two females of the sale brought an average of $600, while the top 30 animals of the sale averaged $821.

Another fine animal purchased for the herd is "Doe Domino, 91st," purchased at the Maryland

Presiding over the immaculate demonstration kitchen in the Virginia Theatre will be the News-Record's culinary expert, Mrs. Mary Ann Kidd, who devotes her entire time to general homemaking research, as well as to the study of food products and cooking.

Believing that "action speaks louder than sales talk," this alert lecturer crams plenty of action into her entertaining programs, which click along with systematic skill through measuring, mixing, broiling, baking, French frying—all seasoned with friendly counsel and wise tips of saving steps, time and tempers.

Tempting dishes will be seen in each step of preparation, and these demonstration treats will be given away to proud, homeward-bound pupils, as well as free recipe sheets. Guests of The News-Record will reap a harvest of dainty gifts and unheralded surprises. Have you read the full list of valuable rewards?

Sign up a Cooking School party today and plan to join your neighbors in the Virginia Theatre on all four days of the fruitful and interesting school, starting next Tuesday, May 20.

Blondie and Dagwood Receive 400,000 Letters About Baby

Folks who've been regarding Mr. and Mrs. Dagwood Bumstead of the famous "Blondie" newspaper comic, the movies and radio, as just imaginary characters, have a surprise awaiting them.

For Blondie and her husband are as real as their next door neighbors to hundreds of thousands of persons. This is shown in the flood of mail that has inundated Chic Young, creator of the "Blondie" strip, since he asked readers for help in naming the new Bumstead baby daughter.

Close to 400,000 letters, among which the judges, Inez Robb, Beatrice Fairfax, Dr. Allan Roy Daffoe and Young, are seeking the name the Bumstead baby is to bear, are a striking proof of the hold that a newspaper comic can gain on the affections and interest of its readers.

One woman, in addressing her name for the baby directly to the Bumsteads, enclosed her telephone number and asked Blondie to telephone her if the baby becomes infected with the dreaded infant complaint, diarrhea. For, she said, she had an old family remedy for the complaint.

Scores of others enclosed skillfully made and valuable items for the baby's layette. More than one bereaved mother begged that the baby be given the name of a dead child of hers. Princeton University seniors, who elected "Blondie" their favorite character, contributed names for Blondie's baby.

One woman, a brunette, quivered with Young's announcement that the baby was a blonde like its mother. Daughters, she complained, take after their fathers, and Dagwood is a brunette. Advice on how to keep Alexander, the Bumstead's young son, from becoming jealous of his new sister, was offered.

None of this is surprising to Young, who regularly receives letters from persons who indicate they are convinced he is drawing actual fellow citizens of theirs. Young, however, is surprised by the enormous number of folks who have offered names for the baby. He didn't suspect he and his fellow judges would have over 350,000 suggestions to choose from. It'll require another two or three weeks for them to complete their does it again!

The Company that gave America its FIRST special motor fuel is now FIRST AGAIN...with new, mightier HYDRO-FORMED AMOCO!

Over twenty-five years ago, the American Oil Company gave Amoco-Gas to the public. It was the first special motor fuel—making possible the high compression automobile motor.

At first people smiled—wondered why a special fuel was necessary. Then they tried Amoco-Gas, and discovered that they obtained performance and economy absolutely impossible for any ordinary gasoline to deliver.

Steadily Improved, Year by Year

As motors became more powerful, as compression increased, as operating temperatures moved up, Amoco-Gas kept pace, stepping up quality and efficiency with each motor improvement.

Amoco Does It Again!

For years chemists and engineers have striven to improve gasoline efficiency even more, by regulating its combustion in the cylinders. They knew that if a way could be found to cut down violent, explosive shock, much power-waste could be eliminated—transformed into useful energy.

Hydro-forming Solves The Problem!

Now the problem has been solved by the revolutionary new Hydro-forming Process of refining gasoline, pioneered by the American Oil Company, and used to make Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas.

Hydro-forming imparts new and even mightier qualities to Amoco. Most important of all, it permits combustion control—Flame Control!

Flame Control Gives Cushioned Power!

Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas burns in a different way. Flame Control reduces violent, explosive shock, cuts down waste, and produces more useful energy. Cushioned Power now replaces severe detonation—delivers a satin-soft, s-m-o-o-t-h surge of energy—a flow of driving power that follows the pistons through their entire course. Vibration is hushed—destructive pounding on bearings and moving parts is reduced.

Better Road Octane!

Official results of road tests by Industry Committees show that conventional gasolines, on the average, lose octanes on the road. Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas actually gains them—surpassing laboratory figures because its knock-arresting constituents become vaporized, distributed more evenly and impartially to all cylinders alike.

An All-time High in Quality!

Good as Amoco-Gas has always been, it is now mightier than ever—reaching an all-time high in quality and efficiency. Everything that makes for outstanding performance moves to new levels. Point for point, it is the finest motor fuel we have ever produced.

Test Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas yourself! Compare it feature for feature, with any other gas you have ever used. See how it outdates your old conception of quick starting, of getaway and pickup, of pulling power and mileage.

Never before have we made such a mighty motor fuel!

Use Natural Color Cosmetics

This lovely model conditions her skin with a mint julep face mask.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU aspire to be a complexion counterfeiter? Do you lay on the fluffy powder, the synthetic blush, the rosy glow on your lips, and consider your art work first class? If so, there's no need of your reading this, because we are set upon the task of bawling out the young lady who makes a mess of her face and looks like a colored funny picture. It is being done all the time, which is not to the credit of our sex.

It is the aim now to look human, to follow nature's complexion patterns. One should no longer place carmine circles on one's cheeks, but fluff on only the lightest glow up near the temples. The lipstick is calling a halt on itself, vivid reds giving way to softer, more subdued tones of the raspberry type. Penciled eyebrows are out of date and they never were much good, anyway. Darken the silky threads with mascara which does not touch the underlying skin surface.

Many a woman who put on make-up in wholesale lots has found to her satisfaction that she looks younger and fresher when she uses restraint. Features appear more delicate, too. That brittle appearance does a disappearing act.

Keep the skin conditioned; that can be done by using creams and oils freely. Apply a cream after the nightly face washing. Use a thin oil for removing make-up before soap is used.

Don't fancy that make-up will hide imperfections; it won't. If the skin is sallow, cut down on rich foods, drink orange juice every day. If small pustules are present, get after them; it may be best to consult a medical man who specializes in diseases of the skin and scalp. If pores are coarse, have two ice rubs every day, following each one with applications of witch hazel.

If make-up does not impart an appearance of freshness, it misses the mark and is a grand fizzle.

"Convoying Means Shooting, And Shooting Means War"

The most important question facing the nation today is that of convoying—shall United States warships be used to convoy shipments to Great Britain.

Wendell Willkie summed the argument for convoys when he stated: "There is no use in our speeding up production over here if our supplies for over there are to rest on the bottom of the ocean."

That is a hard argument to get around, even though the Gallup poll shows 50% of the American people opposed to convoys and 41% for them, with 9% undecided.

But let's examine Mr. Willkie's statement. How many British bound ships are being sunk?

Admiral Emory S. Lard, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, in a letter to a Senate Committee last week said that of 205 vessels cleared from United States ports for the United Kingdom for the three months ending March 31, just eight were sunk, or only 4%. Even with convoys it is doubtful if British shipping losses between here and the United Kingdom could be reduced much below that 4%.

In considering the question of convoys the American people must consider, too, the consequences. In considering this we have been impressed with two statements, one by Mr. Willkie and one by President Roosevelt. Mr. Willkie on February 11, last, in his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee stated: "The convoy of ships might lead to an attack on them that might be provocative of war. I do not think American sentiment will permit that action."

President Roosevelt was more terse when he told his press conference recently: "Convoying means shooting, and shooting means war."

So the question at issue in considering the use of convoys is not alone whether we shall keep British ships from being sunk but whether we shall enter the war in the full sense—with ships and planes and guns and men. We, the people, in trying to determine whether America shall convoy must determine at the same time whether the United States is prepared for war and should engage in war.

Time Payment Curb

Congressional authority to regulate installment selling of automobiles and other consumer goods to conserve industrial resources for the defense program and to prevent inflation will be sought by the Federal Reserve Board when the President gives the go ahead signal, it has been disclosed. A staff of experts, headed by Dr. Carl Parry, has made a study of time buying for the Board.

If the authority is granted by Congress, the nation's buying habits may be drastically altered. Initial payments on automobiles, refrigerators, and a myriad other articles will be materially increased—compulsorily—and payment of the balance will be spread over a shorter period of time than is now the practice.

The plan, according to reports, is to apply the restrictions, if authorized, to the new and used car financing business immediately, and then progressively to other sizable consumer items. The new car business has been singled out for initial application of the restrictions because of the need of automobile manufacturing facilities in the defense program, and the used car business is grouped with the new car business in the plans presumably as a step toward heading off inflation.

Installment buying has developed into a major segment of the nation's merchandising economy. Almost everything from houses to jewelry is now available on extended payments to anyone who has a few dollars to make a down payment. It is likely that installment merchandisers and financiers will demand that Congress specifically tag an enactment placing this business under the control of the Federal Reserve Board as an emergency measure, to lapse at the end of the war.

What Other Papers Say

CRITICISM FOR MADAM PERKINS

(Butte, Mont., Standard)

Little is heard these days about Madame Perkins, secretary of labor, except in criticism. In the United States Senate last week, so conservative and sober a Democrat as Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, called for the immediate resignation or removal of Madam Perkins from her important post in the cabinet.

"Miss Perkins is an estimable lady and does the best she can within the limits of her capacity and inclinations," Byrd said. "But as a strike settler she has proved to be a complete washout, and her record is one barren of results. Whatever useful Miss Perkins ever had is now overshadowed by her complete ineptness, weakness and inability to meet her responsibilities in the settlement of strikes."

The appointment of a two-fisted man in her place, who would be fair to labor, but who would have the intestinal fortitude to say to labor, as well as to capital, that no interruptions in the defense program by unnecessary strikes will be tolerated, either on the part of labor or capital, would do a great deal to restore the confidence of the American people, who today are beginning to wonder and doubt as to why in this crisis that now confronts us, our defense program should be held up by the arbitrary action of a few."

Senator Byrd declared that the strike trouble in this country grows out of the failure of Madam Perkins to condemn sit-down strikes several years ago as illegal and her refusal to utter a single word of disapproval of such violation of the fundamentals of the common law.

With regard to labor in the United States, Senator Byrd said:

"We have no more patriotic class of citizens than the labor class of America. They are the very backbone of our republic. We have no class of citizens more anxious to see this country adequately and promptly prepared to meet any and all eventualities the future may hold for the nation. All that the vast majority of the American working men want is justice. It is to me distressing that a small and willful minority of labor leaders and working men of America should be permitted to discredit the overwhelming majority of American labor."

MEDIATION REFORM

(From the Washington Merry-Go-Round)

Senator Harry Byrd, of Virginia, recently told the Senate that the Defense Mediation Board should have the power to take jurisdiction over labor disputes without waiting for Secretary Perkins to certify them, he was saying out loud what members of the board have been discussing privately among themselves.

It was on Miss Perkins' insistence that her certifying authority was included in the President's order setting up the Mediation Board. OFM chiefs opposed it for fear that the Labor Department would use it to hold on to cases in the hope of getting credit for settling them. This is exactly what happened in the coal strike, which could have been avoided had the matter been promptly certified to the Mediation Board.

After a month of practical experience, members are convinced that this is the biggest single obstacle to their effectiveness in averting defense strikes. They want authority to take charge of controversies without waiting for the Secretary of Labor to give them the green light.

The Human Side Of The News

By Edwin C. Hill

Ever since he sprouted wings, man has been out-running the winds. Out-running sound is something new, as Milo Burcham, Los Angeles test pilot, drives a plane so fast that it disappears over the horizon before spectators on the ground can hear the motor. Jeremiah correctly prophesied that their chariots shall run like the lightning through the streets. We wonder what his simile would have been had he turned his vision skyward.

Milo Burcham, however, didn't quite literally outdistance sound waves. As we figure it, that speed would be something like 600 miles an hour. At this speed, one would be unable to hear an approaching plane, coming head-on. Mr. Burcham hit 458 miles an hour, piloting a Lockheed P-38 Interceptor over the Los Angeles Municipal Airport. That is, at any rate, a fair enough challenge of the speed of sound, and when a dive-bomber takes a long straight plunge, it actually may reach a speed of more than 600 miles an hour.

We may not hope to out-run light even if we "fly on the wings of the morning," but as to these lagging sound waves, they'll be just an also-ran if we ever really get in a hurry.

SPEED LITERALLY TEARS PILOT TO PIECES

But there are several ifs and ands complicating this ever-quickening sky-derby and the demand for speed in air warfare, where the battle is to the swift. The most important of these is the simple fact that any complete abandon in hurdling a powerful plane through the sky literally tears a man to pieces. It jars loose his viscera and it gives his blood supply a centrifugal whirl which may finish him then and there or leave him shockingly crippled and suffering.

Swift changes of air pressure may subject him to dangers and ailments comparable to the "bends," suffered by sandhogs. A test pilot not only is testing a plane, he is testing a test pilot, under stress and strain to which no men have ever before been subjected in all history. And there is no second guess if he goes wrong on what his body or his plane may endure.

Medical science helps meet these new demands on the human machine. There are glandular and vitamin injections which help to counteract the disturbance of the blood flow, and to maintain other bodily equilibriums. And there are now depression chambers, such as

Vitamins in the Diet

Synthetic Products Are Seldom Needed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● Since we are living in the days of synthetic vitamins and vitamins in bottles, and re-enforced bread, and a great deal of other dietetic propaganda, it is difficult for the average person to keep his head about the necessities of his diet. As a matter of fact, it would be pretty hard to make up a diet in which oxalic acid was not contained in some food or other. Practically all fruits and vegetables contain small amounts of oxalic acid.

Fallacy About Tomatoes

The same thing may be said about the campaign that tomatoes should be eliminated from the diet because they contain copper. In this food, and in many others, copper is a useful and important food element because it influences blood formation favorably.

The tendency towards whole cereals or whole wheat bread is decidedly a healthy one provided not too much of them is taken and provided the individual is able to stand the amount of roughage which many of these foods contain.

The principal lesson to be learned from the many pronouncements that are made about food requirements nowadays, is that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. It is not necessary to make special efforts to procure all the food elements mentioned in the books on nutrition. Anyone who follows his instinct and eats a general diet is bound to get enough of all the elements.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reader:—"Will you tell through your column how long a cold or flu germ would be active? For instance, how long after using would be a glass, or spoon, or a handkerchief used by one with a cold or flu transmit the germ to one using or handling these articles?"

Answer:—No definite answer can be given to this question. However, it may be said that the ordinary washing of dishes and eating utensils in scalding water and the laundering of a handkerchief will kill the germs. It is believed now that the incubation of a cold is quite long and symptoms do not appear until perhaps two weeks after exposure.

MURDER MAKES A HERO

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

When I detected Cary in the act of furtively sliding a paper into his pocket, my heart seemed to fall, with a sickening thud, down to my very heels. It rose until it almost choked me and sank again leaving me with the sensation of being an interior vacuum.

He had found something he did not want his grandfather to see. The attempts to procure and destroy his father's papers were undoubtedly justified. What was on that paper?

I kept my eyelids lowered as though intent upon my work, but from the corner of my eye I closely watched him.

When the paper was safely out of sight, he sighed heavily and went rapidly through the papers remaining before him. A second and third time he went through them as though searching for something; then, raising his head, for a long moment he soberly regarded his grandfather.

A worried frown creased itself between his eyebrows. As though obsessed by a sudden thought, he reached over and took the pile of papers he had instructed me to copy. He went through them as rapidly as he had done with the others and returned them to their place before me without removing any.

Again he seemed lost in thought. As he came to a decision, he again went through the papers before him and, removing one, said, in a voice which shook perceptibly: "Granddad, have you come across anything about a cargo of dreamers had run into Nicaragua?"

The old captain raised his eyes from the log book he was reading. A painted expression crept over his features.

"Are you going to use that in the book?"

"I am not, but I've found a reference to it here, and I'd like to see if there are any more."

With a shaky hand, the old captain pushed his pile of papers nearer Cary.

"Look them over, boy," he said, "perhaps you'll find something. I'm glad you don't want to use it. I'm surprised Cary kept anything about that cargo. I didn't want him to accept it but he would do it. Said freightage was so scarce he couldn't afford to turn anything down. That if he didn't do it, some one else would and the revolutionists' money was just as good as anyone's else."

"He didn't see it the way I did and—he was a man grown—I couldn't stop him from doing what he wanted to. The very next year he lost his ship. I told him then that 'chickens always come home to roost,' but he just laughed at me. To my knowledge, it was the first time an Essex ship was mixed up in a thing like that. If he'd really sympathized with the rebels, it would have been different. He didn't. All he cared for was the money he was to receive." The old captain removed his hand from the pile of papers he had pushed toward Cary.

From the way Cary's hand shot out and pulled those papers to him, I knew he was thankful to get them into his possession. But he was too wily to reveal his eagerness to the captain. He leaned back in his chair and remarked, in a judicial voice:

"I suppose, Granddad, there was a good deal to be said for both sides of the revolution, but I'm like you, I'd rather keep away from such things."

"You're right, boy, absolutely right! Money isn't everything in this world. Look through the papers and, if you find anything there, the place for it, in my opinion, is the fire." He snapped out the last word and returned to his perusal of the log.

Slowly and carefully, Cary went through the papers. When his hand fell away from the pile and his head bent in concentration upon the sheet before him, I knew he had found what he sought.

With one eye on the old captain, he stealthily drew the sheet from the pile, and it joined the other in his pocket. He went through the rest of the papers, laying two to one side, and with a mutter which sounded to me like a "thank God," pushed the pile, with an air of distaste, away from him.

"I've found these two papers, Granddad," he said. "This is the one I found first. Will you look at them and decide if I shall burn them?"

He held the papers toward his grandfather, who looked at him with loathing at them but made no move to take them.

"Is that all there are?" he asked. "All I could find."

"Then burn them, boy, burn them. I don't want even to look at them!"

Cary rose from his chair, crossed to the fireplace where a good fire was burning and laid the three sheets, one at a time, upon the flaming logs. Each one smoldered for a second, then burst into flame, and shortly was only a sheet of thin red ash which turned gray, fell into pieces and was whisked up the chimney.

For some time, Cary stood, foot on the fender, gazing down into the fire, apparently lost in thought. When he turned toward me, his face was drawn into lines of suffering which made my heart ache in sympathy.

Whatever he had found was important enough to change his expression completely. He had, ever since I had known him, been graver-faced than his cousin, but now he seemed to have been transformed from a man lingering on the threshold of youth to one disillusioned and aged far beyond his years.

Have never admired him more than then when, with marvelous self-control, he sat down in his chair and resumed his inspection of the papers. It did not take him very long to go through the two piles before him. Conscientiously, he read every one of them, but he acted as though the main-spring of his interest had broken. To me, his attitude plainly betokened deep thought on a subject other than the particular sheet he might be holding, and I was sure he was counterfeiting an absorption he did not feel to prevent his grandfather from suspecting his discomfiture.

When he had laid the last paper on the combined pile before him, he leaned back in his chair, wet his lips nervously before he addressed the old captain and said:

"I'm afraid there's not much of interest here, Granddad. It's mostly the same old story—poor business and cutting prices to keep the Cay Lady afloat."

"This log is practically the same thing," returned the captain. "It could be worked up into a telling account of the straits our American shipmasters were in trying to keep afloat. When Cary lost the Cay Lady, he refused to invest in another ship but was in communication with one of the big freight steamer lines, and, if he hadn't been lost, himself, I feel sure he would have been given command of a steamer. I hated to see him make the change, but he'd hung on as long as he could, and there was nothing else to do."

Cary nodded assent; then, noticing a sharp glance from the captain, he replied:

"When you've gone over the papers, we'll talk about it again. I'll need your advice about that."

His grandfather smiled, well-pleased at that, and Cary continued:

"I think I'll call it a day, Granddad. I'm tired, and I know you must be. Nancy has plenty to do, so suppose we adjourn until tomorrow?"

The captain was tired enough to agree without argument to the proposal, and Cary and I went to the library. I went at once to the alcove. There was still considerable shorthand copying for me to do, so I went to a small table which stood by the window where I could see without turning on the electric lights so early in the afternoon.

The leather curtain was pushed aside, and from where I sat I could see Cary at his desk. With no thought of spying, I watched him as he drew from his pocket the two papers he had hidden there and bent above them in deep consideration. Just as Mark came through the library door, Cary sprang to his feet and hurried out, in his eagerness almost knocking against his cousin.

"Hey, there, old fellow, what's the hurry?" laughed Mark. "I came in for a chat."

"I have to talk to Aunt Althea," Cary's words were almost unintelligible. "I'll be back in a moment."

"What the heck's biting him?" demanded Mark, coming into the alcove.

"I haven't an idea," I said, crisply. I wished he would go out. I had every intention of lifting the bookcase door and listening. I knew it would be a low trick to do, but I also knew now that I loved Cary, and that his troubles were mine!

City Sections Are In Need

Clean-Up Campaign Does Not Go to Poorest Homes.

Dr. Ernest L. Shore, Harrisonburg health officer, yesterday praised the residents of the city for cleaning up their premises, but reminded that in some sections of the city poverty and uncleanness exist.

The officer made this comment: "The community is to be congratulated for the fine response to the cleanup campaign thus far during the months of April and May. Yards have been cleared of the accumulated debris, gardens have been prepared, fertilizer has been disposed of and two city trucks have been necessary to collect the refuse."

"There are, however, a few places requiring more attention. The interior of many houses exhibit considerable poverty. Food and rent consume all the funds. Old furniture, broken and in need of repair and paint, is all that is available. Old clothes, patch upon patch and hole in the middle, and other remnants of articles are saved in piles in room corners."

"Cleanliness becomes a foreign term and filth accumulates. Depression of spirit and morale follows and disease increases. Disease is, therefore, economic because it follows in the footsteps of poverty."

"The level of any civilization is identical with the economic level of its people, for the loss of economic liberty is followed immediately by the loss of political liberty."

McGaheysville Band Program On Wednesday

L. I. Good has been giving much time to the work of the band and is eager to have more members.

Gonorrhea Treatments At Harrisonburg Clinic

Individuals with gonorrhea, who are indigent, will, from now on, be treated at the Harrisonburg Venereal Disease Clinic, the Rockingham County Health Department stated yesterday. Previous to this date cases of syphilis only had been accepted for treatment, and this arrangement existed in the majority of county clinics throughout the state.

With the advent of new chemotherapeutic agents, however, the treatment of gonorrhea has been improved, and it is the use of these drugs in the Harrisonburg Venereal Disease Clinic that has enabled the service to be expanded. The Harrisonburg Venereal Disease Clinic is in session every Wednesday from 1 to 2 p. m. and from 5 to 6 p. m. for the treatment of indigent cases of syphilis and also gonorrhea.

The H. H. S. Spectator

Bill Rea—
"Skeeter," as his classmates call him, is one of the star athletes of the class. He is five feet eleven and one half inches tall, has brown hair, hazel eyes, and his shoulders like Tarzan. He is a big little man too.

"Mr. District Attorney" is considered the best program on the radio as far as Skeeter is concerned. He also likes to hear Andy Kirk and his clouds of Joy play his favorite piece, "In The Hush of the Night."

For a pastime Skeeter plays and sees football, baseball or any game in season. He also likes to see movies in which Hugh Herbert and Spencer Tracy play.

No one would ever guess by looking at Skeeter that his hobby is keeping a scrapbook. He also spends his leisure time with an other hobby—a blonde—can anyone guess who? Gals! If you're a blonde and wear blue, you have a good chance to receive one of Skeeter's smiles.

In H. H. S. Math is his favorite subject. Wonder what subject will rate with Skeeter next year when he's a freshman at the University of Virginia?

Before closing we would like to say a few things about Skeeter. For a radiant smile, real versatility a kind manner, and a nice personality, Skeeter can't be beaten.

Norman Smith—
Norman is a Dorsey and Pastor fan. When these orchestra leaders conduct their bands Norman is always listening to the radio of course. The matter of choosing his favorite song was much too hard as he asked to be allowed to have two favorite songs. "Number Ten Lullaby Lane" and "Amapola."

For a favorite subject in H. H. S. Norman picked chemistry. He thinks the phase of science is pretty "science"—if I may use the slang word.

Mickey "Andy Hardy" Rooney tops his list of favorites along the movie line. Next comes Spencer Tracy, a co-star so after with Mickey, and last but not least Edward G. Robinson. Norman really has a good list of stars.

While he has no special colors he does have an extra-special hobby. His hobby is collecting stamps. So if any stamp collector wants to trade a stamp for a stamp, I'd advise them to see Norman.

This blonde, blue-eyed, five feet eleven, senior is planning to enter Bridgewater College next year. Along with my classmates I heartily agree that no matter where Norman goes next fall or any other fall he will find friends and success.

Gillian Webster—
Somewhere in an office next year this time, Gilliam will be working. That's what he plans anyway.

Collecting stamps and snapshots are his hobbies. He is never to busy to examine a stamp or look at a snapshot. In fact, he is an expert on both.

He is a brunette, has brown eyes and stands five feet ten and one half. He has a pleasing smile and a winning personality. Home economics is tops with him in H. H. S. (Another interesting subject is a blonde at M. C.—this is a tip that is very confidential).

In the field of sports baseball and football hold plenty of fun for Gilliam whether he is playing or watching. On the air Glen Miller and Kay Kyser furnishes the best programs for him. However, his favorite orchestras are Gruy Lombardo and Jan Garber. Stardust is the favorite piece. The one Gilliam just can't forget.

Gilliam, like other classmates has picked blue for his favorite color. He also says Spencer Tracy and John Garfield are wonderful actors. In fact, they're his favorites.

on the screen.

Gilliam, with his willingness and confidence will reach many parts in life. Do think of your 41 classmates once in a while in years to come.

Edith Pennington—
A truer blonde can not be found in the entire class of '41. Edith not only possesses beautiful blonde hair, but equally beautiful blue eyes. She is the shortest girl in the class, standing only five feet one inch tall.

Edith plans to be a secretary next year. Along with her sweet disposition and lovely manner she has the eagerness and willingness to make her employer extremely fond of her. Her favorite subjects in H. H. S. are shorthand and typing. From this statement one can easily see Edith will have no trouble in her life's work.

Glen Miller has another fan in petite Edith. Just the same she doesn't want to slight Kay Kyser, for she thinks his Kollege of Musical Knowledge is the best program broadcasted.

Her very favorite song is the nation's first—Amapola. For recreation she skates, bowls, dances, plays basketball and baseball. She gets her excitement and relaxation from watching Madeline Carroll, Richard Green and Dennis Morgan.

Her favorite colors are easily guessed for she wears both of them frequently—pink and blue.

Edith has never been a leader of the class, but she has been a good pusher. She has been a great help in putting over all her beloved class activities. The members of this year's class say goodbye to Edith, reluctantly, as they know a good classmate will be out on her own soon.

Kathleen Purcell—
Kathleen told me a secret—yes, she told me her favorites along almost all lines. Of course, this is confidential—so please don't tell.

First of all her favorite sports are football and basketball. She is good at games too because she is a fast runner.

Her favorite movie stars are Bette Davis and Dennis Morgan. In dear old H. H. S. Kathleen prefers bookkeeping and English to the other subjects. Tommy Dorsey rates her "stamp of approval" for both "sweet and swing" music. What's the matter with Glen Miller?

On the radio Major Bowes and his original Amateur hour is her favorite program—without a doubt! Blue Echoes is about the finest popular piece in circulation today as far as Kathleen is concerned. Her favorite color is blue too. Now that I've let you in on my secret let me tell you something about Kathleen.

Kathleen is five feet two, has brown hair, and hazel eyes. She always has a cheery hello and a sweet smile for everyone. For hobbies she collects stamps and match covers.

By the way Kathleen plans to work next year. Now don't forget. This is all very confidential. Jean Slaven—

Madison, here is another freshman to add to your list. Jean plans to enter Madison with lots of her schoolmates next fall. For a hobby Jean collects elephants, all sizes and colors. She'd be very grateful for any donations. She also likes to read, when she has time, dance and go to the movies—especially when Margaret

Spray Now For Codling Moth

Should Start May 15 and End Within Five Days.

The first cover spray for apples to control codling moths should begin in Rockingham County not later than May 15 and should be completed in five days. County Agent S. M. Cox said yesterday.

Representatives of the entomology department of the Extension Service who watch the development of the insects in the orchards throughout the state, report that during the past few days moths have been coming out in large numbers.

The county agent said yesterday that good codling moth control is important in reducing the amount of low grade fruit and that to avoid this it was important to control the first brood of worms.

In speaking of materials to be used in the spraying, he advised the use of flotation sulphur or one of the better wettable sulphurs. Add three pounds of arsenate of lead mixed with four pounds of spray lime. Add the lime and arsenate of lead last. If lime and sulphur is used then use three pounds of lime with the three pounds of arsenate of lead. Growers who plan to use oil in the second cover spray should use 1 1/2-3-100 Bordeaux mixture. Add three pounds of arsenate of lead.

Jean's manner is very sweet. She is bubbling over with willingness and is always ready to undertake a new job. She has hazel eyes and long brown hair. She is only five feet two inches tall.

English and French take top honors with Jean. They rate above all other subjects. Bob Hope furnishes many good laughs for Jean. She never lets anything stand in her way when she wants to listen to him. As for the colors—blue or wine will serve her purpose at anytime.

Next year, Jean, when your classmates are in all directions think of them once in a while for they'll be thinking of you.

The champion Lynchburg Senators slashed out a 12 to 4 victory over the Harrisonburg Turks last night to tighten their grip on first place.

Lefty Eddie Haswell limited Harrisonburg to five hits and fanned 12. He held the Turks hitless until after the Senators combined hitting and errors to register seven runs in the fourth round.

Lud Davis dropped his first decision of the season, but his support was none too good. Lefty Niemeyer who relieved Davis allowed only two hits in four innings. Davis was touched for 10 but they came at opportune times following a pass or an error.

Salem Here Tonight
The Salem Friends play here tonight and tomorrow night. Bob Cleer is slated to take the mound tonight. Salem always has been the hardest club in the league for the Turks to beat and the fans are hopeful Harrisonburg will overcome some of their faults of last night.

Eleven men faced Davis in the big inning. Seven scored on seven hits and three errors. Lahey erred on Bohonko's double play ball and before the side was retired six runs crossed the plate. Lahey later drove in two of the Harrisonburg runs with a long fly and a single.

Bill Booker, Lynchburg left fielder, had a big night at the expense of the Harrisonburg pitchers. He poked out four hits, two of them doubles, and drove over five runs. Ray had three hits, one a triple to deep right center. Queen and Mincy hit doubles for Harrisonburg but no player was able to collect more than one hit off Haswell.

Utz In Hospital
While his teammates were vainly striving to overcome the big Lynchburg lead, Southpaw Ernest Utz was undergoing an operation at Rockingham Memorial Hospital for appendicitis. Utz who limited Lynchburg to five hits on Sunday and lost a 1-0 hurling duel to Pat Cooper, complained of feeling badly yesterday afternoon and was sent to the hospital.

Late last night, it was said he withstood the operation well. Utz who was counted upon to regain the form which made him the league's leading hurler two years ago, will be out until after July 4, club officials said. He was out of action a good part of last season because of ill health and then was hit in the head.

NEWPORT NEWS, May 12. (P)—Salem's cellar-dwelling Friends rallied twice here tonight in the late innings to defeat the Builders, 13-8, shelling Jack Haerle and Bozie Berger from the mound.

Toy Bowen went the route for the Builders, pitching 11-hit ball, but the Builders were never able to bunt their hits effectively.

Lou Knerr, the third Newport News pitcher, pitched a single to Bowen to drive in the clinching run. Al Gardella knocked in three more with a homer off Knerr. The Friends went base-hit beserk, registering 17 safeties.

Cubs Again Tounce Reds

CINCINNATI, May 12. (P)—Behind Bill Lee's six-hit hurling, Chicago's Cubs did it again today, clawing out a 12 to 1 victory over Cincinnati in the weirdest exhibition of sandlot baseball the still young season has produced.

Stan Hack, first up in the first inning, walked; Lou Stringer tripled home and the big parade was on, to continue three innings.

In all, three world champion hurlers allowed 14 hits, served up 10 bases on balls, and one, Jim Turner, contributed one of his team's four miscues. Lee walked five, struck out two.

Riggelman pitched for the losers. Early was the only Daly man to get two hits.

The United Brethren Church team and the Elks battled to a 6-6 tie on the Main Street field, the game being called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness. Cavey hurled for the Elks allowing eight hits, two each by Early and C. Garber, while Early allowed the Elks eight hits, two each by Green and L. Moore, and Quate was credited with the only home run of the game which tied the count in the seventh inning, for the Elks. This game will be played over on Wednesday evening on the Main Street diamond.

Red Sox Trim Yanks, 8 To 4

Lefty Grove Marks Up His 295th Big League Victory.

BOSTON, May 12. (P)—The Boston Red Sox took a tighter hold on second place in the American League today by conquering the New York Yankees 8 to 4 to give old Lefty Bob Grove the 295th victory of his major league career.

It was the fourth straight triumph for the Red Sox and moved them to 2 1-2 games behind the idle Cleveland Indians. The game brought together two of the leading left-handers in American League history, Grove and Vernon Gomez of the Yankees, but while Grove groped his way slowly, steadily over the full nine innings, Gomez was pounded for all Boston's runs and departed at the end of three chapters.

Gomez walked two men in the first inning and Jimmie Foxx brought them home with his second home run of the season. Another walk and a double by Jim Tabor counted a run and a double error by Third Baseman Red Rolfe let in still another.

With two out in the second Ted Williams singled and Foxx walked. Then Williams raced to third on a wild pitch and came home on a passed ball by Buddy Roar. In the third inning, Dom DiMaggio's double and Stan Spence's single scored two more.

It made no difference that Marvin Breuer and Norman Branch held the Sox scoreless on three hits the rest of the way because Grove managed to keep the Yankees under control except for a wobbly third inning, when New York bunched four hits for three runs.

Rolfe started this uprising with a double. Charley Keller singled for one run. Joe Gordon doubled and Rosar singled for two tallies.

Cards Best Pirates, 6 to 2

PITTSBURGH, May 12. (P)—Veteran Lonnie Warneke, the Arkansas hillbilly with the bullpen pitching arm, threw a seven-hit ball game today and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-2, to sweep the two-game series.

Only Vince DiMaggio gave Lonnie trouble as the crafty right-hander sailed smoothly to his fourth triumph of the season. Vince robbed Warneke of a shutout by blasting a bender out of the park in the fifth inning to score a runner ahead of him and he singled later. But Warneke had his revenge when he struck out DiMaggio to end the ball game in the ninth.

While Warneke was mowing down the Pirates, the Redbirds gave out with a persistent, 13-hit assault. The Cards kept pecking away at Ken Heintzelman's left-handed shoos, scoring runs singly in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

After Heintzelman had been removed for a pinch-hitter, the Cards collected their final two runs in the seventh off another southpaw, Dick Lannahan.

The victory inched the second place Cards a half game closer to the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers who were idle today. A game and a half now separates the contenders.

Senators Win Over Athletics

WASHINGTON, May 12. (P)—The Washington Senators bunched eight blows effectively behind the six-hit hurling of Dutch Leonard today to defeat Philadelphia 5 to 1. It was the veteran knuckle baller's third straight win of the season.

Lester McCrabb, rookie right-hander, was invincible for the first three innings, but the Nats exploded four runs in the fourth. In that inning Mickey Vernon homered over the right field fence, Buddy Lewis and Ben Chapman singled, Cecil Travis doubled and Jimmy Bloodworth tripled. McCrabb gave up another run in the fifth when Roger Cramer doubled, Travis singled and Lewis filed to the outfield.

The A's scored in the second on two hits and an outfield fly. Philadelphia took the series, two games to one.

Most People Make Light of Measles, But Complications May Be Dangerous

Youngsters' Spare Time Is Not Really a Problem

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

"ONE home trouble today is that there are no chores for the boy of the family to do and very little for the girl either." Thus spoke a mother who, like so many mothers, is pestered by the problem of filling in the spare time of her children. The youngsters spend it now at the movies or in dance halls, she wailed, and there isn't much one can do about it, there's so little to occupy their time.

acter building and helpful somewhat, somehow.

No Corner Loafers

As for spending their time at the movies—they might, in fact often did do worse. It's better— isn't it?—than standing around street corners as of yore, or concentrating, either on street corners or elsewhere, on silly flirtations. Today's young people are not amused by ogling passing girls or flirting with street loafers. They meet on a different and far firmer footing. They at least exchange such ideas as they may have, ideas which even when goofy are better than no ideas at all.

A mother cannot expect her children to study or work all the time. She should expect them to devote some part of the time out of school to learning or doing something instructive. Look at the boys who, at an early age, have become sufficiently proficient with some musical instrument to join a band. Even if you detest swing, isn't it better to have your son expressing himself by blowing into an instrument than by blowing about himself or his exploits?

It's quite possible you will not be sympathetic with the "line" your child decides to take up, but does that matter? The main thing is to provide something interesting for him or her, something that at the same time may develop either a talent or some latent quality that may stand him in good stead.

The defense program is a blessing, not altogether in disguise, since it provides endless jobs, and thus not only keeps the young out of mischief but fits them comfortably into some useful niche.

Work Won't Harm

If there are no chores around the home that are possible for your son today, encourage him to take on some after-school job. A few hours' work, no matter how menial, is not going to hurt him one bit. On the contrary, it will give him some notion of how much work one has to do to earn a dollar. In turn it will teach him to make fewer demands on the family purse. No child who isn't taught the value of money can be expected to spend it wisely.

It seems as if we were reverting back to the old principle that every boy should learn a trade. That every girl should be taught to be self-supporting was not part of the old order of life, although it has been the custom now for many years. And girls are, on the whole, better for it. By being made independent of men they have become more choosy of them—which is certainly good both for the girls and for the men.

The wise parent keeps the children busy, not by over-working them as was sometimes the case with the farm boy, but busy in a variety of ways both amusing and constructive. If they need direction, try suggestion. Better still, give them time to decide on their own course for that will be their natural bent and the thing they should develop.

Short Cuts

Gems will not scorch if you fill one of the gem pans with water.

Cauliflower cooked in half milk and half water will remain white and give off no odor while cooking. The liquid may be used for cream sauce or in soup.

When onions, turnips or carrots are sliced in rings rather than split up and down, they cook more quickly.

Eggs will not crack when boiled if a little salt is put in the water before putting the eggs in.

Cream pie or custard will not become watery if the milk is scalded before using.

Famous Pianist Against Excess Of Practice

By TALBOT LAKE

VLADIMIR HOROWITZ, the pianist, after a five-year absence from the concert stage, recently gave two concerts in Carnegie Hall in New York. The place was jammed. Tickets were sold six months in advance. He is now going on a tour of the country.

Horowitz is only 36 but, five years ago, when he had an appendicitis operation, he liked the rest so much—the chance to think and replenish spiritually—that he just didn't return to the concert stage till he felt like it.

He says, "If you play five or six times a week in concerts, you soon play the piano like a typewriter. I intend to play no more than two concerts a week, and only a few months a year, so that I can keep up my interest in the work. You must love your work—you can't if it becomes routine. I practice only three hours a day, and that is tremendous. On tour, I never practice at all. I use the concerts."

Which explains why his performances are so dazzling and fresh. He looks that way himself—he is a very relaxed person.

Born in Kiev, Russia, he started playing the piano at the age of six. He was a sensation in concerts as a youngster. During the revolution, he was paid in butter and flour—and he was glad to get it. He first came to this country in 1928, and played to sell-out. He has done so ever since.

The former Wanda Toscanini, daughter of the great conductor, is his wife. They have a six-year-old daughter, Sonya. She is the apple of her father's eye, and shows great talent for the piano already.

Horowitz now speaks English fluently, but used to make amusing mistakes. When he played at the White House for Hoover, he shook the President's hand and said solemnly, "I am delighted."

He wants a farm in Vermont, and is very eager to get his final citizenship papers. The Horowitz family and Toscanini in-laws are very close. They live and travel together.

The pianist's named should be pronounced "Horowitz," because the letter "H" in Russian is pronounced that way. When he first came to this country, the mistake in pronunciation was made, and it has been Horowitz ever since.

No Matter How Long Wed, Always Keep Your Charm

By JACQUELINE HUNT

ANY girl may make a stunning bride, but it takes a wise girl to look even prettier a year after this important occasion. Keeping house for two is a thrilling experience, but unaccustomed chores can be hard on looks, unless, a girl uses judgment and forethought. Do not let your new husband's pride in you suffer because you have allowed your hands to reddish or your hair to become drab and neglected. Beauty casualties can be prevented in most cases. Mild soaps for your dishwashing and laundry and laundry gloves for grimy chores, frequent application of creams, cuticle oil and lotions will keep your hands lovely.

MISS HUNT

A plan for your housework will allow you at least a little time for beauty care and rest, so you will look fresh and pretty when husband arrives home at night. No matter how small your budget, by skillful spending you can have enough to afford a good hair-styling and permanent twice a year and perhaps an occasional wave-set.

Have a Schedule

Prepare a schedule for at least your major beauty measures, like shampoos and manicures, beauty baths and pedicures and exercise if you need it. Of course, you'll probably get enough exercise in doing your housework. But once a week, if you can manage it, do something special.

Join a class for exercise, swimming for a long walk or play some game you particularly enjoy. Or, have hubby take you out to a dance. Dancing is a splendid form of exercise, grand for your figure and for your outlook on life.

Your weekly manicure will not be a chore if you give your hands daily attention. Use gloves for housework whenever possible. This gives you a chance to apply cream and cuticle oil so you actually have a beauty treatment while working. Use gloves when you garden too. Some gloves have been treated inside to soften and whiten your hands while you prune and plant and dig.

Then there is that old trick of scraping your fingernails over a cake of soap before doing any grimy task. The soap helps prevent nail breakage and eliminates stubborn stains. Simply wash it away with a brush when the job is done.

Keep a bottle of hand lotion near your kitchen sink and another in your bathroom and use them often during the day. Use a lanoline-rich cream for softening at night. There are kinds that disappear entirely in a few minutes, leaving the skin wonderfully soft and smooth. Your husband will not even be aware that you are having a beauty treatment.

When You're Alone

Do your face creaming while you are in the bathtub or in the afternoon when you are alone. Whether you've been married a day or fifty years, your husband dislikes seeing your face greasy and shining. This applies to other beauty steps. Roll your hair on curlers—if you use them—after you've kissed the boy-friend good-bye in the morning or when you have a few minutes' time in the afternoon.

If you're a business girl as well as a wife and must do your beauty-ifying when he is at home, then learn to do it as gracefully as possible. Learn to use one of the little automatic curlers. Insert bobby pins to hold the curls in place, then tie a pretty snood or a big ribbon around your head and wear it until your curls are dry enough to brush out and rearrange.

Find softening creams and lotions that do not leave a shine. And lock yourself in your bathroom until you have put on your make-up in the morning. What you do to your face is your secret. Your husband should have nothing to do but admire the final product!

Modes and Manners

QUESTIONS

1. What kind of clothes should a young lady take along on a cruise in southern waters?
2. If extremely hot food is taken into the mouth, may it be ejected?
3. Is it necessary to check one's coat in a restaurant?

ANSWERS

1. In the sports line, washable dresses, prints, one or two sweaters or knit costumes, good walking shoes and a sport coat are among necessities. For ship, sports, shorts, a bathing suit, rubber-soled shoes and a tennis dress will be needed. Semi-formal dresses for evening wear are both smart and appropriate.
2. No; better reach for the water glass and cool it off with a drink. Except in the case of pits, seeds and bones, food once taken into the mouth should be swallowed.
3. A man may check his coat and hat at the door, or he may hang them on a rack near the table. A girl does not check her things nor does she hang them up. She merely throws her coat away from her shoulders over the chair after she is seated.

Mushrooms A Good Buy At Present

By JUDITH WILSON

PUT down mushrooms as a "must" in planning menus for the coming week. Plentiful now, they are an outstanding buy in vegetables—and they're good for you. Not only are they easy to digest, but they are rich in minerals, an excellent source of vitamin B₁, and a good source of vitamin G.

Broiled, creamed or baked on toast or in patty shells, they're a fine foundation for the meatless meal. The round, unopened, "button" mushroom is preferred for creaming or in soup. The "caps," which are large and flat on top, are best for broiling and stuffing. Broiled stuffed mushrooms, featured in Wednesday's dinner in this week's menus, are something different.

Broiled Stuffed Mushrooms: Break stems from 1 pound of mushrooms. Chop stems and 1 small onion. Cook in ½ cup boiling water until tender. Add 2 tablespoons butter, 1 bouillon cube and 1 tablespoon catsup. Pour onto enough bread crumbs (about 2 cups) to make a moist stuffing. Season with salt and pepper. Stuff mushroom caps with this mixture. Dot with butter and broil in preheated oven until nicely browned.

Gay Spring Hats Flowering in Full Bloom

By ELEANOR GUNN

NEW YORK — There's another war, a very wordy one, raging in the hat world. The opposing forces are the pompadour-bonnet brigade and the pitched-forward forces.

Now then, the point of difference is that one believes that no woman with the slightest pretense to be up to date will wear her hair in any style but pompadour or her hat in any way except on the level on top of it, or back of it, covering the back of her head. The other contingent believes that women who don't look well in either pompadour or bonnet will have none of either. So there!

The argument also takes up the moot question of the wearability of bonnets and calots, especially by older women who are, after all, entitled to a new hat and, what's more, usually have the money to pay for good style plus a dash of flattery. They deserve at least a break.

Bonnets and pompadour hairdos add years to a woman's appearance, says one side. Bonnets are extremely becoming and pompadours are devastating, says the other. Therefore, ladies of the jury, for that's what you are, we leave the case in your hands. Let the verdict be on your own heads, and may you enjoy wearing it!

As you know, hats are gay flower patches in full bloom for spring. If there is any flower that isn't used, I fail to recall it. Hats of poppies with brilliant green veils, hats of field clover with veils of purple or green, hats of carnations—everything you can mention and most of them pretty. Say what you will, flowered hats, turbans, or shapes trimmed with flowers, are usually kind to women of all ages and types.

The veils do help and, speaking of veils, one or two milliners are showing mesh veils with tiny dots in contrasting color. Veils, by the way, are worn very long, one or both ends trailing below the shoulders.

The crocheted hat, also the so-called lace straw, are much favored, which is natural enough since handwork—fancy work, if you like the term—is definitely in.

MILK FOR CHILD'S LUNCH
Since every child should have at least four glasses of milk a day, the child who takes lunch to school should have a thermos bottle of the beverage in his lunchbox. Vary it occasionally by making the drink chocolate milk or by adding crushed pineapple or crushed banana to the milk.

Health Authorities Warn Against Current Epidemic

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

DURING the past couple of months, many sections of the country have had an epidemic of measles. Now don't sniff and say, "Huh! Only measles!" To experienced physicians, "only measles" doesn't sound good.

A few months ago, an epidemic of influenza swept over the country. Fortunately, it was in a mild form and now seems to be dying out. We hope so, but we can't forget that in 1918, a mild form appeared in April, which did not assume great proportions till the next fall, when a very violent epidemic suddenly developed.

Believe in Child; He'll Believe In Himself

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

AT a quarter past eleven Saturday night, Helen's mother telephoned Mary's mother worriedly. Helen hadn't come home and I was wondering whether Mary had come in yet," she said. Both 'teen age girls had gone to the movies with two boys. "Don't worry. The children probably stopped off for a soda," Mary's mother said.

But the other mother was not so easily comforted. "If I could only be sure of that, everything would be all right," she continued. "But I keep thinking they've gone to a beer parlor."

Mary's mother dismissed the idea by saying, "Mary would never do that."

"Well, I wouldn't be too sure," was the troubled rejoinder. "You know how wild young people are these days."

"But I am sure," was the answer, "because Mary gave me her word, and I have utter confidence in her."

Shortly after this telephone conversation, both girls returned to their respective homes. When Mary's mother heard they'd had a soda, she said, "I guess you had your favorite walnut sundae as usual." Helen's mother, however, complained, "It worries me terribly when you're late like this. Tonight I had a feeling you were drinking beer."

In one case the parent-child relationship is proceeding on a sound footing of mutual faith, but not in the other, although both girls have nice instincts. Helen's mother claims she can't be sure of her daughter any more; that it's like dealing with another person now that she approaches womanhood.

This is a dangerous attitude. Where the parent-child relationship has been carefully built up on mutual faith from infancy, it is unlikely to go to pieces suddenly at adolescence.

When parents entertain doubts and fears concerning growing children, it is important that they keep these to themselves. The child—yes, even the know-it-all adolescent—believes in himself only to the extent that his parents do.

'TEEN COSTUME

A teen costume with long jacket of red flannel, and skirt in red and black checks.

Health directors warn against the current epidemic of measles. It may assume a severe form, as it does about every third year—and this is the third year. This being the case, we should sit up and take notice. Any child with a cough should be viewed with suspicion and placed in bed. Often, a rasping cough precedes a measles rash.

DR. CHRISMAN

What makes this measles epidemic doubly hazardous is that we are in the midst of a great mobilization of young adults in camps for military service. Measles is a serious disease of children, but is far worse in adults. It isn't the measles that is so dangerous, but the complications which follow it, such as broncho-pneumonia, laryngitis with swelling of the glottis, intestinal disturbances, and inflammations of the eyes and middle ear.

Most of us do not realize the seriousness of the disease, but the mortality rate among children in private homes and good surroundings is 6 percent. That in institutions is 15 percent.

In cities, the vast majority of children fifteen years of age have had measles. Those in rural communities are not so likely to be exposed but, when they are, the disease often assumes a serious form.

Measles is most contagious during the period of four or five days before the rash appears. The first signs are those of a cold, with weeping eyes and nose and a rasping cough. This appears from seven to fourteen days after exposure. There is fever, malaise, chilliness, with loss of appetite and vomiting. Then, about the fourth day, and often after the fever has disappeared, the eruption appears on the face and neck, spreading rapidly over the entire body.

Watch for Complications
All symptoms quickly subside and, within a week, the signs of the disease seem to have disappeared, except a brownish stain followed with some scaling. The cough is likely to persist, and this is the time that complications become apparent. A rise of temperature and increased respiration after the eighth day should be investigated.

The contagious stage is the period between the first signs of a cold and the complete eruption. It is extremely contagious then, but one attack usually protects against another for life. If your boy has had measles, you can rest assured that he will not be in danger of an attack in camp.

The treatment is rest in bed. A cool, well ventilated room should be used, free from drafts. The eyes should be protected from light, and the nose, eyes and mouth kept as clean as possible with a warm boracic acid solution. Occasional bathing with warm water and baking soda allays the itching. If the skin is dry, anointing with vaseline is soothing.

Recently, injections into the muscles, shortly after exposure, of a serum from the blood of one who has recovered several months or years before, will either prevent occurrence or greatly reduce the severity and the development of complications. This serum can be stored and used as needed. It is to be hoped that the medical departments of the army and navy will provide a large amount of this serum and use it at the first sign of measles.

BEANS AND CHEESE
A tasty way to serve string beans is to bake them with cheese. Parboil a quart of washed, cut string beans. Place in baking dish, add ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt and a few grains of cayenne or dash of pepper. Cover and bake at 400 degrees for twenty minutes.

TO CLEAN PIANO KEYS
To clean stained piano ivories, rub them gently with a paste of fine-powdered whiting and lemon juice and then wipe them clean with a damp cloth. If the keys are badly stained repeat the application once a week.

FDR Calls Off Wednesday Talk

Gives Fireside Chat on May 27—Reported as Feeling "Fine."

WASHINGTON, May 12. (P)—President Roosevelt was feeling "fine" tonight, but a speech he was to have delivered Wednesday before the envoys of Latin America's 20 republics was called off and a "fireside chat" on May 27 substituted for it.

"So, despite the reports from abroad," said Stephen Early, Presidential press secretary, "there will be no world-shaking pronouncement from the President on Wednesday evening, as this office has told you right along."

Mr. Roosevelt was to have spoken at a reception at the Pan-American Union Wednesday night, which Latin American diplomats had arranged in his honor. The President has had a gastro-intestinal ailment for a week, and while Early said he was "feeling perfectly fine" once more, the envoys suggested in a resolution that the affair be postponed.

Although Early had asserted repeatedly that Mr. Roosevelt had been unable to begin drafting the address, it had been billed in some quarters as one which would be of extremely great significance in the fields of foreign policy and hemispheric defense.

There had been such a volume of speculation about Wednesday's speech that one responsible official said Mr. Roosevelt felt that he was being "pushed" somewhat hard to make it a speech of outstanding importance and that the President did not intend to let himself be pushed.

Brewster Plane Wreck Located

New York Couple Believed Dead in Pennsylvania Crash.

LEWISTOWN, Pa., May 12. (P)—The twisted and charred wreckage of a missing airplane in which socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brewster set out from New York Friday was found to right on Shade Mountain, 25 miles south of this Central Pennsylvania town, and pilots of searching planes said its occupants undoubtedly were dead.

G. E. Nearhood, of Beaver Springs, a few miles distant from Shade Mountain, who was one of the first to fly over the wreckage, said nothing but a "bundle of steel tubing, rolled up like a ball" was visible from the air. He added:

"I don't think they ever knew what they hit."

The discovery, first reported by an all-American Aviation airmail pilot, climaxed a three-day search of heavily wooded mountains that once were known as aviation's "graveyard of the Alleghenies" because of the number of planes that met disaster there.

The Brewsters were en route to Warren, O., when they disappeared.

Price-Pegging Wins Approval Of Conferees

WASHINGTON, May 12. (P)—Legislation to require mandatory, price-pegging loans on major farm crops at 85 per cent of parity, and to impose heavy penalties for marketing "abnormal production" was approved today by a Senate-House committee.

The group, appointed to reconcile divergent House and Senate views, estimated the program would assure farmers cooperating with this year's crop control measures a return of $1.15 a bushel for wheat, 87 cents a bushel for corn and 16 cents a pound for cotton. (These figures are averages and include government benefit payments).

The proposed loan rates would be: cotton, 13.49 cents; corn, 69.87 cents; wheat, 96.22 cents; flue-cured tobacco, 19 cents; fire and dark cured tobacco, 8.41 cents and burley, 15.53 cents.

French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye is shown with reporters after a conference with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles in Washington regarding food shipments to unoccupied France. Vote Today On W. Va. Senator

Both Rosier and Martin Forces Claim Close Victory.

WASHINGTON, May 12. (P)—The Senate agreed today to vote not later than 5 p. m., tomorrow on claims of Joseph Rosier and Clarence Martin to West Virginia's Senate seat vacated by M. M. Neely to become governor.

The agreement, suggested by Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) at the close of the third day of debate on the contest, was unopposed by backers of either Rosier or Martin.

Both groups claimed sufficient votes to seat their candidate. But both agreed that the decision might be determined by a single vote on the final roll call.

At last four Senators definitely have expressed desires to argue the case before a vote. Their arguments will be added to those of most members of the elections committee who voted 9 to 2 two weeks ago for seating Rosier, Fairmont College president and former president of the National Education Association.

Rudolf Hess

through all the storm-tossed years that followed, and were together when Hitler came to power and when he carried out the "blood purge" of 1934.

At practically every public appearance by Hitler, Hess lurked in the background.

He was with Hitler eight days ago when the Fuehrer addressed the Reichstag. He looked his usual self on that occasion, unsmiling, a trifle morose as always. If he had "hallucinations," they were well concealed.

Yet even at that moment he unquestionably was harboring in his mind the plan to leave Germany. The fact that Hitler had forbidden him to fly might indicate that the Fuehrer had some inkling of his bosom companion's disaffection.

But today the 47-year old Hess had made good his scheme of escape in hairbreadth fashion that was proof positive of his fertility of imagination—and of his courage, since with an unarmed German plane he risked death from British guns with no means of defending himself.

The magnitude of his determination was indicated in another way, for he left behind his wife, Ilse, whom he married in 1927, and their 3-year old son. What their fate will be depends on Adolf Hitler.

Hess, the Egyptian-born German who was the stage-manager for Hitlerism, was beyond the reach of the man he once defied.

requested amendment of the description act to permit the deferment of older men. No specific ages were mentioned, but there has been talk of deferring those past 26 or 30 years, and building the conscript army of younger men who would have a longer period of potential usefulness in the reserves.

The House military committee voted to remove all statutory limitations on the size of the army for the next fiscal year. The measure would suspend provisions of a 1920 act fixing the proportions one branch of the service must bear to another.

President Roosevelt, feeling fine but still weak from his stomach disorder, conferred at length with Harry Hopkins, lease-lend administrator.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla) and the offices of Senators George (D-Ga) and Mead (D-NY) reported their mail was bringing demands for a declaration of war against Germany and Italy, while Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) said in an interview that the administration "apparently" was trying to induce Elre to enter the war by promising "goods we could not deliver."

Flight of Hess Nazi Split

numerous high party men and Hitler intimates were slain. If a party split had occurred and Hess was fleeing, it was believed here that the Germans might logically brand him as mentally unbalanced in order to discredit anything he might say.

The reason for the party break, if there was one, was a puzzle. Hess was said to have tried to avoid intra-party disputes, but it was thought that his close personal association with Hitler might have aroused jealousy among other party leaders.

It was also considered possible that Hess might have disagreed with Hitler or other party chiefs about the general strategy of the war or that he might have retained his early anti-Communist ideas and opposed any closer relations with Russia. Hess was believed here, however, to have devoted most of his time and interest to domestic political affairs and it was considered more likely that a split, if any, developed over intra-party matters.

Wheat Quotas To Be Discussed

fect the income of all wheat farmers, Mr. Cox declared. In the last two years, the wheat program, principally the loan, has held the United States wheat price 30 to 40 cents above the world price. However, on the face of the large supply in prospect for the coming year, the loan needs the added protection of the marketing quota. Because loans on an uncontrolled surplus would involve too much risk, they are prohibited by law when a wheat marketing quota is voted down. All wheat farmers have benefited from the loan program because of its support to the market, whether or not they obtained an individual loan.

If the quota is approved, farmers will be able to sell without penalty all wheat they raise on their acreage allotments. The farmer who has seeded within his acreage allotment can sell his wheat just as he always has. He is also eligible for a government loan on all his wheat.

The farmer who overplants his allotment may store the wheat produced in excess of the allotment. If he sells or uses it a penalty will be collected. If he stores it, he can get a loan on the excess, but at a lower rate than that available to the cooperator. If quotas are voted down, growers will not have the protection of the loan.
