A.A. TRACTOR BATTERY TRAINING. EM/MAE.

Trainee drivers of an A.A. Tractor Battery undergo a course of special training in drawing guns and limbers over steep hillsides and banks in the West country. The practise gives the men confidence in handling the heavy vehicles at seemingly impossible angles. They also practise dragging the tractors up almost vertical hillsides with a cable from another anchored tractor at the top.

In their spare time 30 girls in a mixed A.A. battery in South West England are weaving Scottish tartans. Neither the girls nor their instructors are Scots, but the battery commander is a member of a Scottish clan and in his honour the girls chose the Fraser tartan for their first effort. The site carpenter is making more hand looms from scrap.
